Democrat Scores Foe's Silence on Garbage Contract Issue

William N. McNair, Democratic mayoralty candidate, today picked up the attack by Representative Thomas J. Gallagher against Mayor John S. Herron over a real estate transaction between the Mayor and representatives of the Pennsylvania Railroad at a time when the city was in a contract snarl with the American Reduction Company over garbage disposal.

McNair asserted:

"Once more does the Mayor of Pittsburgh, with the finger of suspicion leveled at him, brazenly refuse an explanation of his official acts, this time on the ground that his private dealings with the state's largest public utility, the Pennsylvania Railroad, is of no public concern."

McNair derided Herron's statement yesterday that the incident was closed. He said:

"'It is a closed incident, I refuse to discuss it,' says the Mayor when asked who were his associates in this real estate transaction. Why doesn't he name them? Is he ashamed of his association with them."

HERRON STATEMENT

Herron had said that he and a group of associates purchased a piece of East End property from the railroad, sold a portion and that the remainder was purchased from the group by Mrs. Herron. Originally, he said, the group had intended to operate a string of gas stations.

McNair continued:

"'It is a closed incident, I refuse to discuss it,' says Mayor Herron when asked to explain or deny the charge made by Thomas J. Gallagher that

BIG STEEL RAIL ORDERS LOOM

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—It was estimated in steel quarters today that orders for more than 200,000 tons of steel rails would be placed immediately as a result of the agreement of producers to cut the price to 36.75 a ton.

One of the largest orders pending is that of the Pennsylvania Railroad, which is expected to take 100,000 tons. Other large tonnages are being considered by the Santa Fe, Erie, Illinois Central, Burlington and other important carriers.

Rail purchases which will eventually develop under the price revision are estimated at more than 800,000 tons. With track material included, the tonnage is expected to exceed 1,000,000 tons.

Woman Killed by Car Relative of Hoover's

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—After lying unidentified in the morgue for two days, the body of a woman killed in a traffic accident Saturday night was identified today as that of Mrs. Minnie Hoover Linton, 59, formerly of Los Angeles, and said by friends to have been a relative of former President Hoover.

She wore an ear trumpet, and friends said she was rendered almost totally deaf in an explosion in the building of the Los Angeles Times, where she was once a proofreader.

State Welfare Head Favors Cash Relief

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Cash relief for the unemployed instead of food orders is recommended by Mrs. Alice F. Liveright, secretary of welfare and former supporter of the commissary food distribution plan.

Addressing the Philadelphia branch of the Pennsylvania Security League last night, Mrs. Liveright termed montly food allowances to unemployed families of $15 "grossly inadequate."

2 HUNTERS DIE OPENING SEASON

500,000 Pennsylvania Sportsmen Take To Fields

Hunters fell with rabbits, quail and pheasants today as an eager army of 500,000 Pennsylvania sportsmen invaded field and forest with the opening of the small game season.

One man was fatally injured by his hunting companion, another died near his hunting camp from a heart attack and more than a score of others were reported wounded, several seriously.

EARLY CASUALTIES

Scarcely had the throngs of nimrods begun their quest than casualties were reported. Some were shot in mistake for game, others strayed into the line of fire of other hunters and some were wounded by accidental discharge of weapons.

Haze, fog and trees screened the game from view in many places.

T. T. Loudermilk, 50, of Williamsport, was shot in the face by his companion, Theodore Sechrist, 30, and died a few minutes later. They were hunting near Glen Union, Clinton County.

Harrison Mowers, 40, of Carlisle, was found dead of a heart attack by members of his hunting party in a field near their camp at Cummingstown, Cumberland County.

Eli Morris, 45, of Pittsburgh, was shot in the chest and legs by his nephew, Samuel Kerr, of Oak Forest, while hunting in Greene County, police reported. His condition is not serious.

Wilfred Burns, 22, Waynesburg College student, was shot in the neck by Jack McClelland, of Waynesburg. His condition is not serious.

While hunting rabbits near Punxsutawney, John Sholski walked in front of his companion's gun and fell shot through the thigh.

CONSTABLE SHOT

Warden Spires, 45, of Indiana County, mistaken for a squirrel, was shot in the chest by Justice of the Peace Donald Davis. Physicians said his injuries were not serious.

Lured by the summer-like weather, thousands of Pittsburgh sportsmen joined the trek, many had gone to favorite hunting grounds several days ago to be up with the dawn for today's hunt. An abundance of game was reported.

The state game commission warned against accidents, calling particular attention to the presence of 1,000 members of the conservation army in state forests.

First arrests for hunting within city limits were made by police in the woods near the Leech Farm hospital. Three persons were taken into custody.

Councilmen Shun Garbage Meeting

A special meeting of City Council called for today was adjourned when not a single councilman answered the roll read by City Clerk Robert Clark.

The adjournment postponed again the long delayed long-term rubbish and garbage collection contract. On Monday Councilman Frank L. Duggan, chairman of the sub-committee in charge of legislation, said that he expected to present the measure at today's meeting.

Duggan's committee has had the contract form, which calls for bids on collections for one, three or five years, for more than six months.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 1.—Representative of 64 captive mines in Fayette, Washington and Greene counties today brushed aside orders from United Mine Workers' headquarters to return to work and voted unanimously to send a delegation of eight miners to Washington to lay their grievances before President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Martin Ryan, insurgent of the H. C. Frick Coke C miners, was elected to he delegation during a stormy t hour session.

The meeting was called by liam Hynes, president of Dis No. 4, to lay before them United Mine Workers of Amer executive order to return to wo and to explain the Roosevelt peac pact.

Speech after speech opposed Hynes' proposal to return to work, resulting finally in the decision to send the delegation to Washington. No vote was taken on the return to work order.

Hynes, as provisional president of the district, also was elected to the committee. Other members included Patsy Minerd, Howard Hall, Ralph Courtley, Andy Richie, Sam Lynch and Dan Sabule. These men will represent all of the captive mines in the region.

President Hynes agreed to wire President Roosevelt of the meeting's action, and to ask for an interview.

DUKE INVOLVED IN LOTTERY

LONDON, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—A summons was granted today in Bow Street Police Court against the Duke of Atholl for violation of the lotteries act. The summons created a sensation in England.

The nobleman, well known in the United States, raised his own private "mystery fund" of more than £150,000 (approximately $738,500 currently) by voluntary subscriptions and then distributed 748 gifts ranging from ?2,000 (about $9,580) to £10 (approximately $47.90).

The duke set aside £60,000 for charities and distributed £36,000 among the subscribers, who bought tickets after the manner of the Irish sweepstakes.

The lucky subscribers to the duke's fund were announced October 21. Afterwards men from Scotland Yard held a conference with the duke at his Highland castle. This was followed by today's summons which was applied for the director of public prosecutions.

The case will be heard in the Bow street court No. 14.

The duke of Atholl, former Lord Chamberlain, is the only persons in the British empire entitled to maintain a private army.

'RIDE' SLAYERS KIDNAP WOMEN

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Two men wanted for the killing of a policeman in Philadelphia were taken for a "ride" from a hotel here early today, and at its end one was dead.

The other, seriously wounded, staggered to a road and was brought to Cooper Hospital by a motorist.

Two women are missing, and the gangster killers are believed to have abducted the wife of the wounded man and the friend of the slain man.

The dead man was Edward Wallace, 21, of Philadelphia, also known as Edward d'Alonza, and "The Cowboy."

The wounded man is John Zukorsky, 31, of Philadelphia, also known as John Zukovsky, John Sukowsky and John Short.

Photographs of both have been identified as two of four men who shot and killed Policeman Charles Stockburger during a $6,720 holdup in Philadelphia, July 14.

The dead man was found by state police in a strip of woods at Crescent Park, near Bellmawr, after the wounded man was brought to the hospital and told of the shooting.

At the hospital the wounded man asked for his wife and the two women were summoned. As they were about to enter the hospital two men forced them into an automobile and drove away.

State's Treasury Balance Increases

HARRISBURG, Nov. 1.—(INS.)—During October the balance in the state's general fund soared from $5,535,000 to $7,943,114 at the close of business last night, State Treasurer Charles A. Waters reported today.

The increase of approximately $2,400,000 is the first recorded in the general fund in several months. The fund's balance on October 31 last year was $10,689,560.

Halloween Revelers Pass Slain Girl's Slab

Gay Parties Deserted For Morgue Peek At Sewer Victim

Uncounted thousands continued to pour into the morgue today to view the body of the unidentified girl who was found Monday with a bullet in her breast in an Allegheny River boulevard sewer.

It is 48 hours now since she was found and, although every clue has been run down, police are right where they were in the beginning—without even the slightest idea who she is or why she was killed.

The morgue last night stole the Halloween show as men and women, some in evening clothes and others costumed for the holiday, drifted in to scan the features of the girl who hasn't been identified.

The crowd broke all previous records at the morgue, deputies stated. Special police were confronted with traffic problems on the street outside, and other officers herded the visitors into orderly lines.

From gay Halloween parties to the morgue came the celebrators. Long past midnight evening gowned women and gentlemen in

OHIO SENATOR INDICTED

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Acting on an attractive divorcee's story, a grand jury today indicted Senator William H. Herner, of Monroeville, for soliciting a bribe from a funeral director's lobby.

Senator Herner, Democratic leader in the Ohio Senate, was accused of asking $1,500 of Burch D. Es. Arthur, of Wilmington, president of the Ohio Funeral Directors' Association and lobbyist for the group, on or about March 25.

The indictment came after a careful examination of a number of witnesses who appeared before juryy esterday. Arthur and numerous other undertakers were among the witnesses, but Mrs. Elizabeth Pearce, the divorcee and "key" witness, did not testify.

Food Prices Here Rise, Fall in U. S.

An average decrease of 1 per cent in retail food prices throughout the country, and an increase of one-tenth of 1 per cent in Pittsburgh for the two weeks ending October 10, was shown in a report of the United States Department of Labor.

Baltimore showed the greatest increase, with 2 1-3 per cent, and Mobile the greatest decrease, with 2 per cent.

FORD'S LABOR STAND WAITED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Henry Ford is a long step nearer recorded compliance with the automobile recovery code today—so much nearer, in fact, that NRA officials hope he soon will be all the way within the fold even though he does not fly the Blue Eagle.

Since he is submitting wage and hour figures required by the code, there remains now only an official decision that Ford is bargaining collectively with his employes.

Senator Wagner expects the National Labor Board, of which he is chairman, to be able to rule on that point soon. Men on strike at Ford's Edgewater, (N. J.), assembly plant, already have conferred with plant managers. Their demands were referred to headquarters. The answer from headquarters will be used by the labor board as a basis for determination of whether Ford is bargaining.

Wagner does not intend to press the issue until "adequate' time is allowed for the answer.

Meanwhile, Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, took a last look at the itinerary drawn up for his round-the-country

Ban Motorman's Wife As 'Back-Seat Driver'

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—It was fun, while it lasted, but Mrs. Pauline Klima's tours around town on the front platform of her husband's street car are a thing of the past.

If she wants to do her back seat driving from the back seat, all well and good, but Judge Rudolph de Sort in Superior Court today awarded the front platform to Motorman Joseph Klima.

Klima, who is suing for divorce, complained that his wife rides around his sroute, standing behind and annoying him. He was afraid he would have an accident some day if this kept up.

Judge De Sort granted him an injunction. No Longer can Mrs. Klima boar dhis trolley to taunt him.

Bowman Didn't 'Phone? So It Was the Mayor

Magistrate Thomas D. Jones is confused.

The voice of Chancellor John G. Bowman, which he thought he heard, belonged to no other than his old friend, Mayor John S. Herron.

Jones announced in Morals Court yesterday that he was freeing 24 Pitt students, who had been celebrating their team's victory over Notre Dame by crashing theaters and tieing up traffic. He said the chancellor of Pitt, Dr. Bowman, had telephoned and said could he be lenient if Pitt paid damages. And Jones said i.

Just a few minutes before he had held 18 for court and fined six. But he freed them.

Today Chancellor Bowman denied he had made such a call. Deans at Pitt denied making it. John Webber, the chancellor's assistant, who might have called, has been in Philadelphia since Monday.

But Mayor Herron's office today said the Mayor had called Jones when he was besought by members of the school's student council to intercede.

Magistrate Jones today reiterated his belief it was the chancellor.

AIL TRADE COMMITTEE TO ADMINISTER CODE HER

...E TO INSURE COMPLIANCE LAUNCHED

'Buy Now' Campaign To Aid Success Of NRA Plan

Pittsburgh's huge retail commercial setup today had projected the NRA in a three-fold undertaking, as the millions of dollars retail trade operated under its own code of fair competition. The code became effective Monday and Pittsburgh's reactions may be classified as follows.

1—Setting up of a local retail trade committee of at least 15 members to administer and interpret the code in the Pittsburgh trading area.

2—Launching of a co-operative drive to insure compliance with the fair practices section of the code by the Better Business Bureau.

DIRECT SUPERVISION

The local retail committee will have direct supervision of the code within an area of perhaps 30 miles radius from Pittsburgh, according to Arthur C. Kaufmann, acting chairman of the Retail Merchants' Association.

He conferred yesterday with Frank C. Harper, executive secretary of the local NRA board, concerning establishment of the committee.

He declared the committee is essential to carrying out the provisions of the code, but pointed out that as far as employment is concerned there will be no material changes, as retail stores affected by the code already have complied with the employment provisions of the President's blanket re-employment agreement.

ADMINISTRATIVE GROUPS

The retail code provides for three administrative bodies: the Retail Code Authority, already named by the President; the National Retail Council, elected by the nine trade associations that signed the code, and the local committees yet to be named.

...trade practices named ...de, such as advertised ... lowest prices and gen... underselling plans, will be ...d and acted upon by the ... Business Bureau, according ...pt. R. W. Elton, manager. ...d:

We will see that these things ...e enforced. We may bring ...out prosecution through the ...ode organization or directly ...hrough the city, county and state laws and ordinances. This code now gives us a great deal of help in putting to use the state advertising law."

ADVERTISING CLAUSE

The particular paragraph in the retail code referred to is Number B, Article 9:

"No retailer shall use advertising which refers inaccurately in any material particular to any competitor or his merchandise, prices, values, credit terms, policies or service."

A dinner meeting of Pittsburgh merchants will be held November 14 under the chairmanship of Mr. Kaufmann to consolidate interest in the fair practice section of the code.

Plans for an NRA buying campaign advanced yesterday following a meeting of a merchants' committee headed by Kaufmann.

It was voted to request the NRA at Washington to send a distinguished speaker to Pittsburgh to analyze the needs of the campaign and to lend it impetus, Kaufmann announced.

Baker Heads Regional Labor Board Here

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Members of two additional regional labor boards were being notified today by Sentor Wagner (Dem.), of New York, chairman of the labor advisory board, of their appointment. The boards are those of Pittsburgh and Buffalo. The Pittsburgh members are:

Impartial chairman: Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology. Industry: George A. Blackmore, president, Westinghouse Airbrake Company; George T. Ladd, United Engineering and Foundry Company; Thomas A. Dunn, Consolidated Ice Company; A. C. Kaufmann, McCreery & Co., and Frank J. Lanahan, Fort Pitt Malleable Iron Company. Labor: J. J. GEN. JOHNSON'S CZARLIKE SPASM

Editorial Reprinted from the Chicago Daily Evening News

Gen. Hugh Johnson's attempt to influence the publication of business statistics by the Federal Reserve Board is one of the most alarming symptoms of misguided official zeal that has come to light under the new deal.

For years at stated periods the Federal Reserve Board has provided valuable information concerning economic activity. Through its agents in all parts of the country it learns the ebb and flow of production, employment and distribution in all lines of industry and commerce.

Its trustworthy statistics are of immense value to business men in formulating their policies, and to students in following the trend of affairs. They are compiled by able economists on the staff of the Federal Reserve System who are independent of political influence.

The Reserve Board's current statistics reflect A DECLINE IN MANY LINES OF PRODUCTION DURING SEPTEMBER AND EARLY OCTOBER. Private statistical services report the same clearly defined tendency, and attribute it to the same factors noted by the Federal Reserve Board. Statisticians of integrity could not have published any other report.

Instead of trying to discover what miscalculations in NRA might be responsible for the disappointment of his hopes, Gen. Johnson rushed to the telephone to berate the chief statistician of the Federal Reserve.

Failing to exact a retraction from either the statistician or his superiors on the Reserve Board, the NRA chief tried to get a denial from the White House. When that was not forthcoming he issued his own statement claiming that, with the exception of steel, everything was on the up and up.

Any one who wishes to accept Gen. Johnson's figures in preference to those of the Federal Reserve Board and the recognized independent statistical services is free to do so. But neither Gen. Johnson nor any other public official has a right to pollute official statistics to serve his own purposes. Doctored statistics are not only worse than none at all, but are positively dangerous.

LITVINOFF SAILS FOR U. S.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Foreign Commissar, sailed from Cherbourg today on the Berengaria en route to Washington for his conversations with President Roosevelt concerning Russian recognition.

M. Litvinoff was accompanied by Constantin Oumanski, Press Director of the Commissariat for Foreign Affairs, and Ivan Divilkoffski, General Secretary of the Foreign Office.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Secretary Hull said today that Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar of foreign affairs, will be given the same reception upon his arrival as that accorded all visiting foreign ministers.

He will be met in New York by representatives of the State Department protocol division with Hull himself meeting him at Washington.

The Secretary assumes Litvinoff will go first to the White House.

Procedure relative to his conversations both with President Roosevelt and at the State Department will be developed as they go along.

The State Department expects Litvinoff to reach the United States probably early November 7.

NRA 'PUZZLE' TO AL SMITH

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The workings of the NRA program are "all very puzzling," says Alfred E. Smith in the November issue of the New Outlook, of which he is editor.

Retelling the story of Francis Scott Key as he "awaited the dawn to see if the American flag was still flying," the former presidential candidate writes:

"Today a good many patriotic people, scanning the horizon for the first light of returning prosperity, are trying to figure out whether the flag of the Constitution still waves.

"It is all very puzzling, and the bewildered observer, hoping ultimately for an honest test of these issues in the courts, is further confounded by the editorial suggestion in a newspaper of wide circulation that the President could ask Congress to creat a few more Supreme Court judgeships, and fill them with men sympathetic with the aims of the National Recovery Act.

"That would indeed be a new deal."

Used Car Dealers Code to Be Delayed

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—General marketing rules of the NRA code of the motor vehicle retailing trade will become effective November 3, it was announced here today by F. W. A. Vesper, chairman of the national control committee of the group.

Vesper said, however, the used car section of the marketing code will not be placed in force until "I am fully satisfied that code administrative machinery in all the states is completely prepared to handle the task."

Miss Perkins Spurs Move To Ban Child Labor

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Continued efforts to pass the proposed amendment to the Constitution prohibiting child labor were advocated today by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

She also urged wholehearted cooperation by employers, workers and the public in the national recovery program, passage of state minimum wage laws and some form of unemployment reserves.

Secretary Perkins pointed out that accomplishment of these aims should go a long way toward helping in the solution of many of the problems concerning children by reason of improving economic conditions so that boys and girls might not have to suffer through loss in family income.

Secretary Perkins said the NRA has made possible abolition of child labor throughout industry and the nation, "but we must beaer in mind that such action covers only the emergency period." She added:

"This, under the law, does not extend beyond two years, or even less, should President Roosevelt by proclamation declare the emeregency has ended. Consequ...ly the movement for ratification of the federal child labor amendment should go on in an orderly way. We should guard against any possible return of old conditions of child labor and we can best do that by passing the amendme...

SWOPE WARNS INDUSTRY OF U. S. RULE

Proposes 'Super' Trade Body to Control Business

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Warning that government will undertake stricter supervision of industry if it does not do so itself, Gerard Swope today proposed a program for making much of the NRA permanent.

The industrial leader, as chairman of the business advisory and planning council for the Department of Commerce, proposed to it the creation here of a "National Chamber of Commerce and Industry" which should be an enlargement and development of the present Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

THREE DIVISIONS

Swope's proposal for a super-trade organization visualized three main divisions.

The first, for commerce or trade, would head the various codified national retail and wholesale distributing associations and those of kindred industries.

The second would be at the top of industrial or manufacturing groups, including the Textile Institute, the American Iron and Steel Institute, and possibly also the present National Association of manufacturers and the National Metal Trade Association.

The third division would cover associations representing local or geographical divisions.

Swope also proposed that there be created in this national chamber an economic and statistical bureau, with the "highly organized and efficient" Industrial Conference Board of New York as the nucleus, and other independent economic and statistical bodies now supported by merchants and manufacturers to be incorporated.

TO RULE INDUSTRY

Swope advocated that the super business organization should become the actual governing agency of codified industry, saying:

"If industry does not organize and govern itself, either the state or federal government will-with the consequent paralyzing effect on initiative and progress."

Secretary Roper at a meeting of the National Business Advisory and Planning Council today named five leading industrialists to serve on NRA's industrial advisory board for the next four months, replacing five, including Walter C. Teagle, of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, who had just ended their service.

Pierre du Pont, of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company, was selected, together with Clay Williams, of the Reynolds Tobacco Company; Myron C. Taylor, of United States Steel; Gen. Robert E. Wood, of Sears, Roebuck, and R. E. Flanders, of Springfield, Vt.

Roper announced that a rotation plan would be continued, so that at the beginning of next month five more new members will supplant others now serving on the board.

There was no hint either of dissension in the board or disapproval of the administration's policies. The board has a total of 13 members. Half of the eight remaining on duty would retire under the plan on December 1, and the remainder on December 31.

4 Million Allotted By Works Bureau

WIGGIN 'SAVED' $440,000 TAX BY FIRMS

Sold Bank Stock Short To 'Postpone' Income Levy, He Says

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Senate investigators were told today by Albert H. Wiggin that he "saved" a tax of about $440,000 on a $4,000,000 stock profit through personal corporations in 1929.

Earlier Wiggin has testified that the purpose of his large short sales in Chase National Bank stock through a personal corporation in 1929 was to "postpone" tax payments.

PAID $1,365,000

The retired chairman of the Chase bank told the Senate Banking Committee he had paid income taxes totaling $1,365,000 in the last five years.

Replying to questions by Senator Gore (Dem.), Oklahoma, Wiggin said the short sales were to "produce buying power" and to reduce the family holdings in the stock, which he said were very large at the time.

Wiggin denied the sales were designed to "depress the stock," though he agreed it might have prevented the price from rising.

LINK CHASE UNIT

Earlier, a letter was read before the committee indicating the Chase, Harris, Forbes Company, an affiliate of the Chase Bank, had suggested to clients a method of establishing losses for income tax purposes.

Wiggin also related that officers of the Chase Securities Corporation, another bank affiliate, who gave his personal companies participation in profitable stock transactions were indebted to those concerns.

E. T. Whiter Named To Compliance Board

Frank C. Harper, executive secretary of the Pittsburgh NRA Complance Board, announced that E. T. Whiter, former vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, had been named to represent the public on the board. Meetings of the board will be held each Monday afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce, while committee meetings will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons to hear petitions for exceptions and complaints of violations.

gold, and so poor geese that usually buy real estate that they haven't seen, and stocks about which they know nothing, are again offering themselves as a sacrifice.

THE BRITISH say the question of foreign debts is "up to Roosevelt."

Usually when an individual nation owes money it is up to the one that owes to pay. Conditions, it seems, change when Europe owes the United States.

By the way, Brazil is postponing the payment of its war debt to France. You can imagine the indignation caused by that "lack of good faith."

Wilson's Widow Closing Noted Jewelry Shop

MRS. WOODROW WILSON

131-Year-Old Firm Served Capital Society

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Galt & Bro., 131-year-old jewelry firm of which Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is sole owner, started a "going out of business" sale today—a depression liquidation.

Gone are the days when Galts frequently handed as high as $200,000 worth of jewelry across the counter to regular customers who weren't even required to sign receipts.

No longer to Washington hosts give parties to 50 or 75 guests with a $20 Galt gift as souvenir for each.

Incomes from great estates aren't going into glittering diamonds to be worn at the next ball or reception.

So complete has been the stoppage of this form of trade, on which Galt's has flourished since before the War of 1812, that Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the World War President, "wants to liquidate her investment," William H. Wright, her store manager, says.

No compromise will she make with latter-day "commercialism."

If some buyer would agree to operate the store as ethically as it always has been operated, and according to the same policies that made it famous, Wright said, "a very advantageous buy" might be made, but under no conditions would it be sold to anyone who might market low-grade merchandise under the Galt name.

U. S. ORDERS PROBE OF INSULL'S RELEASE IN GREECE

INSTRUCTIONS SENT TO AIDE IN ATHENS

Powerful Influence Believed Exerted to Free Fugitive

International News Service.

ATHENS, Nov. 1.—A cable from Washington instructing him to make a full investigation into the circumstances of the Greek Court of Appeals decision freeing Samuel Insull, indicted former Chicago utilities magnate, was received today by Forrest Harness, of the United States Attorney General's office.

This was interpreted in some quarters as an intimation the United States may lodge a diplomatic protest with Greece over the fact Insull has twice been liberated by the court despite strenuous American efforts to bring about his extradition.

POWERFUL INFLUENCES

In American legation circles there was a feeling some powerful American forces may be anxious to prevent Insull's return to Chicago to face trial on charges of fraudulent bankruptcy, and that invisible pressure may have been exerted in this regard.

Greek newspapers, however, hailed Insull's release as a "victory for Greek justice," declaring Insull may now devote himself to industrial development of this country.

They placed Insull on the same legal basis as thousands of Armenian refugees given safe haven in Greece without passports. They are known as "proteges" of the government.

Harness conferred at length today with Prosecutor Anthony Reghanacos, and on his way out of the Grande Bretagne Hotel bumped into Insull, who was strolling in the lobby smoking a cigar. They shook hands and Harness said:

"Congratulations. It was a great victory—for you."

Insull said, dryly:

"Thanks very much."

Insull spent some time in the hotel barber shop having his hair and moustache trimmed and then returned to his room for lunch.

Insull Revels in Regained Freedom

International News Service.

ATHENS, Nov. 1. — (INS.) — "After Washington studies the documents and the verdict, they will consider my case in a different light."

Thus spoke Samuel Insull today as he reveled in his regained freedom following his defeat of the second attempt of the United States government to extradite him to the scene of his commercial rise and fall.

The former Chicago utilities king, fresh from a sound night's sleep, granted an interview to International News Service in his luxurious hotel room, banked high with flowers sent by admirers.

MANY TELEGRAMS

Unable to conceal his delight at what he called his "vindication" of charges of fraudulent bankruptcy, he read a mass of congratulatory telegrams and launched into a discussion of reports the American Department of Justice will not make a third attempt to extradite him. He said:

"I am very glad about that."

His face beamed in sharp contrast to its strained and tired expression during the protracted extradition hearings.

Then he added his belief that study of the facts would cause Washington to regard the whole matter in a "different light."

Insull declared:

"It feels fine to be free, but I am not going to hurry to decide what to do about my freedom."

Flying to Steel Rally

MRS. GIFFORD PINCHOT . . . WARMLY DRESSED FOR FLYING

Pennsylvania's First Lady pictured during her stopover in Pittsburg on her flight from Harrisburg to speak at a steel workers' rally in Gary, Ind. As usual, Mrs. Pinchot was throwing her support to the side of the laboring man. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

MRS. PINCHOT SCORES STEEL

GARY, Ind., Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Governor of Pennsylvania, last night came to this city named for one of the founders of the United States Steel Corporation, and denounced the corporation's record on workers relations.

Mrs. Pinchot addressed an estimated crowd of 2,500 in the Gary armory under the auspices of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of America. She said:

"The day of Gary, Schwab and Taylor is past. The day of tyranny in government is past, and now we must end tyranny in industry."

She said for 30 years the steel corporation had learned nothing and forgotten nothing, adding:

"The American Federation of Labor must provide it an education — grade school, high school and college,—in humanity and economics."

Mrs. Pinchot also declared she favored unemployment insurance, old age pensions and was opposed to child labor.

SAYS HIS BRIDE DAMNED FATE

Julius W. Dieter, 32, of 106 Center avenue, West View a Bellevue, postoffice employe, testified today in his divorce suit against Catherine Dieter, that at their wedding supper his bride threw their marriage certificate on the floor and exclaimed:

"Damn it, I'm married now."

At a Halloween party last year when he was dancing she told him he was "making a fool of himself" and threw a plate of candy at him, the husband told Judge W. Heber Dithrich.

They were married September 13, 1932, the husband said. The wife, 10 years his junior, lives in North avenue, Millvale. Cruelty is charged.

Lindberghs May Go To Holland by Air

PARIS, Nov. 1. — (AP.) — Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh may resume their journey tomorrow by flying to Holland, it was learned today, although the colonel was silent on his plans.

The Americans were received at the City Hall yesterday by the president of the Municipal Council, who presented Mrs. Lindbergh with a book on Paris museums.

GAIETY MARKS HALLOWEEN FETE HERE

Throngs Jam Streets; Mummers Parade; Pranksters Busy

Thousands of Pittsburghers and persons throughout the county were "recuperating" today from last night's carefree celebration of Halloween.

Storekeepers were removing generous layers of soap from their windows, street departments were cleaning up pounds of confetti, heads of the homes were retrieving porch furniture or fixing doorbells, and party-goers were doctoring colds caused by wearing scanty costumes—and what not!

Last night masqueraders crowded dance floors and sidewalks, glowing pumpkin jack-o'-lanterns gleamed in windows, black and yellow decorations ornamented the countryside and witches sailed through the skies and black cats had their heydey, even if the work of decorators.

Parades were held in Bellevue, Dormont, Millvale, Crafton and many other sections of this district. A street dance was held in Oakland. Motorists jammed the highways and streets just to take in "All Hallows Eve."

It was the one night of the year when pranks were looked on good naturedly by parents and officers of the law.

CAN'T DIVORCE DYING WIFE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 1. —(AP.)—A youth's plea for an annulment on the ground that before their marriage his wife had not told him she was dying of tuberculosis has been denied despite the wife's willingness to free her husband.

Supreme Court Justice William F. Bleakley denied the petition late yesterday, ruling that there was no evidence of "active misrepresentation" on the part of Mrs. Helen May Schickler, 21, when she married Fred Schickler.

Mrs. Schickler appeared at the hearing early in October and expressed her willingness to free her husband. Physicians told the court her case of tuberculosis was in advanced stages.

Schickler left his wife about three months after their marriage in the summer of 1931, as soon as he discovered her illness.

BULLET PERILS PRANKSTERS

John Zember, 73, of 209 Carrington street, who, police say, fired a shot into the street because children annoyed him last night, faced arraignment in North Side Police Court today.

Zember told police the children were breaking windows in his home and throwing milk bottles in the street.

Police confiscated a .38 caliber revolver and placed a suspicious person charge against the man.

Masquerader Hits Man With Lead Pipe

Thomas Cash, 26, Negro, of 45 Petuna street, was treated at Passavant Hospital for a scalp laceration, because police said he resented an unidentified Negro in costume jostling his wife, as they walked in Wooster street. The masquerader hit Cash on the head with a piece of lead pipe.

WOMAN SLAIN, HOME SET FIRE,

ROCKPORT, Mass., Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Firemen broke into the burning home of Mrs. Augusta Johnson, 55, today and found the body of Mrs. Johnson lying across a bed. Police said the woman appeared to have been beaten to death and her home set afire.

The medical examiner said a preliminary examination of the body indicated that Mrs. Johnson, whose husband died a year ago, had been beaten on the back of the head with a sharp instrument.

Mrs. Johnson went to a church Halloween social last night and was accompanied home by friends at 10:30. This was the last seen of her. She owned three houses and had paid the taxes on them yesterday, so police believed that if robbery was the primary motive for the crime the murderer got little or nothing.

Lured Here, Girl Charges; Man Held

Upon the testimony of Florence Pope, 19, of Zelienople, that Harvey Murray, 30, of Cleveland, took her from her home to Pittsburgh on a promise of marriage, Murray was held for Federal Court on charges of violating the Mann act. He was arraigned before United States Commissioner B. D. Nicola, in Cleveland.

The eastern high is now centered over Quebec and still covers the country east of the Mississippi River, while the western low pressure has concentrated over Colorado and Western Kansas. There was little change in the weather over the eastern half of the country since yesterday. Foggy weather prevails again over Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia and cloudiness is developing over the southern states. The weather now is producing cloudiness rain and snow in the Rocky Mountain states, but the skies are clear on the eastern side of the disturbance. There was little change in temperature except over the Rocky Mountain states where it is much colder than yesterday.

3 DIE AS TANK COLLAPSES

TIVERTON, R. I., Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Three men were killed, a fourth was reported missing and five were injured today as a huge new tank collapsed at the plant of the New England Terminal Company. Shortly afterward four other tanks, filled with oil, burst into flame. The loss from the ensuing fire was expected to reach $300,000.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—An explosion set fire to a 10,000-barrel oil well, the Russell Petroleum Company's No. 1 Reno, 11 blocks from Oklahoma City's business district, today.

The blast tore out the well's connections, loosing a roaring column of oil and gas that shot high into the air and ignited.

Fire Chief George Goff quickly ordered surrounding wells shut down. Six wells are within a 100-yard radius of the fire.

A shift of the wind to the north, Chief Goff said, probably would ignite a battery of tanks belonging to Oils, Inc.

CHURCH RACKET LAID TO GIRL BY PASTOR

Calendar Hoax Victim, Minister Testifies; Suspect Held

The Rev. Dr. G. Arthur Fry, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, North Side, appeared in Central Police Court today, against a young woman accused by police of being connected with a church calendar "racket."

The woman, Florence Latier, 27, who rooms in Cleveland avenue, Avalon, was remanded to jail by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg, while detectives seek two other women and two men.

Miss Latier is charged with violating a city ordinance in soliciting advertising without being registered. She is held in $1,000 bail.

PASTOR TESTIFIES

Dr. Fry testified that on representation of another young woman, he had signed an agreement two weeks ago for a supply of church calendars which were to have pictures of his church and himself on the front cover and would list meetings and activities of his church.

She and other representatives of the "Pastor's Publishing Service," New York, then posed as members of his congregation, the clergyman testified, and obtained advertisements from members of his parish. The hoax was discovered, he said, when a man posing as "Dr. Wood," called up the church treasurer.

'MAKING A SURVEY'

Miss Latier testified she was employed to make a survey and obtain church membership lists.

Detective John Dean produced 100 slips purporting to show that in some instances money had been collected in advance for advertising in the calendars.

Two other churches had been victimized by the same group, he testified.

Following the hearing Dr. made informations before Magistrate Rothenberg against Latier, a Miss Rush, Fae a "Dr. Wood" and S. Olick, ing them with conspiracy t and defraud.

RAILROAD, COAL FIRM FACING U. S. CHARGES

The Pittsburgh Coal Company and the Montour Railroad Company, with offices in the Oliver building, were charged with unfair competition in a suit filed by the government late yesterday in Federal Court.

The government seeks to have the railroad restrained from transporting in interstate commerce coal mined by the coal company, except such as it needs for its own business.

United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld's bill of complaint, filed under the direction of the Attorney General, declares the coal company owns all the outstanding capital stock of the railroad company, consisting of 102,000 shares, except 33 shares of which the coal company is equitable owner.

RATES ASSAILED

For many years, it is charged, the railroad company purchased its coal for locomotive fuel purposes exclusively from the coal company at prices considerably higher than those for which coal of similar quality could have been obtained from competing companies.

The government says the railroad in the last three years transported annually at an unfair rate approximately 4,000,000 tons of bituminous coal mined by the coal company.

It charges that six of eight persons comprising the board of directors of the railroad company are also directors of the coal company, and the two concerns have connecting and communicating offices in the same building.

DEBT GUARANTOR

The coal company is guarantor without security for payment of the funded debt of the railroad company, which consists of a first mortgage bond issue in the sum of $1,620,000, the complaint continues.

Many of the officers and employes of the railroad company are also on the payroll of the coal company, the bill charges.

It also says the railroad company furnishes a copy of its daily "loaded interchange report" to the executive vice president of the coal company, which discloses the names of the customers of each coal producer located on the railroad company's line.

DODGING CHARGED

[illegible] information disclosing private information is in violation of Section 15 of the Interstate Commerce Act, the government alleges.

The bill asserts the coal company, by virtue of its ownership of the railroad company's capital stock, files a consolidated federal income tax return for itself, the railroad and other subsidiaries, in which the profits of the railroad company are computed with losses from operation of the coal company, thus defeating the federal revenue laws and depriving the government of income taxes.

The railroad company operates lines from Montour Junction to Longview Junction, Groveton to Coon Run, Library Junction to Clowden, and North Star Junction to North Star, with an aggregate distance of 53.55 miles, and also has short joint trackage rights with the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway, the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad and the Pennsylvania Railroad.

CHARGES SICK WARD LODGED WITH OTHERS

A Juvenile Court ward who had spent five years at Leech farm was taken from the city institution, placed in a foster home with other children, and permitted to sleep with four other persons in a badly ventilated room, county investigators charged today. This ward, a boy, received no personal visits from the Juvenile Court worker assigned to the case from June, 1931, until April 10, 1933, according to Leo A. Riordan, chief county investigator.

HOME REOPENED

The foster home in which the sickly, undernourished lad was placed was one of the homes Judge Benjamin Lencher closed because of complaints, but which he later reopened, Riordan charged.

Riordan said the ward was taken from Leech farm in June, 1931, and placed in the foster home in Reserve Township. It was not until April 10, 1933, that the court worker next saw the boy, Riordan declared. The worker had made many visits to the home but had never seen the boy, he added.

County investigators had the home closed last July after they had verified complaints that the child was not receiving milk, and slept in an attic with three other wards and a man.

JUDGE'S ANSWER

Judge Lencher a few days ago said that no home which has been permanently closed has been reopened. He said two were closed temporarily, but opened by him after he had found the faults remedied.

Riordan expects to bring the attention of the County Commissioners to the reopening of homes in a report to be submitted this week.

MOTHER 'STAR WITNESS' AT 80

Mrs. Elizabeth Knopsnyder, 80, of near Scottdale, was a government witness at a hearing before the United States commissioner at which her son, George W. Knopsnyer, 42, was accused of forging her name to three government compensation checks. He was discharged.

The aged woman, mother of 17, said it was her first trip to Pittsburgh, although she had lived nearby all her life. She testified her son had not authorized her son Kaufman her name to the checks Ba[illegible]ded, but admitted he had La[illegible]nnment vouchers.

After several members of the family testified, the commissioner decided the evidence failed to establish that the son had not been authorized to sign and cash the checks.

STRIKERS DEFY CAPTIVE MINE PEACE

journed, Hynes expressed the hope that none of the operators would attempt to reopen their pits pending the delegation's trip to Washington. He expressed the belief that the miners would obey a personal mandate from President Roosevelt.

RECOGNITION DEMANDED

The committee, it was declared, seeks amplification of the captive mine agreement and assurance from President Roosevelt himself that it means union recognition.

Ryan said:

"We have 90 per cent of the miners enrolled as United Mine Workers and we want these men recognized before they re-enter the pits."

The meeting was closed to all except official representatives of the locals at captive mines. Newspapermen were barred.

In the street outside the meeting hall several score miners gathered to support their local representatives. The sentiment among these men is against working under existing agreements.

One of the strikers said:

"How can we go back under such an agreement. We know what would happen to us as soon as we went back—we'd have the bosses and all the company men down on us, and if we were lucky enough to get a job, it'd be the dirtiest one in the mine."

NEW MEN HIRED

The men say that the Frick company has employed new men to go into the mines in their places. There seems to be no question about the company taking all of them back "without discrimination" in accordance with the agreement, but they insist the company at the same time would hire enough new men to outnumber them.

Ryan and a delegation were in Washington last week, and left petitions at the White House and with Gen. Hugh C. Johnson, Recovery Administrator. Ryan did not see the President at the time, the latter being confined to his room with a cold.

Prior to the meeting Hynes said:

"I understand the disappointment of the men over the pact.

"But if they do not go back to work, the union is doomed in the Connellsville coke region and in other captive mines."

Hynes added that the men must accept the pact as the best under the circumstances, saying:

"We have to take what the federal government gives us. It is more than we had before. And if we refuse to go back to work, it will give the Frick company and other captive mine owners the opportunity to replace staunch union men with nonunion workers."

MINES TO REOPEN

The Frick company last night posted a notice, signed by Thomas Moses, president, asserting the mines would reopen when the employes were assured of protection.

Sheriff Harry E. Hackney declared he would supply as many deputies as were needed.

The Frick notice states that all employes would be taken back without discrimination, that the management of each mine will continue to discuss matters with representatives elected under the employes' representation plan, that as soon as peace is restored the National Labor Board will assume jurisdiction over new elections, when the men will choose their representatives—employes or not employes, and promised that "we will deal with individuals so chosen as representatives of our employes."

Representatives of the Workman's Brotherhood, company union, reported a marked increase in the number of applications for membership yesterday and boasted that by the time elections are held at the mines they, instead of the United Mine Workers, would be in the majority.

Pickets maintained their stand [illegible] disturbances. Halloween [illegible]unts were blamed for shots [illegible] over the heads of pickets at [illegible]es Run and Edenborn.

DOLLS PATTERN NO. 505

Pickaninny Dolls Are Favorites

No little girl's assortment of dolls is complete unless it contains at least one pickaninny doll. This mammy doll with the pickaninny would receive a hearty welcome in any doll family. The dolls are simple to make and the clothes fit any regulation 14-inch doll. This pair would be an agreeable surprise at the doll booth of the fair, or under the Christmas tree.

Pattern 505 comes to you with a transfer pattern of the doll, a pattern for both costumes, and directions for making the dolls and clothes, and also the hair comb.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Revelers Jam Morgue To View Sewer Victim

stiff shirts marched into the morgue. Truck loads of curious from distant points also trekked in.

While the vast majority of the visitors were on hand to give vent to their curiosity, there were others who marched up the steps with serious intent.

Many carried photographs of girls who have been missing or who have not been heard from recently. Others were certain of the identity of the girl on the slab. Detectives listened to their stories and traced them down, but got nowhere.

SLEUTHS STUMPED

Again detectives fine-combed the files of the Missing Persons Bureau, but with no better success than before.

The failure of so many thousand people to identify the mystery girl puzzles the squad of county detectives who have been assigned to the investigation. The case, they say, from an identification standpoint, is without a parallel here.

In life, they argue, the girl must have had a few acquaintances. What happened to them? Where are they? And why haven't they made an appearance? These are just a few of the many questions that can't be answered.

CLUES ARE FEW

Clues are scarce. A cheap muslin undergarment, blood-stained and punctured by a bullet, in which the body was clad when it was dragged from the sewer, and the imitation ring that decorated one of the fingers on the left hand are all police have with which to work.

No working girl was this mystery girl, sleuths say. Soft hands, unblemished by hard work, and well cared for nails lead police to the conclusion that she had not done housework and was not a factory employe.

A little known place is the Allegheny River boulevard, and detectives believe that whoever dropped her into a sewer there knew the location well. Moreover, supporting this theory is the time element. Coroner's physicians reported she had been dead only six hours when her body was discovered. She was found an hour before noon, indicating she had been stuffed into the sewer shortly before daylight Monday morning. Police argue that murderers do not ride around with women clad only in undergarments.

Theories of the murder are many. Homicide Detective Frank Morgan thinks it might have a connection with the murder of John Aliberti. Peter Connors, the county sleuth, thinks she was slain by an angry or jealous husband or suitor.

Miners Ask to Drop Rockefeller Union

DENVER, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Colorado Fuel and Iron Company officials have under consideration a request by employes of the company's six coal mines to abandon the so-called Rockefeller plan under which they bargained collectively for almost 20 years.

The miners have been seeking an increase in wages under the NRA code, and they wish the aid of the United Mine Workers of America. They said unless they affiliate with that organization they cannot obtain its support.

FORD'S LABOR STAND AWAITED

speaking tour, proposed especially to quiet dissent in the farm west. Unless something intervened, he planned to start Saturday, talking first in Chicago. Announcement of the route was postponed for last-minute changes.

Ford's Right to Sell U. S. Rests on Labor Stand

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(INS.)—The Ford Motor Company's right to bid on government contracts today hinged directly on Henry Ford's treatment of demands made by strikers at assembly plants in Edgewater, N. J., and Chester, Pa.

Senator Robert F. Wagner (Dem.), of New York, chairman of the National Labor Board, holds Ford has not "bargained" with the strikers to date, but has merely let subordinates hear their demands.

The board has withdrawn mediators both from Chester and Edgewater.

Johnson charged last week that Edsel Ford, president of the company, told him the firm never would submit to any arrangement "looking toward collective bargaining," in the sense the right is guaranteed to workers by the National Industrial Recovery Act.

President Roosevelt is expected to issue an executive order defining the word "bargain," as used in the Recovery Act, to mean something more than merely meeting with workers and not granting any reasonable concessions demanded.

Under the terms of such an order Ford would be a violator of the automobile code if he did not "bargain" with workers within a reasonable time.

Ex-Duquesne Head Will Mark Jubilee

NORWALK, Conn., Nov. 1.—The Very Rev. Martin A. Hehir, head of the senior scholasticate of the Holy Ghost Order in Ferndale, will observe the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination November 21.

Prior to his resignation in 1930, Father Hehir was president of Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, for 31 years. A number of former Duquesne students are expected to attend the ceremonies.

Cavalry to Mark 23rd Anniversary

Marking the twenty-third anniversary of the founding of Troop H, First Pennsylvania Cavalry, in Coraopolis, the third annual reunion of the organization will be held at the Fort Pitt Hotel tomorrow night.

Speakers will be Brig. Gen. A. J. Logan, Gen C. B. Menard, Judge W. Heber Dithrich, Capt. James Firestone and Lieut. John H. Shenkel. Col. C. C. McGovern will preside.

James Roosevelts Sailing for Home

NAPLES, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—James Roosevelt, son of the American President, and Mrs. Roosevelt sailed for New York today aboard the Rex.

CUBAN FIGHTING FATAL TO BOY

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—A 10-year-old boy was killed today during frequent street shootings which marked the political-labor strike which went into effect at midnight and is scheduled to end at the same hour tonight.

Strikers and strike-breakers mixed in fighting, which saw many vehicles overturned in the streets.

An ice truck driver, Antonio Reina, shot and killed Rafael Jerez, 10, during an affray in which Reina was wounded.

Practically all commerce was tied up. Newspapers did not appear on the streets. Soldiers were confined to barracks by order of the authorities. Rolando Soria, Communist leader, and Jose Arroyo, a newspaperman, were arrested.

A crisis in the opposition to the government was believed near.

Fernando Ortiz, revolutionary leader, declared a government representing "all forces of public opinion was indispensible."

WORLD'S GOLD PRICE UP

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—A jump in the price of gold, both here and abroad, today accompanied President Roosevelt's preparations for quick application for his plan intended to lift commodity prices by purchasing the yellow metal on European markets.

The administration advanced its fixed price for RFC purchases of newly-mined domestic gold to $32.26, 14 cents above yesterday and a new high.

Meanwhile, the London bullion quotation increased from $31.05 yesterday to $31.52 today, both figures translated into dollars at the day's opening rate of exchange.

Thus, while the domestic price yesterday stood $1.07 higher than the world's price, the margin today was reduced to 74 cents.

While officials evinced a determination to go ahead with the gold purchases as quickly as the necessary arrangements could be made, they were watching, nevertheless, for official indication of Great Britain's reaction to the plan, involving, as it does, dealings in foreign exchange.

American Exports Above Year Ago

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(INS.)—American exports to 31 out of 40 countries increased in September, as compared with the same month last year, the Department of Commerce announced today.

For the nine months ending September 30 exports to 14 countries were greater than in the corresponding period the previous year.

TUBE CITY BANK PLANS O. K.'D

A new bank to take over the assets of the Union National Bank of McKeesport has been approved by the Comptroller of the Currency, according to word from Washington.

The new institution will be known as the First National Bank, at McKeesport, and will have capital of $200,000 and surplus of $25,000. This amount will be raised by the sale of common stock at $56.25 a share.

Seventy per cent of the deposits in the old bank are to be made available to depositors as soon as the new bank is opened. The remaining 30 per cent is in slow assets which in the opinion of R. M. Baldridge, conservator, will eventually be paid in full.

More than one-fourth of the new stock has been subscribed by those who signed the application for the new charter.

GROCERY FIRM HEAD DIES

CHARLEROI, Pa., Nov. 1.—Blaine B. Fox, 48, national president of the Clover Farm Stores Corporation and chief adviser to the National Recovery Administration on retail and grocery codes, died yesterday.

Death was attributed to a liver complaint, superinduced by exhaustion after four and one-half days of constant hiccoughing due to irritation of the diaphragm.

He was president of Fox Grocery Company, of Charleroi and Uniontown, one of the largest wholesale plants in the United States.

He became ill two weeks ago, after returning from a conference with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator.

TROLLEY RIDER HURT IN CRASH

Mrs. Clara Adams, 23, of 1920 Ormsby avenue, a passenger on a Carrick street car, suffered several fractured ribs early today when she was jostled to the floor of the car after it collided with an automobile at Bausman street and Brownsville road.

The automobile, driven, according to police, by George Cassidy, of 677½ Climax street, was overturned, tieing up traffic for several minutes. Cassidy escaped injury. He was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

Evangelist's Aide To Address Meet

Homer Rodeheaver, song leader who traveled for 20 years with the Rev. Billy Sunday, will address delegates to the Southwestern Pennsylvania Christian Endeavor convention, to be held Friday and Saturday in Wilkinsburg.

M'NAIR SCORES HERRON ON LAND DEAL

Mayor Herron is now receiving rentals of $1,200 a year on a piece of property worth $25,000 which cost him nothing and which was obtained from the Mellon-dominated Pennsylvania Railroad through an official of Flinn Real Estate Company at a time when the Flinn garbage company, the American Reduction Company, was under charges of having in its possession over $1,000,000 belonging rightfully to the city of Pittsburgh.

"It is a closed incident. I refuse to discuss it, says Mayor Herron when asked to deny that at the time the Flinn garbage concern was the subject of a sensational investigation, he was in partnership with Flinn's confidential real estate aide.

GARBAGE CONTRACT

"It is a closed incident. I refuse to discuss it, says Mayor Herron when asked if it were true that coincident with his boasted honorable career in Council the cost of collecting the city's garbage had increased from $437,000 to $1,700,000—an increase of over 400 per cent while the actual population of the city increased but 20 per cent.

"It is a closed incident. I refuse to discuss it, says Mayor Herron when asked to deny that he was responsible for the rehiring of the Controller's cost accountant whose neglect permitted the Flinn garbage concern to overbill and overcollect from the City of Pittsburgh a sum amounting to over $1,000,000, according to the City Controller, over $600,000 of which the Flinn firm had to return to the City Treasurer.

"Last year, when Mayor Herron's predecessor in office was being called upon to explain his conduct as chief executive of the city, Mr. Herron, then president of Council, aided and abetted by Councilman W. Y. English, did everything in his power to prevent the investigation that followed.

ENGLISH SCORED

"Almost momentarily, we expect English, the great defender of public officials, to rush to the defense of Mayor Herron with a fervid 'Father forgive them, they know not what they do.' But Mr. English, whose career in Council parallels that of Mr. Herron, both careers being paralleled by the steady rise in the cost of collecting the city's garbage from $437,000 in 1918 to $1,700,000 in 1931, would much rather discuss his proposal to add to the city's income by taxing washing machines.

"The Pennsylvania Railroad, on whose board of directors sits Mr. R. B. Mellon, is, and has been for years, the most dominant element in Republican politics and Republican government in the State of Pennsylvania."

P. O. PATRONAGE OUSTER DENIED

Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic national committeeman, told a delegation of New Castle citizens yesterday that no postmaster will be removed without just cause until his term expires. The committee called at Guffey's office in the interest of Mrs. Frances Brashear, postmistress at West Pittsburgh, a widow with two children, whose term expires next July.

Mrs. Brashear was told by Wilbur J. Bear, Democratic patronage dispenser in the New Castle district, the committee said, that her appointment would be invalid when a new civil service examination is held.

Citizens of West Pittsburgh are circulating a petition to be presented to Postmaster General Farley asking that Mrs. Brashear be permitted to serve until the end of her term.

COUNCIL CANDIDATES ANSWER QUESTIONNAIRE

THE QUESTIONS:

Do you favor and will you work for, if you do, the taxing of real estate of public utilities?

Do you favor the extension of the graded tax law to the county and school districts?

Do you approve the present system of one-year garbage disposal contracts, which appear to provide a monopoly through virtual elimination of competitive bidding? If you do not, what changes in the system do you have to suggest? Will you do anything about it?

Will you use what influence you have in the Legislature to create limited dividend housing corporations through which the city might act with private individuals to speedily eliminate slum districts?

Do you believe city taxes can be decreased in the face of revenue deficits because of tax delinquencies? Do you believe taxes must be increased if delinquents do not more speedily pay their taxes? What plans have you for municipal financing due to the inability of the city to collect taxes from many property owners?

Do you favor consolidation of the city and county tax assessment boards, a question which rests with the Legislature, but can be influenced by the attitude of city officials?

Do you favor consolidation of the city and county welfare departments?

If you think street car, gas and electric rates are too high, what, if anything, could or would you as a city councilman do to reduce charges?

THE ANSWERS:

Three candidates for City Council on the Republican ticket have submitted answers to a series of municipal questions placed before them by the Sun-Telegraph. A fourth, George S. Oliver, made no reply. Mr. Oliver explained that conditions were so unsettled that he would not be able to make definite commitments. He said it was his invariable practice not to make promises which later developments might make impossible of fulfillment.

Former Mayor William A. Magee, candidate on both the Democratic and Republican tickets, made these answers:

Harry A. Little

1. We get our authority to levy taxes from the state and as the state must have revenue to provide for the schools, hospitals, insane asylums, prisons, State Department of Public Health and various other things that require revenue, the state taxes public utilities to obtain a portion of this necessary revenue. If a substitute can be found to provide necessary revenue for the state, to take the place of that which might be diverted to the city from the public utilities, we would be very glad indeed to secure this additional revenue, but a certain amount of money is required for both state and city purposes and this amount comes from the taxpayer in one form or another.

2—No. The graded tax was never intended to apply to farm land or large estates. It has always been advanced that the graded tax law would stimulate building and as we have many hundreds of idle buildings now, I can see no advantage in the extension of the graded tax to the county school districts.

3—Yes, I do favor the present one-year contract, because of the present conditions and the unsettled conditions of the labor market. A five-year contract at this time would be more or less hazardous. With a one-year contract we have been able to bring down the cost of garbage and rubbish collections in the past three years more than $600,000.

4—We would be very happy to lend whatever assistance we might have that would not obligate the city financially. We have been told that this money is a federal loan and must be repaid. While it would be a fine thing to have our old and antiquated buildings razed and new ones replace them, yet the city itself would have to be free from financial responsibility in this respect. It should be throughly understood that the repayment of any money secured from the federal government for this purpose could only be made by placing additional taxes to take care of the sinking fund and interest charges thereon, thus adding additional burden upon the taxpayers.

5—No. We have fixed responsibilities—25 cents out of every dollar now goes for interest and sinking fund charges. We have reduced the cost of government in the last three years more than $6,600,000 and we did it without selling anybody's property for delinquent taxes. In the final analysis the city must receive a certain amount of money in order to function, which comes to the treasury from one source or another. At the present time we receive approximately $13,000,000 from taxes on real estate and the balance, approximately $5,000,000, from other sources. If we can provide additional revenue from other sources the present burden could be relieved proportionately on real estate. It is our hope to bring this about. We will, undoubtedly, receive a great deal more money next year than we did during the present year from the liquor licenses, which at one time amounted to more than $1,000,000 per year.

6—I am not particularly concerned about the consolidation but I do think valuations should be uniform and that co-operation in the highest degree should be given by both bodies.

7—That will require considerable thought, as we had that problem before the Legislature last year and complications arose which could not then be adjusted. It must be remembered that the city takes care of insane as well as the county, and it seems to me that some arrangement should be made for the consolidation of the homes, and we will try to bring that about, but the city has so many cases that they must look after that it might be just a little more humane and friendly for these unfortunates if the city would take care of its own indigents, especially as very little saving would result from this particular phase of consolidation.

8—The city has negotiated with the light company in connection with electric light rates, and while in the opinion of some people they are still high, yet we were successful in securing a very substantial reduction therein. It must be understood by the general public that the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is charged with the fixing of all rates of this nature. In reference to street car fares, we have a Traction Conference Board, on which the city has two representatives, the boroughs and the townships one and the street railways company one. One of the city's representatives is Chairman of the Board, Charles A. Finley, a former director of the Department of Public Works under former Mayor William A. Magee. Magee is now the solicitor for the Traction Conference Board. I am sure if in their opinion a reduction can be brought about they will be very happy to take such steps as will accomplish such reduction.

Frank L. Duggan

1—As our authority to levy taxes comes from the state, it would take an act of Legislature to permit our city to levy taxes on the real estate of public utilities. The question arises, if we were empowered to tax their real estate, would not the bill eventually be paid by the public in the cost of service rendered to them by the utility companies?

2—I do not think that the graded tax law was ever intended to be applied to farm lands or to those holding large estates in the country. With the number of idle buildings in the city now, I think our first duty to the owners is to try to get some relief for them.

3—At the present time, I am in favor of a one-year contract. I have collected some interesting data pertaining to the removal of garbage and rubbish in other cities. As this is one of the major services rendered by our city to its thousands of families, the contract which the city enters into, should be one which will assure the people a type of service on par with that now being given by the companies having the present contract.

4—Personally, I am very much in favor of the elimination of the so-called "slum districts" of our city. It is fundamentally wrong, that men, women and children, in this enlightened age, should be forced to live in homes that are unfit and devoid of all modern sanitation and conveniences. I would be glad to cooperate with any group of private citizens or organizations to help eliminate the slum districts.

5—No, one of the major duties confronting our administration is to find some way to have those who are delinquent, pay into the treasury the money which is now due our city. In many states and cities they are trying to stimulate these delinquents by exonerating them from paying the penalty, and this has brought some very good results.

6—Perhaps much good will come out of this consolidation, but I think it most important that assessments and valuations in the city and county be uniform.

7—We now have approximately 58,000 families in Allegheny County on the welfare list, and as this is one of the real problems confronting all municipalities, the one thought is how economically can these departments be operated. There should be no overlapping, because every dollar must be made to count. Just how advantageous a consolidation of the city and county welfare departments would be, is a matter which will require considerable thought and study by some very efficient group of men and women familiar with this type of work.

8—Pittsburgh's rank as a manufacturing city has been built on the rock of cheap power, and if we are to retain our position as one of the greatest industrial cities of this world, we must be able to furnish power to the diversified interests in this district at a rate comparable or lower than that of competitive cities. The street car fares, I believe, are in step with those in other cities comparable to Pittsburgh. I believe we have many conditions which make transportation by far, more expensive than in any other city of the country, and we must not forget that it is the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania which has the last say in what the rates should be in this city.

W. Y. English

1—The State laws should permit the city to tax real estate of public utilities the same as other real estate is taxed. No doubt this involves the amount of revenue the state now obtains from public utility companies. If the state insist in holding on to such revenue, the chances are the final result would be an increase in cost to the people of Pittsburgh. We could expect the utility companies to pass on to the public any increase in their taxes whether the increase is paid to the state or to the city.

2—No, this should not be attempted in these times of depression, doubt and uncertainty. There is too much rural land outside the city. It would undoubtedly increase the amount of money the city taxpayers would have to pay to the county under the present tax system if this change were attempted. It would also upset the county and school board systems. Any upset of tax system, particularly at this time is a very serious matter for the reason that the state limits school and city taxes to real estate while the county has other taxables. The state has reserved to itself all the revenue from gasoline, auto licenses, etc., which should be shared with the city, county and school board.

3—This is one of the hardest problems the city has to meet. If we make a long term contract which must be based on wages and costs prevailing at the time of making, either the city or the contractor is liable to either great profit or great loss. No one can guess or predict with a fair decree of certainty what conditions will be over a long term. If the contractor suffers loss and fails in business the city might be compelled to expend greater sums in carrying out the contract in order to take care of such emergencies pending a new arrangement. If the wages and other items of cost are reduced during a long term contract the contractor will make excess profit and the city will be chagrined at its bad bargain. If the city had made a long term contract three or four years ago, when wages and other costs were high, we might not be in position to have effected any savings at all with the drop in prices due to the depression. In my opinion the honest administration and control of a cost-plus contract seems to be the best solution for this kind of business. As a health measure the removal and disposal of garbage is a public necessity and the cost of such work requires so much money. If the city undertakes the work a large capital investment will be necessary. If a new company comes into the field it must make a large investment. The location of incineration plants within the city limits or adjacent thereto for keeping down the cost of hauling is the greatest obstacle in this problem because the transportation from the homes to the plant is the greatest item of cost. Under the present disturbed conditions, a one-year contract would seem to be desirable. However, I am not opposed to a long term contract, whether it be five years or 10 years.

4—I would favor any financial plan to eliminate slum districts. Permit me to point out that the state constitution prohibits the city from loaning its credit to any private business enterprise. It will require some new legislation before the city could attempt anything on a large scale, but I think it can be done.

5—I doubt whether much can be done toward any substantial reduction at this time. Of course, every effort will be made to cut out unnecessary items from the budget. There are certain city activities which might be curtailed or restricted, but too much of this is dangerous. The future cost might be increased. For example, street repair and repaving must not be neglected now just to make an apparent showing of tax reduction. One or two neglected streets might so disintegrate as to require a big increase for an entirely new street or streets in two or three years. Naturally that kind of economy is unworthy of any government. I am opposed to any increase in taxes. However, I do not know just what we will have to meet until the budget is presented, and I hesitate to make any statement until I have something definite before me on which an honest and intelligent statement could be made. Some municipal financing will be attempted but it has not yet been worked out. The city has the matter up with the Attorney General and the Governor now in its request for the Governor to broaden his call for the special session of the Legislature so as to include some such proposal.

6—This consolidation will come with the adoption of the constitutional amendment for the Metropolitan Plan. In any event the city and county assessments of property should be identical. I am not quite ready to surrender the city's system in favor of the county's. All the statements I have seen so far suggest that the county should absorb the city assessment board in order to save the overhead cost of the city board. I do not condemn this but I have not seen any evidence that the county system is better or less expensive than the city's, and until I have been convinced that this is true I must keep my mind open on this question. I will say, however, that the city being over 60 per cent of the county and furnishing over 60 per cent of the county's revenues, some real consideration should be given before scrapping the city's assessment business in favor of the county's.

I hesitate to commit myself unreservedly to any plan which might take away any connection with or control of the city over the Board of Assessment because the assessment valuation of taxable real property is the foundation of the city's credit.

7—I have no objection to this consolidation provided it can be worked out in fairness to the city and the county. If the city turns over millions of valuable property to the county or vice versa on which bonds are outstanding, due credit and proper accounting should be made.

8—This is too big a question to answer in any letter. The city is restricted by the state laws controlling the Public Service Commission. We expended thousands of dollars fighting rate cases and the result was good in some cases and not so good in others. To get around such costs and delays the city made the traction conference agreement. I think we were making good progress under that agreement until the depression upset the entire business. The city authorities are handicapped by reason of the franchises which were granted many years ago. We have obtained a number of reductions in rates by patient negotiations, but until and unless the specific power is placed in the city we must depend on the Public Service Commission, which is controlled by state laws. I am of the opinion that city or state control and an honest administration of a cost-plus plan is the proper way to handle public necessities such as you mention. When any company is given monopoly or franchise by the public authorities the public should have a right to examine the books and see that fair dealing is the rule. If capital investment can be assured of getting repaid for money put up to operate and in addition also receive a fair return on the investment, financial exploitation and guessing and gambling for big profits, grafting, etc., is or should be removed.

This is the exact status of the traction conference agreement, which is the first noble experiment along this line in the United States. It has at least assured the people of Pittsburgh a continuous operation of street car transportation on a lot of unprofitable lines, which are only kept going because this agreement ties the unprofitable lines up with the money-making lines.

There is another alternative and that is to put into the original franchise a clause granting to the city the right to check the books to see if the city is getting its fair share of a small percentage of the gross, not net revenue of the corporation. You will find this noble experiment in the franchise ordinance of the Allegheny County Steam Heating Company.

William A. Magee

I am in favor of taxing the real estate of public utility companies in the city, boroughs, townships and counties, since they receive the same benefit from municipal expenditure which other property owners enjoy.

I am in favor of the extension of the graded tax law to the school district for the sake of uniformity with the present law governing the city.

I do not approve the present system of one-year garbage and rubbish contracts. I would favor the municipal ownership of incinerators but not their operation. I would have competitive bidding for operation or would entertain proposals for a 10-year contract if the contractor would stipulate to convey his plants to the city at the end of the period, he having amortized the investment over the period of the contract.

I favor the passage of laws by the state authorizing limited dividend housing corporations with power of eminent domain as a means to eliminate slum districts.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has held on a number of occasions that a city tax is in the nature of a debt which the city may sue for and collect through the ordinary processes of execution. The city officers should make a survey of tax delinquencies for the purpose of distinguishing between the voluntary and the involuntary delinquents. It might be assumed that those who receive income out of their property through rents are not involuntarily delinquent. They could be sued in the ordinary way and the rents attached. Now that delinquencies in the total have reached huge proportions, such a policy may bring in a sufficiently large sum annually from back taxes to prevent any increase in the tax levy and improve in other respects the credit of the city.

I favor the consolidation of all city and county activities unless constitutional objection would intervene: Welfare Departments, Tax Assessment Boards, Treasurers, Deed Registers, Sealers of Weights and Measures, Bridge Maintenance Bureaus, etc. Plans to this end should receive consideration in connection with the Metropolitan district charter if the constitutional amendment should be adopted at the November election.

The answer to the question of whether a utility rate is high can be obtained only by a long and intricate calculation of certain factors: The value of the plant, the amounts necessary to operate it, including allowances for depreciation, and the fair return or profit which the law allows to the owners of property devoted to the public use. The city during the past few years has been wrongly advised as to the expense of making such investigations and the amount of time needed to be spent in litigation before the Public Service Commission.

I favor the employment of a small staff of competent persons technically versed in utility processes to advise the City Council and the public from time to time whether the various street railway, gas, electric and telephone rates are or are not justified. I have certain ideas of my own with reference to present rates but they are founded upon generalities. As a responsible public officer I would want the facts before assuming an active attitude.

The traffic problem is principally a question of eliminating the through traffic from the downtown streets. The Citizens Committee on City Plan indicated the solution of that many years ago. It consists of linking up certain streets and boulevards into what the city planners call the inner and outer traffic circuits so that the through traffic, amounting to nearly 50 per cent of the total, could by-pass the business district.

Lillian Moore, Film Actress, Recovering

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1.—(INS.)—Lillian Moore, film actress, today was recovering satisfactorily from an appendectomy.

BAN ON POLL TAX INDORSED

Congressman Henry Ellenbogen today indorsed State Constitutional Amendment No. 5, which abolishes the tax qualification for voting.

The amendment, he said, is the most important to be voted on next Tuesday. He said:

"The law as it stands gives a powerful weapon to the political machine, and the machine has never been slow to take advantage of this situation. Unless we pass this amendment we shall continue to encourage the purchase of votes and prevent thousands of people voting at all because of the hardships involved in standing in line, first for the purpose of being assessed for the poll tax, and then again for the purpose of paying the tax."

County Commission Denied Welfare Pay

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 1.—(INS.)—Holding Lawrence County commissioners are not entitled to any remuneration for serving also as poor directors, an opinion by Judge R. L. Hildebrand, handed down in a taxpayers' suit, today surcharged the 1931 commissioners with salaries they drew that year as welfare heads.

The ruling surcharges P. O. Elder, T. J. McCullough and C. C. Boyd, who served with $600 each.

Tried in Court, Biting Dog Gets Life Term

WHITE LAKE, N. J., Nov. 1.—(INS.)—When a dog bites a man it's not news, so they say!

But when they arrest the dog and try him in solemn court with a jury, a judge and attorneys for the defense and prosecution and everything, it must rate some attention.

Anyhow, Farmer Sutton's dog, Rex, known as the "canine menace of Widow Meyer Mountain," today was the first animal on record to be so tried and sentenced to life imprisonment in his back yard because he was a little indiscreet in his bites.

Altoona Councilman, Ex-Senator, Dies

ALTOONA, Pa., Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Enos M. Jones, member of Altoona City Council and a former state senator, is dead at the age of 60.

He died from a hemorrhage at his summer cottage at Point View yesterday. His widow and two daughters survive.

P. J. SULLIVAN, REED BACK HERRON

Former Congressman P. J. Sullivan, who supported Councilman P. J. McArdle for the Republican nomination for Mayor at the primaries, today came out for Mayor John S. Herron.

Sullivan announced that he and his friends in the Sixth Ward were "still Republicans and would function as such" in the election next Tuesday.

Senator David A. Reed today said previous engagements would keep him away from the Republican mass meeting in Duquesne Garden Friday night, and at the same time urged the election of Mayor Herron.

Reed said he believed Mayor Herron, whose "integrity is admitted by everyone," will be elected by a decisive majority, and that his administration will prove to be one of the best in the history of Pittsburgh.

Louis Wechsler, in the primaries a candidate for City Council on the ticket with Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, today said he was supporting Herron. Mackrell is back of William N. McNair, the Democratic candidate. Theodore H. Doehla, chairman for Mackrell in the Twenty-sixth Ward, also announced for Herron. Both said they were regular Republicans, and believe all the party should abide by the primary result.

DUGGAN URGES G. O. P. SUPPORT

Frank L. Duggan, city councilman seeking re-election, and Edward G. Lang, director of the city Department of Public Works, asked for the election of the entire Republican city and county slate next week. They spoke at the noon-day meeting in Republican headquarters. Duggan specifically spoke for a councilmanic slate to support Mayor John S. Herron who, he predicted, is certain to win.

Director Lang declared that Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic leader, was obscuring the real issues of the campaign by declaring the Republicans are obstructing the NRA.

Women Voters Ask Troopers at Polls

HARRISBURG, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—State police protection at Pittsburgh polling places election day was sought today through petitions presented to Gov. Pinchot.

Mrs. Hazel G. Schrader, chairman of the Independent Republican Women of Pittsburgh, brought the petition to the capitol.

TRAFFIC ESSAY JUDGES NAMED

Thirty educational and civic leaders of Pittsburgh will be judges for the Better Traffic Committee's seventh annual traffic essay contest, which closed in public and parochial schools of the city last week. More than 85,000 children submitted essays.

Prize award exercises will be held in Syria Mosque December 15.

Final judges are Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh; Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology; the Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University; Sister M. Regis, dean of Mount Mercy College; Miss Helen Marks, dean and acting president of Pennsylvania College for Women; Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of public schools; the Rev. Paul E. Campbell, superintendent of parish schools, and Mrs. Mary J. Cowley, member of the Board of Public Education.

EGAN PROVIDES APPEAL BOND

James Egan, Communist candidate for Mayor of Pittsburgh, was released from jail late yesterday under $5,000 bond posted in connection with his appeal to the Superior Court. He recently was sentenced by Judge Sylvester J. Snee to serve a year in jail.

Egan had been found guilty of inciting to riot in connection with a Communist demonstration in front of the court house March 4, in protest against the bank holiday.

He was tried before Visiting Judge R. L. Hildebrand, of Lawrence County, in April, and in June was refused a new trial. Failing to appear when summoned for sentence he was found leading a strike in Ambridge, recently.

Judge Snee imposed the sentence in the absence of Judge Hildebrand.

MUSEUM PLANS CHILD CLASSES

A free course in natural science, open to all Pittsburgh children between 8 and 16, will begin at Carnegie Museum, Saturday.

The classes are fostered by the Junior Naturalists' Clubs, under direction of Dr. O. E. Jennings and Miss Jane A. White.

Subjects include plants, insects, invertebrates, reptiles, birds and mammals.

Teachers will be from Frick Training School and the museum staff.

Class meetings will be held every Saturday until April, when students will write and produce a play based on knowledge gained.

AIRPORT TO GET HOSPITAL

Bids will be asked by the Department of Parks and Aviation for erection of an emergency hospital at the county airport, the County Commissioners having authorized the bids yesterday. The building will be a one-story structure, one part housing the emergency rooms and the other serving as a garage for an ambulance and fire truck.

The hospital will adjoin the administration building and be of the same material and design.

Special Program Tonight Welcomes Station

Music, Drama, Sports Talk Scheduled

A dozen great radio stars and three orchestras are heard over WJAS tonight at 11, in a half-hour program welcoming a Chicago station to the Columbia network.

Bing Crosby, Kate Smith, Burns and Allen, George Jessel, Stoopnagle and Budd, the Boswell sisters, and Guy Lombardo's, Raymond Paige's and Andre Kostelanetz's orchestras contribute to the entertainment, each supplying one number.

* * *

Radiorators

Edward A. Hayes, national commander of the American Legion, visiting in Pittsburgh, speaks over WCAE at 5:15.

* * *

Former governor John K. Tener, once a player and president of the National Baseball League, is heard over WCAE at 6:40, in a speech endorsing the proposed amendment to permit professional sports on Sundays.

* * *

Theodore Webb, baritone, is Irvin S. Cobb's guest on WJAS tonight at 9.

* * *

Tearful

John McCormack sings Ethelbert Nevin's "Little Boy Blue" during his NBC-KDKA program tonight at 9:30.

* * *

"The Quality of Mercy," a gripping story of a boy's faith in and devotion to his father who has been sent to Sing Sing, is dramatized over KDKA during Warden Lawes' program at 9.

* * *

Violinist Albert Spalding is again soloist with Don Voorhees' orchestra on the CBS-WJAS network at 8:30.

Conrad Thibaut, vocalist on the program, sings "Where My Caravan Has Rested."

* * *

Gold-Dollars

Jesse Jones, chairman of Reconstruction Finance Corp., speaking over WCAE at 10:30, discusses "Gold and Managed Currency."

* * *

John Herrick, baritone, sings "Duna" and "Songs My Mother Taught Me," during his recital with Harold Sanford's orchestra on KDKA at 7:15.

* * *

Moran and Mack, the Two Black Crows, are again guests of Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, heard over WJAS at 10.

* * *

Foolery

Bert Lahr's foolery and George Olsen's music entertain the WCAE listeners tonight at 8.

Olsen plays the newest tune of the composer of the Last Round-up—"The Tree that Father Planted for Me."

* * *

Dr. Ben Graham, Superintendent of the Pittsburgh Public Schools, speaks over KQV tonight at 6:45, on "National Education Week Observance."

* * *

Danny Davis, after his 6:15 broadcast over WWSW, takes his Blue Moon orchestra out to the Marine Hospital at Aspinwall to put on an hour's show for the disabled veterans.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Well, if it's headaches that are in demand, here are more of them! This is the Al Zimmerman contribution:

A strip of metal is welded tightly around the equator. Some one comes along and cuts the metal and inserts a piece of about one foot in length.

Now, ladies and gentleman, how much space exists between the strip of metal and the earth?

The answer has something to do with "pie" and not the pumpkin variety either.

* * *

K. H. U. passes the suggestion along to the County Commissioners or to the city:

Make a swimming pool out of Squaw Run. The writer spends a lot of time up there fishing for cat fish.

Is that why he doesn't want me to mention his name?

* * *

Flora—Your letter to Cousin Hilda was delivered to me by mistake.

You better write Hilda another letter. She must have the one you intended for me.

* * *

Here's a mention for Charles Affeleder's W8HLM Squirrel Hill Radio Amateurs Society. No dues, no obligations, just a place for an exchange of ideas.

* * *

Dorothy Janesar, North Side—I think I can help you with your subject. Will you ask more specific questions?

* * *

C. M. K., a regular listener, feels that I would appreciate her recipe for plum pudding candy.

It sure looks appetizing, but you see if I accept recipes I am competing (ineffectively) with our good friend Prudence Penny. Of course the candy itself would be a different thing.

No fooling, Mrs. K., they sound good and Prudence will like that recipe. 'Tater Puff.

* * *

Miss Jane Giffin, Stockdale—Remember me to your grandmother in Roscoe next time you write her.

She sounds like a sweet old lady. I'll say hello to her on the next some 2:15 broadcast.

Contributions to the operation and the discovery of minin[g] form[s] does.

Sec[ond] that [mo]tion, but don't go for the idea, either.

'Bloomer Girls' Baseball Team In Air Drama

Altoona and Youngstown listeners hear one of the most unusual radio dramas ever broadcast, this afternoon and evening.

"Nine Striking Beauties," is a story of a famous girls' baseball team of the gay 90's, who created highly amusing situations, as well as jealousy and riots in their travels from two to town.

Adapted from a feature story in next Sunday's American Weekly, big magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, "Nine Striking Beauties" is heard over WFBG, Altoona, at 3 p. m., and over WKBN, Youngstown, at 8:15 p. m.

Feeling Ill, Boy Falls From Window

Feeling ill, Hubert Wise, 18, of Monongahela, walked to an open window at 221 Thirty-eighth street early today and fell to the street, suffering probable internal injuries. He was taken to West Penn Hospital. Wise was visiting friends here.

In Radio Spotlight

Star Wednesdays on your radio calendar these days for Albert Spalding plays his violin!

He brings a new kind of program to delight his great radio audience: a selection of old-time favorites, lovely familiar melodies. And played as only the greatest of America's violinists could play them!

There are Spirituals, fine old "Glee Club" songs and airs from popular operettas.

[illegible] Major Bowes' Capitol Family Orchestra and Conrad Thibault, talented baritone.

This program—sponsored by the makers of Fletcher's Castoria—is broadcast every Wednesday, 8:30 to 9 P. M.—WJAS.

NBC Planning Exchange Programs With Russia

By AIRCASTER

Artistic recognition of Russia was officially extended by the National Broadcasting Company, in confident anticipation of the adoption of the Soviet government into the circle of America's cousins.

With the former land of the czars in good standing, the broadcasters are counting on the usual gestures of amity within the entertainment cycle.

With Russia recurring in the news, it is considered foresighted by the NBC to equip itself with a supply of modern Russian music, especially that interpretative of the country's new machine age.

With this notion in mind, Frank Black, musical director, yesterday addressed the musical branch of Amtorg, official Russian agents, a letter by which the Amtorg is commissioned to provide him with a supply of compositions written by the recognized composers.

* * *

And Aubernitzki

This list includes the names of Szostakowicz, Spendiarow, Schenschin and Tscherepnine. The newer works of Stravinsky and equally famous Russians are also requested.

During the first few months of re-established relationship between the United States and Russia, modernistic compositions, descriptive of the machine and agricultural phases of the Stalin regime will be broadcast somewhat profusely, and balanced with distinctly modern Russian overtures, concertos, sketches and waltzes.

On the basis of these gestures, an exchange of programs with Moscow is expected to materialize.

BAR SEEKS AID IN 'SHYSTER' INQUIRY

The Allegheny County Bar Association is anxious that the Wright committee investigating ambulance-chasing and shyster practices resume its work, John G. Frazer, newly-elected president of the group has informed the County Commissioners. He added that the association is not in a position to finance the work and asked that the county take care of the bills.

The discussion took place yesterday when Frazer, Gifford K. Wright, chairman of the investigating committee, and J. Garfield Houston, a member of the prosecuting committee, met with the Commissioners. The attorneys asked that the Commissioners approve the bills which the Commissioners have been holding up since February.

The Commissioners held up payment during an investigation and audit of the committee's bills. Auditors reported that Donald C. Anderson, secretary of the committee, received approximately $1,500 in duplicated bills from the county. Anderson states that the overpayment was due to errors by county employes.

Speaking of Anderson, Wright declared:

"Anderson was a very poor bookkeeper, but he has done a good job as secretary. The auditors' report does not show that Anderson profited personally. Anderson has worked without pay since February and if the Commissioners continue to hold up bills it would be a great mistake and an injustice to Anderson, and also set back the work of the committee."

Commissioner C. M. Barr declared that he was of the opinion that the committee's expenses should be paid by the county direct to the person the money was due, and in that manner a record would be kept by the county. The Commissioners took the request under advisement.

BAR SETS TRIAL FOR MEMBER

David S. Keilly, against whom the Allegheny County Bar Association has made charges of improper practices, directing him to establish why he should not be disbarred, must stand trial November 6.

It was reported Keilly had offered his resignation from the bar, but this his council, R. Murray Gibson, refused to verify. Keilly has been ill and one report was that he is on his way to California.

Recently Keilly's case was postponed on account of his illness.

GROUP DROPS BANK FIGHT

The committee of depositors of the West End Savings Bank and Trust Company, formed to oppose a proposed reorganization plan, today announced it has withdrawn opposition.

The announcement was made by Dr. L. C. Daniels, of the protesting committee, after a conference with H. S. Hershberger, president of the bank, and W. C. White, chairman of another committee of depositors which has been sponsoring the plan.

The reorganization plan calls for the formation of a new institution to be known as the West End Bank.

After being assured by White that the general committee is still open to the membership of any depositor, and that complete information will be made available to any depositor having questions to ask about the bank, the opposing committee announced itself willing to withdraw objections.

Depositors present at the conference included Dr. A. O. Jaeger, Dr. J. H. Crowell, Dr. F. P. Fiedler, C. J. Schwindt, J. E. Jewett, H. S. Woodtli, J. H. Spinnenweber and Dr. Daniels.

DELAY MURRELL ATTACK CASE

International News Service.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 1.—Preliminary hearing for Lieut. John H. Murrell on a charge of criminal assault was postponed today by joint motion of defense attorneys and Federal District Attorney W. R. Smith, Jr.

United States Commissioner Lockart said a new hearing date would be set when agreed upon by the government and defense.

Visibly concerned over the gravity of the charge, Lieut. Murrell, one-time all-American star of West Point's football team, was present in the Commissioner's office for the hearing.

Miss Blanche Ralls, who charges that Murrell criminally attacked her on the Fort Sam Houston military reservation, and Murrell's parents and sister, Miss Ray Murrell, also were present.

The lieutenant was returned to jail where he has been held since the filing of the charge last Friday. Murrell has been held without bail, since the offense charged is bailable only after a hearing.

Stepmother Can Win Place In Hearts of Children

"Stepmothers"—they've always taken their place with Mothers-in-Law, Lady Visitors, Spring Housecleaning and other domestic Boogies, haven't they?

But isn't it possible for Stepmothers to be loving and kind; for stepchildren to be happy and devoted?

Helen needs to know, and so do thousands of other anxious wives who have stepchildren.

Read her letter, then tell her what you know about "steps," pro or con.

Dear Elsie Robinson:

Will you please help me? I have been nagged at by my folks and had to listen to Calamity Howlers among my friends until I hardly know where I am, and I'd like to have your honest opinion about my problem.

A few months ago I met a very fine man, and we fell in love with each other. We are engaged and expect to be married some time soon.

But here is the trouble. He is a widower and he has two children, a girl of 11 and a boy of nine. Now I am beginning to wonder whether we would have trouble if we married.

I have listened to so many stories about women trying to get along with stepchildren that I don't know what to think. Floyd asked me, when he told me he loved me, if I thought I could take the place of a mother to his youngsters, and I told him I did. Maybe I was dashing in where "angels fear to tread." I don't know.

FRIENDS DOUBTFUL

I am 26. Floyd is 32. His wife has been dead for four years, and both of the children have been in boarding schools since they lost her. I have met them. They are both lovable and fine little children. I love children anyway, and I want to make up to them for the love and tenderness they have missed these last four years. I am sure I will have no trouble finding a place in my heart for them.

I have told my family and my friends this. But they say that it may not be so easy finding a place in their hearts for me. That they will resent me and be "smarty," and refuse to mind me if I try to train them.

Now, both of them seem to like me. But I am wondering. I love Floyd deeply, and I know that he loves me. But everyone says that the children will always make trouble; that I'm "not their mother," and that Floyd and I will be bound to squabble over their training and their resentment of me.

What do you think?

HELEN.

Can you be a successful stepmother?

Of course you can, Helen, and by exactly the same process which you'd follow to be a successful real mother.

For love is a job which must be worked at. You must work to win, and you must work to hold the love of another woman's child just as you would have to work to win and hold the love of your own.

But there never was a happier job on earth, Helen dear, or one which paid richer dividends. And if your own heart is wise and warm and generous, there isn't a chance that you'll fail.

"But why do so many stepmothers make a mess of things?"

DON'T BE AFRAID

Because their own weakness betrays them. Nine times out of ten the stepmother is jealous of the first wife, and takes it out on the helpless children. Or she has allowed herself to be so terrified by all the croakings of small-minded friends that she is afraid to exert that sensible control which she would naturally exert if the children were her own.

So don't be jealous and don't be afraid.

Don't try to take that dead mother's place. Naturally her children remember and love her. Encourage them in this. Be fair to her in her helplessness, as you are to them in their helplessness.

Enter into a loving partnership with them to keep her memory alive. Put flowers in front of her picture. Tell them how she would have wanted them to be fine and brave and gentle. So, little by little, prove your fairness and friendliness, and make a place for yourself in their hearts.

And don't be discouraged if they are resentful and suspicious at first. Remember, they've been poisoned by the same vicious warnings which have frightened you. They are secretly terrified—dreading abuse—envious of this stranger who has come into their father's life.

Be pitying, Helen, and patient. These little helpless lives need your love and wisdom as desperately as your own tiny baby will need you some day. And, if you're strong, they'll reward you with the same love.

How do I know all this?

Because I'm a stepmother myself, Helen.

Crooks Rarely Low Enough to Kidnap Children, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

Considering the countless duplications of other crimes, there have been comparatively few kidnapings, and in most cases these were perpetrated by other than regular crooks.

The underworld may be ruthless, hardboiled and have strange codes and alibis for their rackets and crimes, but when it comes to child snatching and parent torture, they rarely sink that low for any amount of gain.

Crooks, too, have their tender streak. Most of them know or have children of their own of whom they are mighty fond, and many a crook is more devoted to his parents than others in the straighter walks of life.

No class was more sincerely incensed over the tragic fate of the Lindbergh baby than were the denizens of the underworld—to their everlasting credit.

A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

Plans of Veritzen for Honeymoon Are Outlined

For a tense second that seemed an hour I waited for Philip Veritzen's reply to Mary's query.

I was proud of the manner in which Mary had made her retort to that broken-off inference. Her defiant smile and words held just enough of mirthful diablerie to enable her future father-in-law to accept them as a jest. But he knew as well as I that she had caught his challenge, and was answering it.

"Now, now, pretty pussy, don't get your claws out for me," he admonished her. "I didn't say a thing, and you can't indict a man for his thoughts. Anyway, I deny that even my thoughts were so disloyal to you as you have intimated. I am tempted to tell you that if the fur coat fits you would better wear it, but I don't want to carry even an innocuous jest too far, so let us forget about it.

"But speaking of fur coats reminds me. A man from Blank's—" he named the most expensive furrier in New York "will be here in the morning with a number of models for motoring. I know that Noel has one, for I made him a gift of one last Christmas; but I want you to have the very finest there is, and the man will have plenty of styles from which to choose. You mustn't get tired on this wedding trip, you know."

VERITZEN'S PLANS

I wondered if Mary and Noel had the feeling that I had—that a giant hand had caught them up and was manipulating them with no thought of their own wishes.

He did not even know that they had planned a wedding trip—this smiling sybarite, who for so many years had only needed to think of some fancied desire and see it gratified almost upon the instant—yet he was literally hurling gifts at them as if he had full knowledge of their plans, or as if—I had a sudden intuitive flash—he were making their plans for them.

"I have arranged things so that you can have two weeks' holiday," he said, and I saw both Noel and Mary start in astonishment.

"But—how can you, sir?" Noel stammered. "The rehearsals, my lectures that you arranged—" His voice trailed off helplessly before his father's expansive smile.

"I do not think I am boasting, my son, when I say that there are few ordinary tasks impossible for Philip Veritzen to accomplish.

"The rehearsals are my own affair," he said. "It has taken some thought, but by putting on extra steam after you get back, we shall be able to make up for lost time. As for your lecture engagements, there are only three in the next two weeks, and I have offered my own services in your stead. The people I approached were disappointed, of course, but they seemed to be willing to accept me."

MADGE ANNOYED

The expression on his face was so near a smirk that I would have liked to throw something at it and watch his complacence disappear. Of course, any lecture organization would be delighted to substitute the greatest dramatic producer of his time for "Boris Raminoff," the name under which Noel had won some fame as a musical composer. But it was unkind, though probably not so meant, to emphasize that preference.

I shot a furtive glance at Mary and Noel. The boy, whose modesty is only equalled by his admiration for the brilliance of his father, did not appear to have noticed the slur.

"Of course, sir," he said earnestly. "And it's wonderful of you to have taken so much trouble for us."

"It isn't every day, you know," Philip Veritzen went on and I guessed that he rarely had enjoyed himself more, "that my only son gets himself married. I have spent most of my time since you told me in arranging things for you, but when no letter came—Mrs. Graham has told you that it was lost—I began to think I had wasted my time. But now everything is all right again, and I am sure you will like the plans I have made for your trip."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Introducing Brothers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Kindly let me know how one should introduce one's brother. Should I say "Mr. Blank, meet my brother Jack" or should I use my brother's last name?

Let me thank the newspaper and you for your kind service.

G.

That's a very polite and gracious sentence . . . and we both thank you.

I'm glad that you wrote me about a form of introduction, for I should like very much to urge you not to use this form that you are interested in. Never say "meet . . . ," in an introduction.

When you introduce your brother, it is well to use the form of introduction that is more or less reserved for family introductions . . . a form more informal than the usual introduction.

For instance, "Mr. Blank, this is my brother," or "Mr. Blank, this is my brother Tom." Or, "Mr. Blank, do you know my brother Tom?" It isn't necessary to use the last name.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Lead-Directing Double

Mr. Russell D. Patterson, a lawyer of Chicago, submitted a hand recently which he states is an excellent illustration of how one can profitably be forced into what at first seems to be a justified sacrifice bid but turns out happily for the Declared. Mr. Patterson is quite correct. There are many sacrifice bids, even though the contract is not fulfilled, that are for the declaring side the best possible result on the hand.

However, in my judgment, Mr. Patterson has submitted a hand that is extremely interesting from another viewpoint than the one suggested by him—namely, the efficacy of the lead-directing Double against a Slam contract. Briefly, the lead-directing Double is made by the partner of the player charged with the burden of the lead. It is a command to the leader not to lead suits bid by him but to seek for some other lead upon the basis of the Double. Had East and West been users of this splendid convention of play, then Mr. Patterson would have been defeated in his Slam contract.

The Right Spread

Before shopping for a spread take measurements of the bed so you know exactly what will do. So often we are blinded by the loveliness of the spread only to find upon our arrival home that part of the box spring shows at the side and spoils the entire effect.

TODAY'S QUESTION

When is it possible to rebid a four-card suit?

Answer: When your partner has made a Forcing bid and you must respond, but the opponents have bid a suit in which you have no stopper and you therefore cannot bid notrump.

"FROM NOW ON... I'm going to be the world's prize GOLD-DIGGER!"

She loved another man yet she went to a hotel as the "wife" of the one she despised!

TESSA LOVED GRANT. Yet she went to a hotel with Dudley, the man she despised, posing as his wife! Something Grant had done caused her to cast all caution aside—made her uncontrollably reckless. What was it?

As she lounged luxuriously in her hotel room, her beautiful body clad only in a negligee, the door to the connecting room opened slowly. Tessa sprang up, fear clutching at her heart, and faced Dudley, the man everyone believed to be her husband. He came forward, his burning eyes on her lovely pink-clad figure and took her in his arms. Her quivering lips were crushed to his. Suddenly she realized she didn't want this man whom she hated with all her soul. But what could she do as she lay helplessly in his arms? What was to happen? How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Overdressing Baby Is a Fault of Many Mothers

"Style" means everything to us and each season shows marked changes in clothes. To gaze at pictures taken but a few years ago causes us to smile over the "old fashions. Surprising as it may seem, Dame Fashion influences even the wardrobe of the newborn babe. I need only remind you of the now discarded long petticoats or "Gertrudes" as they were commonly called. This garment, popular a while ago, is no longer included in the wardrobe of the young child. I am sure all will agree health and comfort have been promoted by the change. The old petticoats were so long and cumbersome that they disturbed the baby's sleep and were uncomfortable all the time.

Dr. Copeland

There are items of clothing that some young mothers continue to use in spite of changed ideas. Perhaps that is due to grandmother's influence. Certainly tradition is an important factor. One such is the "band" worn after the navel is healed.

I receive many inquiries about this old-fashioned piece of clothing. Many a mother writes that she has been advised to discontinue the use of a "band" but fears the child will develop a "rupture" or "catch cold in his bowels."

Let me assure the young mother that a tight band around the baby's abdomen is not needed; it is not a necessary protection against colds. Once the navel is healed, no dressing around the abdomen is required. Indeed, a tight band is more harmful than beneficial.

Perhaps the greatest mistake made by most mothers is that they overdress their children. Bear in mind that during the winter months blankets and warm coats are more essential than heavy fleeced underwear or two and three under shirts. The clothes next to the body should be loose and light, permitting ample ventilation of the skin.

If the child's feet are cold, do not rely alone upon socks or "booties." Additional blankets are needed and if necessary the baby's feet can be warmed by the use of a small hot water bag. Bear in mind that persistent coldness of the feet is a sign of some general condition. I should suspect lowered vitality from some cause.

Hats and caps should preferably be of linen. Flannel or knitted woolen caps appear warmer, but they irritate the child and cause excessive perspiration. This may lead to some skin disturbance. If a linen hat is not warm enough, line a flannel or woolen hat with linen. This prevents irritation of the delicate skin of the child.

It is a great mistake to burden the young infant with unnecessary clothing. The young mother can save expense and labor by purchasing only the essential clothes. Plenty of blankets of different weight and thickness must be included among the essentials.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

The scene of the 1933 debutante whirl shifts today from the Twentieth Century Club, where so many bud parties have been given, to the Fox Chapel Golf Club, where the Donald C. Hamiltons' daughter, Anne, is making her debut.

Her mother is giving a luncheon today for Anne in the private dining room of the club with debs of the season and a few friends of the hostess as guests.

At Two Tables

Luncheon is being served at two long tables decorated with pale blue bowls holding pink chrysanthemums and lighted with blue tapers in silver candlesticks.

A bright blue crepe gown with slightly puffed elbow-length sleeves and a gold belt is being worn by the debutante with a small blue velvet beret. And she has a corsage of gardenias.

Her mother is wearing black velvet with a hat of black velvet.

* * *

To Fete Bride

Post-debs and one debutante, Eloise Dorrance, sister of one of the brides of Saturday, will have a host of pre-nuptial parties to interest them the remainder of the week.

Many will be in honor of attractive La Salle Dorrance, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harold J. Dorrance, whose wedding in Calvary Episcopal Church Saturday afternoon to David Marshall Humphreys, son of William Y. Humphreys, will be in keeping with old English ritual.

Today the William H. McNaughers will entertain with a buffet luncheon in her honor, tomorrow afternoon Frances Heckert will give a tea in her home, and tomorrow night Eloise will give a spinster dinner in her home for her sister.

On Friday John Bindley will entertain with a buffet luncheon. Friday afternoon, the Alan S. Humphreyses will entertain with a tea in their home, and that night R. Gilbert Dorrance, Jr., will entertain at the rehearsal dinner in the Pittsburgh Country Club.

Reviving Musicales

For many years—17 to be exact—the James Stephen Martins gave a series of informal musicales during the winter months in their home, Walnut street. And many an artist recognized today "presented" on these first Saturdays in the month. Many of the soloists appearing with the former Pittsburgh Orchestra were honor guests at the late afternoon affairs.

These musicales, discontinued since 1917, will be revived again this winter by Mrs. Martin. She's reserved the first Sunday in four successive months for the musicales, with the first one to be given Sunday from 4 to 7 o'clock. Invitations have already been sent out.

Mrs. David V. Murdoch and the Foster singers will be the artists Sunday night.

Announce Betrothal

The betrothal of a Pittsburgh granddaughter, who lives in the East, is being made known today. She's Barbara Childs, daughter of the Sterling W. Childses, of New York, and Norfolk, Conn., and a granddaughter of the late Albert H. Childses, of Pittsburgh.

Barbara's parents have announced her engagement to James Freeman Lawrence, son of Frank V. Lawrence, of Plainfield, N. J., and the late Mrs. Lawrence.

Barbara attended the Chapin School, and is a graduate of Foxcroft School. She made her debut three years ago.

Her fiance attended Phillips Exter and is a Princeton man, class of '29. He was a member of Cap and Gown at Princeton.

* * *

May Be June Bud

Hester Murtland Lyon, young daughter of the Prescott Lyons, of Sewickley, probably will be a June debutante. Hester is now attending Miss Ellis' School. Her family is living in town this winter, by the way.

Mrs. William R. Scott will entertain at tea in her home a week from today for Miss Wright's School Society. She's the president.

Temple Sisterhoods To Meet in Erie in 1935

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 1—(INS.)—The next biennial conference of the Pennsylvania Federation of Temple Sisterhoods will be held in Erie, it was decided at the organization's sessions yesterday. Delegates also voted to hold the next board meeting at Lancaster in 1934, a non-convention year.

Mrs. Max Grumbacher, of York, was re-elected president.

Other officers re-elected are vice presidents, Mrs. Samuel H. Freedman, Scranton; Mrs. Hiram Hirsch, Philadelphia, and Mrs. Charles Mantinband, Williamsport; recording secretary, Mrs. Stanley Adler, Harrisburg, treasurer, Mrs. Mrs. Chester Kaufmann, Pittsburgh; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Alexander Eagel, York.

Two Bridge Luncheons Slated for Country Club

Social events for the month of November at the Pittsburgh Country Club will include two women's luncheons, November 7 and 21, a Thanksgiving dinner on November 25, Thanksgiving Day. November there will be a special dinner every Sunday evening the month there will be a supper at the club.

MODISH FUR-BEARING CLOTH COATS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

Sable dyed kolinsky fashioned into a yoke which covers the shoulders and three-quarters of the sleeves, finishing in an Ascot tie, gives the luxurious note to the coat sketched left. The model is slimly fitted and the material is an imported suede fabric which has a finely ribbed surface. Right, another ribbed suede fabric is used, but the ribs are wide and diagonal. Three quarters of the sleeves, measured from the wrists up to the shoulders, are covered with Persian lamb. The same fur is used in a jabot collar. The belt is suede.

A CLOTH coat with rich fur trimming begins to sound like a cozy possession, despite the lingering brilliance of Indian summer days. Such a garment should not be hard to find; the trouble is going to be in the choosing. It is a matter which, satisfactorily settled, will keep a woman in good temper and good health all winter, so all the ensemble possibilities might as well be looked into thoroughly.

For instance. Why not buy a black coat with handsome fur—say mink, Persian, or sable—on it, if your last year's "best" coat is to be demoted to daily duty? Or if you have a perfectly swell new fur coat, this is the time to lay in a utilitarian coat trimmed with hardy fur in whatever color strikes the fancy as going best with casual daytime costumes in mind.

Keeping up a smart appearance is largely a matter of staggering one's purchases intelligently, and choosing colors for them that permit clever interchanges of accessories. A little can be made to look like a lot by that system.

Silver brown is an awfully good color for the double duty coat which must look well with a morning or an afternoon toilette, and of course it is lovely with any number of furs, from sable to lapin, just so the trimming keeps to a silvery brown tone. Black, brown, navy blue, or brown accessories become it, and in the matter of frocks, any old shade looks the better for it. It has that advantage over downright, honest brown or gray.

A black coat, trimmed with some precious fur, is another good all-around coat buy, and like the coat of neutral color, it becomes a second best number gracefully after a season of being the dress-up model.

Congress Plans Outlined at Quarterly

The first quarterly meeting of the Congress of Clubs under the administration of Mrs. Oliver J. Haller, proved to be an especially interesting one. Chairman of committees and departments outlined their plans for next year. Mrs. J. Andrew Gettig, education chairman, announced her first meeting for next Wednesday, when Mrs. W. R. Gardner, president of the Consumers' League, will introduce John T. Kane, of the Department of Agriculture, who is to speak on "Food, Drugs and Cosmetics."

Mrs. Hugh M. Patton, program chairman, presented J. W. Leonard, assistant manager of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, who spoke on the "Better Times Safety Drive." Mrs. C. J. Proessler spoke in behalf of the drive for new members, which eliminates the initiation fee until December 15.

Judge Benjamin Lencher gave a comprehensive explanation of the 12 constitutional amenments to be voted on next Tuesday, and just before the assembly adjourned for lunch, Mrs. M. M. Redenbaugh presented the sofa won as first prize in the contest sponsored by the Joseph Horne Co. Mrs. Heller accepted in behalf of the Congress.

In the afternoon Mrs. Frank C. Rex, chairman of music for the Ingram Woman's Club, sang, accompanied by Mrs. P. C. McBeth, and Dr. George K. McCabe, from the economics department of the University of Pittsburgh, spoke on "Recent Improvements in Business Conduct," a talk which he made amusing as well as interesting.

Play Given at Music Club's First Meeting

The Tuesday Musical Club held its first meeting of the season yesterday in Memorial Hall. A Brahms-Schumann program was presented. Alma P. Lundell Chooses Dec. 6 For Wedding

Miss Alma P. Lundell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. R. Lundell, of Wilkinsburg, has chosen December 6 as the date for her marriage to Philip F. Barthell, grandson of Mrs. John Crawford, of Wilkinsburg.

The ceremony will take place at 3:30 o'clock that afternoon in the Second United Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg, and there will be a reception after the wedding.

Miss Lundell will have Miss Margaret Barthell as her only attendant, and Napier Hepburn will be best man.

After a short eastern trip Mr. Barthell and his bride will be at home in Wilkinsburg.

Miss Helen Creelman's Betrothal Announced

Friday evening Miss Mildred Creelman and Mrs. Lester T. Kern entertained at a bridge party in the Creelman home, in honor of their sister, Miss Helen Gertrude Creelman, daughter of David Creelman, of Swissvale, to announce her engagement to Lisle W. Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Thompson, of Swissvale.

Calvary Church Scene of Two Weddings

Not one, but two lovely brides will grace Calvary Episcopal Church today. One wedding will take place at 4 o'clock and the other at 5:30 o'clock. The second marriage will be that of Miss Betty Wainwright Tinker who will wed Meredyth Hanway Ewing, and the first bride will be Miss Isabel Friebertshauser, who will marry Dr. John Frederick Sexauer. The church will be simply decorated with ferns and white chrysanthemums.

Miss Friebertshauser will be given in marria by her brother, Charles E. Friebertshauser. She will wear a graceful white satin gown having the yoke of Alencon lace extending to the elbows of the satin sleeves. Her veil of tulle, extending the length of the full court train of her dress, will be finished with a cap of Alencon. She will carry white roses, with a spray of small white flowers.

Miss Mary Swallow, the maid of honor, and Miss Dorothy Sexauer, the bridesmaid, are wearing gowns of autumn leaf velvet having long sleeved jackets, with crystal buttons down the backs, and brown velvet hats. Their flowers will be chrysanthemums in autumn shades. Officiating will be the Rev. F. C. P. Hurd, of Jeannette, uncle of the bride.

The mother of the bride will wear black velvet and a corsage of gardenias, and the mother of the bridegroom will appear in eggplant colored velvet with a shoulder spray of orchids.

R. H. Friebertshauser will be the best man and the ushers will include Dr. Roy Fiedler, Dr. Donald H. Walker, John R. Aikins, and from Chicago, James E. Freeman.

The reception and dinner for only the families and bridal party, will be held in the College Club.

Dr. Craig Heads Group Of 100 Sponsoring Dance

Dr. W. Earle Craig heads a committee of 100, representing all the civic organizations in Crafton, sponsoring the second annual charity ball to be given in the Chartiers Heights Country Club, Saturday evening, November 11.

The proceeds from the affair will be contributed to the Crafton Welfare Fund committee to be used for welfare and relief work this winter.

Plugging . . . as usual! And anyone who has had trouble with electric light cords knows just what a bugbear this "plugging" can be . . . when the plug doesn't fit the socket . . . when it's "burnt out" . . . when it's too short to reach and you keep falling over it! So raise a joyful chant over this piece of news about the electric light cords which will fit any electrical equipment . . . are regulation length . . . and cost ONLY 18c! Another miracle!

Hop, skip, and jump . . . if you're after a bucket FOR beer (note we didn't say OF beer) then this store we have in mind is the place for you! They have lovely shining aluminum buckets with raffia-wound handles . . . and places for 4 bottles in them to get nice and cold from being packed in ice! $4.50.

And too . . . the same store has a fascinating business for pretzels . . . so unlike the usual run of them! It reminds us of a clothes-pole . . . with criss-cross arms of wood extending from an aluminum pole set into an aluminum disc which may be used for cheeses! $1.75.

Donation Day Tomorrow At Home

As if to call attention to the annual donation day and reception at the local Florence Crittenton Home, which is to be held tomorrow, a volume of more than 500 pages called "Fifty Years' Work With Girls" has been published. The book, authored by Otto Wilson in collaboration with Robert South Barrett, national president of the National Florence Crittenton Mission, tells the story of the Florence Crittenton Homes.

In addition to the history of the entire movement, the book includes individual histories of the many Florence Crittenton homes all over the country and several pages are devoted to reprints of words of appreciation from presidents of the United States.

Instead of having both afternoon and evening receptions this year, the local board has decided to have only the one, from 2 until 5:30 in the afternoon. The directors and the Woman's Auxiliary are sponsoring the affair.

On the board are the Rev. Thomas Watters, president; William L. Dean, vice president; W. P. Barker, treasurer; G. Webber Barnes, W. Bruce McCrory, Mrs. William J. McMoil and the president of the auxiliary, Mrs. Ronald Q. Cleavenger.

Mt. Lebanon Democratic Club to Hear Mrs. Clark

At the regular meeting of the Woman's Democratic Club of Mt. Lebanon tomorrow evening in Lebanon Hall, Mrs. J. Wood Clark will be the guest speaker. "The Return of the Democrats" will be the subject of an address by Clarence C. Klein, the proposed amendments to federal and state constitutions will be discussed by Byron Finn and Charles Curran will sing.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Man About Town

The Senator William G. McAdoos will make it a definite reconciliation . . . The Walter Wangers (Justine Johnstone) are seriously taking over one of those surprises . . . Walter Hagen, the golf ace, and Peggy Joyce are sighing in unison . . . Florence Rice, who shelved Owen Davis Jr. for Phillips Holmes, is arm-arming it with the playwright's boy again . . . The Alfred Smith, Jr., situation which was retarded because of their faith will be settled in the near future, anyhow, with Mrs. Smith bringing the action . . . William V. Dwyer's daughter Muriel will be merged to the late Judge Kelly's son on Nov. 9th.

The Baron and Baroness Von Bulnebergs will tell it to a Chicago judge. Her action is unique—Nazi trouble . . . The Baroness, incidentally, will attempt to stop the book "Scandal House" because, she alleges, it concerns her . . . Arthur Johnston, the lyricist, is New York bound from the coast to wed Loretta Sayres, he says. What! Again? . . . What is that deal being plotted between Stoneham of the Giants and A. C. Blumenthal? . . . With Mr. Chrysler angeling . . . Allan Jones, the ex of Frances Williams, and Meta Carlyle of "Gowns by Roberta" are on fire . . . Margie Finley and "Lovey" Ceballos of "Hold Your Horses" didn't the other night and tried to massacre each other.

None of the Orville Harrold obits included the fistic encounters with Lydia Locke, one of his wives . . . Alfredo Gandolfi, the Metropolitan baritone, and Mrs. Kirkjohn are rehearsing the Mendelssohn March . . . Courtney Burr got $76,000 for the chin-ema rights to "Sailor Beware!" from Paramount, but how they are going to screen that one is beyond most of us . . . The only movie house in Warrenton, Virginia, is owned by Mrs. Jock Whitney . . . Herbert Bayard Swope is the favored man for the post of Ambassador to Russia, if recognition goes through . . . Samuel Untermyer, who upset the McKee machinery, tells his intimates that he has equally damaging evidence against Fiorello.

The lowdown on Detective Fiaschetti's hunt for the long absent Judge Crater is that the insurance firm which must pay Mrs. Crater a sugary sum is convinced the judge is alive and is trying to save all that coin . . . Mrs. Horace Dodge will grant him that divorce for a mere five million smackers—which he asserts he hasn't . . . Leah Ray, the canary with the Phil Harris crew, and Martin Lewis, editor of Radio Guide, are putting it in writing . . . The B. Bengoughs he was once a catcher for the N. Y. Yanks, were blessed with an heir a fortnight ago . . . Lelya LeNoir and the groom, after all these years, have foundered—in-law trouble . . . Some of the Hollywood busybodies are of the opinion that Sylvia Sydney became a bride long ago . . . Walter Donaldson, the composer, is giving Walda Mansfield of MGM a chord in G.

Recommended to diversion seekers: Stanley Walker's "The Night Club Era" (due Nov. 9th)—an entertaining lowdown on locals . . . "Here We Are" from Dorothy Parker's "After Such Pleasures" (gab between newlyweds after the ceremony) . . . Any of Jack Benny's radio routines . . . "Heat Wave" from "As Thousands Cheer" a swingy-thingy . . . The first rate cast and Paul Muni in "The World Changes" one of the better kodak shows . . . The Phil Spitalny rhythms plus the Gertrude Hoffman girls at the Paramount Grill . . . Arthur Brisbane's "What Ails The World?" in Vincent Astor's new weekly "Today" . . . William Gaxton's class, stage presence and big-time delivery in "Let 'Em Eat Cake!" . . . And "Let 'Em Eat Strudel" on 42nd St.

Those frequent ailing spells of the President are due to sinus trouble . . . William Gaston doesn't even know the June Parks the chatterers asserted was the heart . . . Sanda Rambeau, the show girl who went to Monte Carlo, will return as an Indian princess of Nepal . . . Julius, who once owned the best known speakeasy in lower Manhattan, is now a waiter at the Ha-Ha Club . . . "Picture Parade," a new mag due in January, containing only photos of screen players and reviews, will be distributed gratis to "select people" by the Western Union messengers . . . That gab about Hunk Anderson being ousted from Notre Dame, and that Kizer of Purdue would succeed him is squelched by insiders, who figure the post will go to Elmer Layden, Duquesne coach. He was one of the Four Horsemen and has Rockne's system perfected best.

Robert Young, the "gentleman jockey," and Sybil Whigham, who merged Friday, honeymooned at the Embassy—instead of in Washington . . . "Patsy" Boland, of the Hollywood ensemble, is in a serious condition at the Forrest, after a major operation . . . Bluenoses in Los Angeles objected to the billboards which read: "Come Up and See Me Sometime—I'm No Angel" and had the top line erased . . . They "go for" Bing Crosby out there out loud. One lass, 18 years of age, interrupted his personal appearance by rushing on to the stage and kissing him . . . The reason Anita Page didn't appear on that furrier program as listed is that they offered a silver fox and she wanted an ermine wrap . . . Add new vogues: At Pauline Turner's fashion show at the Waldorf the bride and bridesmaids will be gowned in black . . . The Phil Bakers (Peggy Cartwright) anticipate it November 15th.

When Jimmy Durante squawked because they wanted to bill his name in agate—he had a good reason. The reviews in town gave him the best blurbs in "Meet the Baron" . . . One of the nationally circulated magazines is polling its subscribers on radio "likes" and "dislikes" . . . The Martinique Hotel waiters will be fired if the cork "pops" on wine after Repeal . . . The management doesn't want to offend guests opposed to liquor . . . Bill Hay, who has introduced Amos 'n' Andy for five years, just closed a $500,000 trust fund . . . George Givot and the MGM's femme ass't casting director are altar-bound . . . Sherman Fairchild is secretly building the world's fastest amphibian air-liner.

Noel Coward's coin is behind Max Gordon's "Her Master's Voice" . . . Walter O'Keefe retired from the Paramount Grill revue the next day . . . Jayne Manners of "Hold Your Horses" and L. Alter, the composer, have phfift, already . . . The Wm. Morris Agency in California is accepting donations for the distressed Eva Tanguay . . . Walt Disney, creator of M. Mouse, will rate an exhibit at the Chicago Art Institute, the toughest to crash . . . The oil company raised Cohan's radio wage from five to $7,500—but he wants $12,000 per week . . . Alice Joy, radio's "dream girl," is having the vows melted . . . By all means, don't miss the unintentionally funny Spike O'Donnell, of Chicago's underworld, when he gets scared and forgets his lines in the newsreels.

Daughter of Director Now in Picture

Alma Lloyd, 19-year-old daughter of Frank Lloyd, director of "Cavalcade" and "Berkeley Square," has begun her screen career in "Jimmy and Sally" after preliminary stage training at the Pasadena Community Playhouse. Miss Lloyd is blonde, blue-eyed and attractive, and she chose to play first in a picture other than the one her father was directing because "he'd be so eager for me to make good and I'd be so eager to make good for him that it probably would be quite bad for both of us."

D'Arcy Learns How to Be Good Boy

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1.—Filmdom is giving Roy D'Arcy the nod of approval for his comeback try, and for his complete change of attitude since the time when he was the colony's outstanding example of "going Hollywood."

The suave heavy of "The Merry Widow" and other silent films, goes before the camera for the first time in many months in the Fox picture, "Seven Lives Were Changed."

He is a different man, however, from the arrogant star who once bought the entire auto show display — six cars—of an expensive make. Then he had a big house and three butlers, he owned a string of horses and went in for Russian wolf-hounds. Once, for a big premiere, he had his limousine repainted to match his wife's dress.

Mr. D'Arcy

Today, D'Arcy drives his own small car to work and he is to give a part of each paycheck to his creditors.

"It took a lot of hard knocks to teach me to live like a sane human being," the actor says. "I have learned that I can get along in the world, and have just as good a time, without losing all sense of proportion. I know what it is to be broke, and it has taught me how to live sensibly."

* * *

Sidney Skolsky, diminutive New York columnist, almost—but not quite—pulled a neat coup by getting on the Greta Garbo set as an extra. When he applied to the casting office, an M-G-M official got suspicious and checked up his identity. The writer then was politely informed that he was "too dark to pass for a Swede."

* * *

Incidentally, you'll hear La Garbo laugh out loud for the first time in "Queen Christina." It took a trick though, to get her to do it. The script called for her to guffaw when she came upon John Gilbert's carriage stuck in the mud. La Garbo said she had never laughed out loud in a picture and that she couldn't do it naturally. Director Rouben Mamoulian, a wily man, told her to go ahead then and forget the laugh. When they played the scene, a closeup, he had 10 Spanish extras suddenly whirl upon the star and start making terrific faces. La Garbo let out a peal of laughter, and she had the presence of mind to continue with her lines. It's in the picture now.

Mr. Gilbert

* * *

Having bragged that she had never been ribbed by Vince Barnett, Jeannette MacDonald was irritated to tears when Ramon Novarro brought Hollywood's champion insulter to the "Cat and the Fiddle" set and introduced him as a film laboratory expert. Vince told the beautiful Jeannette that they'd been having trouble for years photographing her. He ordered her to change her make-up. Poor Jeannette went for it hook, line and sinker, and she was in a terrible state when they confessed the rib.

* * *

The marriage of Andy Devine to Dorothy House was not such an occasion for surprise. They'd been going together for three months. They met when the actress was playing a bit part at Universal in "Saturday's Millions." . . . Emil Ludwig gave Roy Randolph, local dance expert, an autographed set of his books for teaching him how to fox-trot.

Mr. Devine

The distinguished biographer will be returning here in February with his wife . . . Hal Roach has offered $3,500 for the film rights to the "Twenty Little Working Girls" show put on here by Junior Leaguers . . . Phillis Cooper, pretty socialite, also is said to have received a screen offer from Joseph M. Schenck as a result of her work in the revue . . . Mary Brian and Donald Cook there too, but left early . . . The Countess Di Frasso is moving into her father's house here . . . Ruth Roland and Ben Bard continue to refute those separation rumors.

Tyros More Exacting Than Regulars

There are 48 young girls without previous screen experience playing roles in "Eight Girls in a Boat," which Charles R. Rogers is producing independently for Paramount release. Director Richard Wallace states that they develop more "prima donna" tendencies than the regular Hollywood stars, demanding special dressing rooms, special location lunches and the right to sleep late mornings.

Hindu Dance Group In 'Y' Tonight

Uday Shan-Kar and his company of 16 Hindu dancers and musicians will open the Y. M. and W. H. A. Musical Society season at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the Morris Kaufmann Auditorium of the "Y" building, Bellefield avenue.

Shan-Kar is assisted by Simkie, Kanak-Lata, Debendra and Robindra in a series of original dances typical of India and the Orient. The program consists of 13 dance dramas and concludes with the Tandava Nrittya, which is one of the three important dances of Shiva.

The musical accompaniments for the entire program are given by a Hindu orchestra on their native instruments.

New Stanley Program To Open Tomorrow

Today will be the last day of the Stanley's presentation of the Maurice Chevalier film, "The Way to Love." Beginning tomorrow the attraction will be "College Coach," to be shown the customary six days, as Thursday openings will continue until after Thanksgiving. "College Coach" is a football romance featuring Dick Powell, Ann Dvorak and Pat O'Brien, the latter as coach and Powell as captain of a gridiron team.

Bunch of Film Stars In One Picture

"Once Over Lightly," a farce adapted from an original story by Arthur T. Horman, will have a cast in which almost every member wears the cinema crown for the type of humor he represents. These are El Brendel, Skeets Gallagher, James Gleason, Pert Kelton, Zasu Pitts and Franklyn Pangborn. Burton Churchill and other character stars are to appear in supporting roles.

IF YOUR HUSBAND DIED SUDDENLY WOULD YOU BE TRIED FOR MURDER?

True Story Magazine Now to Publish the Famous Jessie Costello Story Written by Herself

THE new True Story Magazine will be out Friday. It will contain what is probably the strangest True Story ever published. Jessie Costello, who was tried for the murder of her husband and acquitted by a jury, now tells for the first time her own true story of the events leading up to that trial.

In this strange true story, Jessie Costello denies her guilt, but unwittingly again tries herself. No stranger human document has ever come to our editorial desks. She says she is not guilty. The jury said she was not guilty. When you read her story you will feel that she was not guilty. And yet——.

All of a sudden, the impression sweeps over you that the most trivial, insignificant acts of your life can be magnified into terrible importance when some major tragedy occurs.

This is a great true story to get hold of. You may have read this story in the newspapers, but Jessie Costello, herself, is writing this story. She is telling the whole dramatic story for the first time, and these are the inside facts. Newspapers would call it a scoop. For Jessie Costello, a totally unimportant woman, tried in a little town in Massachusetts, made the front page of nearly every paper in America.

But even that is not the reason why True Story Magazine has selected this manuscript.

The true reason is that there are thirty million married women in America who might have committed the same trivial follies or been moved to the same little kindnesses. And any one of whom on this basis alone might very well find herself in jail for five months and tried for murder if her husband were found dead with poison in his stomach.

It makes one stop and think. True Story Magazine will be out Friday. Don't miss it.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Pola Negri, who will make her bow here next week as an English speaking actress on the legitimate stage, will be repeating an experience she has had on European stages in German, Polish, French and Italian tongues. Her part in "A Trip To Pressburg" more than likely will reveal a slight European accent, which will not be inappropriate since she will portray a native of Hungary resident in Austria proper—or perhaps improper would be a better word, since that is the kind of a lady she portrays. One who is through, which reflects the significance of the title. Pressburg being a synonym for oblivion for women of her type. The play, itself, a great success in Europe, was withdrawn after its first American tryout owing to difficulties not overcome in the adaptation, as a consequence of which an entirely new translation has been made, to be presented here for the first time. The company will arrive here Friday for the final rehearsals before the premiere in the Nixon next Monday. It will be the third subscription play of the American Theater Society with Richard Whorf playing opposite Miss Negri. The box office sale of seats will open Thursday morning.

* * *

On the way to the Nixon is Cornelia Otis Skinner, who will appear in three offerings of what Miss Skinner terms "dramatic sequences," in which she alone presents all characterizations. They include "The Wives of Henry VIII," which she did last season, "The Loves Of Charles II" and "The Empress Eugenie," each consisting of six scenes. They will be preceded by original character sketches by Miss Skinner. "The Loves Of Charles II" will be given Thursday night, November 16, and Saturday afternoon, November 18. "The Wives of Henry VIII" will be portrayed Friday night and "The Empress Eugenie" Saturday night.

Soprano in Concert Here Friday

Grete Stueckgold, European opera soprano, will appear in concert Friday evening, November 3, under the auspices of the Art Society. Her program will include the aria Ritorna Vincitor, from "Aida," by Verdi, and songs by Handel, Schubert, Brahms, Hugo Wolf and Richard Strauss. Kurt Ruhreseitz, pianist, will accompany the singer.

Musical

Judith Allen plays the feminine lead in "Too Much Harmony," musical comedy that will come to the Davis screen Friday.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Hero.

(By Joseph M. Graham, No. 142 Webster Avenue, Brooklyn, New York. One of the six best stories in the recent Joe Green column contest.

JOE GREEN walked slowly in the direction of his home after a pretty dull day. Passing him, you would never give him a second glance. For Joe Green was so essentially the average man that a second glance was never necessary.

Everything about the man spelled the average. The way his clothes fitted him. That plodding look in his eyes. The very manner in which he walked. Average; that was Joe Green. And it was a thousand to one he would go through life exactly as he was.

The tragedy of it all was that he knew it. Mazie had told him last night exactly what was wrong. She had told him with the unconscious cruelty of youth. And she had hurt him very deeply.

"Joe," she had said in a choked little voice, "it's no use. I couldn't make a go of marriage with you. It—it wouldn't last.

"Every girl wants a little romance in life. She wants her man to have some glamor; he wants him to be a hero in her eyes. And that's something you'll never be, Joe. Life with you would be nothing more than a dull routine.

"I'm sorry, Joe. But it's better to be sorry now than later."

Into his hand she had pressed the engagement ring he had given her, and had fled up the stairs of her home. Mazie, of course, had been seeing too many movies—but Joe wouldn't know anything about that.

All Joe knew was that his Mazie was a beautiful girl and that he was very much in love with her. Their romance had flowered and soured in a little bank off Wall Street, where both of them worked. What she saw in the lad was a mystery, or maybe it was the lure of averages.

Joe, you understand, was a good egg. But as Mazie saw it, the road to boredom is paved with good eggs . . . . .

Arriving at his apartment, Joe turned on the light and took a seat by the window. Dazedly he listened to the careless shuffle of feet in the city streets below. He felt out of step with it all.

Other happier Joe Greens and Mazie Malones were marching by, flaunting their hopes and dreams before his eyes. Something wet burned his lashes; a lump rose in his throat. At last, when the lump seemed too great to bear, he rose.

He undressed. He turned out the light. He crawled into bed. But he could not sleep . . .

Perched on a high stool in the teller's cage of the bank, Joe Green dutifully doled out money and made careful notations in his ledgers. He did this mechanically, for his mind was busy with a thousand dreams.

A hundred times a day, in his mind's eye, he shot it out with desperate bandits intent on stealing the bank's money. Often he fondled the gun in the drawer of his desk, startling staid depositors by glaring at them with suspicion in his eyes.

Only in his day dreams could he forget the loss of his Mazie. And only in these dreams could he win her back.

They weren't robbing banks in New York that summer—at least not with guns. As the weeks passed, Joe grew a bit thinner, more hopeless. Each day he saw Mazie at the bank. Her greeting was kind—but aloof.

Promptly at 10 minutes to 5 each night Joe Green closed his ledgers. He took the cash and securities and, threading his way through a lane of desks to the back of the office, locked them in the strong box of the vault.

Tonight the teller tried to hurry the process. Mazie was still at her desk. And if he hurried he might be able to walk with her the two short blocks to the subway. Ah, love!

Quickly he opened the vault and deposited his bundles. He locked the box and stepped from the vault. He——

"Stick 'em up!"

Joe Green raised his hands high. Holdup men. Five of them. Grim faces and hard eyes. A thousand times, Joe had ...ured such a scene. And here ... was.

By the door he could see Mori, the bank guard, lying senseless on the floor. Standing over him and acting as lookout was a flashily dressed youth. Bewildered clerks and stenographers had been herded to the back of the office. Joe saw Mazie, white-faced and worried, standing with arms upraised.

A bandit motioned to Joe.

"Get into the vault and open the currency box. Quick!"

Joe did not move. This was his great chance; possibly his only chance to be a hero. He must do something.

"Quick, I told you!" cried the thug, as he jabbed his gun into the youth's stomach.

Suddenly Joe Green did a strange thing. He laughed. It was a loud, ringing laugh—and it echoed through the shocked silence of the room like a challenge. Astounded, his mouth half-open, the thug lowered his arm.

"We're spotted! One cop!" It was the frightened cry of the lookout at the door. With muttered curses, the bandits turned and fled. Three shots. Three more. And then the roar of a great crowd . . .

Joe Green hummed happily as he tossed some clothes into a grip. He had good reason to be happy. For he and Mazie were going to elope tonight. All day the newspapers had blazed with the headlines that danced through his brain even now.

"Youth's Defiance Saves Bank! Young Teller Laughs Bandits Out of Rich Haul! . . . Joe Green a Hero!"

Tenderly, Joe Green touched the spot where the bandit had poked his gun. He laughed a trifle hysterically, and he couldn't help himself.

He had always been very ticklish in the stomach! . . .

WABASH BRIDGE PLAN OPPOSED

A formal protest against purchase, with government funds, of the Wabash bridge and tunnel for a vehicular tube was forwarded to Harold L. Ickes, head of the Federal Public Works Administration, today by the Allied Boards of Trade.

In a letter, Attorney Max U. Applebaum declared the price asked for the property was "grossly excessive"; that the project would not accomplish its object, and that a better plan for handling traffic in the lower triangle had been devised by the City Planning Commission.

STOP THAT COLD THE FIRST DAY!

A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Trust to no makeshift methods. A cold, being an internal infection, calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a preparation good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and accept no substitute on any pretext.

LEGION CHIEF HERE AS BONUS BATTLE RAGES

POLITICS

Leaguers' Data Used In Gallagher Charge

By MARK SHIELDS

It develops that the charges made by Representative Thomas J. Gallagher, involving Mayor John S. Herron in alleged real estate transactions with representatives of the American Reduction Company or the Pennsylvania Railroad, were not the product of original and personal research on his part.

Mr. Shields

First in a speech and secondly in a statement Mr. Gallagher, Democratic candidate for City Council, says the Mayor acquired some property at the time negotiations with the then Flinn - owned garbage company were before the city. He intimates that the Mayor got a bargain, to which Mr. Herron replies that the whole affair was a straight purchase from the Pennsylvania Railroad, and was a matter of record.

It seems that the information on which the Gallagher speech was based came from one or more members of the Citizens' League, which as a body has not indorsed William N. McNair, the Democratic mayoralty candidate, though the president of the league and several members have done so as individuals.

* * *

Data Reported Ready for Primary

Further, it is reported, all the information contained in the Gallagher observations was in the hands of the league members during the primary campaign, when that group was supporting Councilman P. J. McArdle for the Republican mayoralty nomination.

It was a campaign of zeal and sincerity, we were informed, in which public good was paramount and all stories were to be told.

One explanation for failure of the league to introduce this garbage subject in the primary is that its members, at the time they were predicting an overwhelming victory for Mr. McArdle, were convinced he was a loser and did not wish to waste ammunition.

Another explanation is that three members of the league were members of the family originally connected with ownership of the garbage company, A. Rex Flinn, Ralph Flinn and Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence.

For one thing, it would not have been clubby for the league to have aired an alleged transaction which in any way reflected upon a relative of these three members. For another, it might have impeded the league in securing campaign contributions for the maintenance of its activities.

* * *

Gallagher Rumored Drafted Broadcaster

One member of the Flinn family is recorded as having given $1,500 to the McArdle campaign, though chief interest of the donor lay in the county ticket the league had slated, and to which it paid little attention.

Any one may draw his own conclusion as to why the subject was not aired in the days preceding the September primary. The incident is presented as one of the many divertisements of this highly diverting campaign.

Explanation that the Gallagher subject matter originated with a league member may have a bearing on the future personnel of the league when it goes through an expected reorganization process.

There is a rumor that not only was Mr. Gallagher not the roiginator of the data, but that he was not the original candidate picked to broadcast it.

Another Democratic Council candidate was the first choice. He declined and a second was picked. He, too, declined, and finally Mr. Gallagher was drafted.

The source of the charge, of course, has nothing to do with the validity of the allegations. No matter where it originated, it is something which Mayor Herron must meet. The Mayor has made one explanation, but he has not named those who were associated with him in the transaction, and that is information which should be laid before the public.

* * *

May Be Law But Not Good Politics

Little things can have a great bearing on a campaign, as the Republicans have discovered from experience. The latest is the arrest of distributors of Democratic literature for an extremely minor infraction of a city ordinance. The arrests proceeded from an excess zeal or arrogance from political second-stringers who still are of the opinion that they can do anything and get away with it because their party has been so long in power.

It might have been law, but it wasn't good politics. The pubilc comment is that this zeal usually manifests itself when the purpose is to hamstring party opponents. The net result has been to advertise the whole thing, to cause wonder if there are not some more important phases of law enforcement to engage policemen, and to make those who have not received the pamphlets anxious to know what they contain.

The Republican organization, scheduled State Chairman Martin for a speech Friday night, evidently intends to finish the campaign on the tone of "party regularity." That may be good for party members who have profited from the connection, but in a municipal election it doesn't interest the general public.

And Gen. Martin, wrong on the liquor question in Chicago last year, out of step on many subjects before the Legislature—so far as the liberal public is concerned—is not the ideal spokesman to entice those citizens who are not bound by partisan hoops.

PROTHONOTARY BOOKS HELD JUMBLED

Errors of Thousands Of Dollars Found, Auditors Say

Errors and irregularities involving thousands of dollars have been found in accounts and records of Prothonotary John Vogt, according to an audit report submitted to the County Commissioners by Main & Co.

The report covers Vogt's 13 years in the office and goes back into the term of his predecessor, William B. Kirker. The auditors reported they discovered apparent shortages and withdrawals and so far had been unable to obtain a satisfactory explanation.

Vogt, present when the audit findings were given to the County Commissioners, said he would be glad to answer any questions. He and his attorney, O. K. Eaton, will study the auditors' report and appear for the hearing November 14.

The auditors recommend immediate and drastic changes in control of the office's accounts.

Commenting on the report, Attorney Eaton said:

"The principal questions raised by the auditors' report are whether fees collected for poundage belong to the county, and whether interest on bank accounts belongs to the county.

"A hurried examination of the auditors' report does not disclose any contention on their part that there is any balance due the county for fees collected, except with reference to poundage and bank balances, with respect to which there never has been any decision.

"Mr. Vogt, during the auditors' examination of his office, gave them full access to his records and endeavored to assist them in every way and this he will continue to do."

Fight for Gold Dates Back to Dangerous Dan

By ARTHUR (Bugs) BAER

Haven't been such financial capers since the lady known as Lou tapped Dangerous Dan for his gold reserve.

We are after the nuggets with steam shovel and apothecary scales. We just grabbed a million from the Rand and we don't mean Sally.

An ounce of gold is worth $32 on the hoof, freight on board, Washington. You can scrape that much off your grandpop's shaving mug.

Victory will go to the nation who gets the most and buries it the deepest. The sweetest music will be furnished by the U. S. Marine Band when it jumps up and down and jingles its pockets.

The struggle for gold is not selfish. We are like the pack rat who wants it because he likes to hide it.

Ills of Freight Rates and Overproduction Held In Need of Remedies in Ministering to King Coal

Recovery Act, Code Solve Only Part Of Problems

(This is the last of a series of six articles containing a survey of the coal industry and appraising its hopes for the future.)

By HOWARD BROWNING

King Coal has a long way to go before he comes out of the woods.

The way isn't open yet and it'll take a lot of luck and a lot of work and vision to put him in the clear.

That's the inevitable conclusion after a study of conditions in the coal industry today.

The NIRA and the NRA code are big helps but they're not the entire solution.

They solve two prime evils—that of self-destructive price cutting and that of competing at the enpense of the working man through cruel wage cutting.

Unequal Freight Rates

They leave two other major evils unsolved, however—unequal and excessive freight rates and overproduction.

All four must be adjusted before the industry can return to the normal from which it descenden 10 years ago.

Adoption of the NRA coal code was the first step in that it tended to end the ruthless competition by which big operators sought to kill off little operators and little operators sought to survive.

The laboring man was assured a living wage for the time he spends in the mine. He was not promised he could spend enough time in the mine to make enough to live, however.

The producer was guaranteed protection from the undercutting of other operators willing to profit by victimizing labor in order to lower costs.

The stated legal right to collective bargaining, granted to the miner, guaranteed him lasting protection by the United Mine Workers of America, strongest and most conservative of the miners' organizations when the present national emergency is over and the code lapses.

There are inequalities even here but they will probably be readjusted in conference between the union and the operators in January.

The union will probably demand that the present basic scales, ranging from $3.40 a day in the South to $4.60 a day here, be leveled off and, probably, raised to or beyond $5 a day.

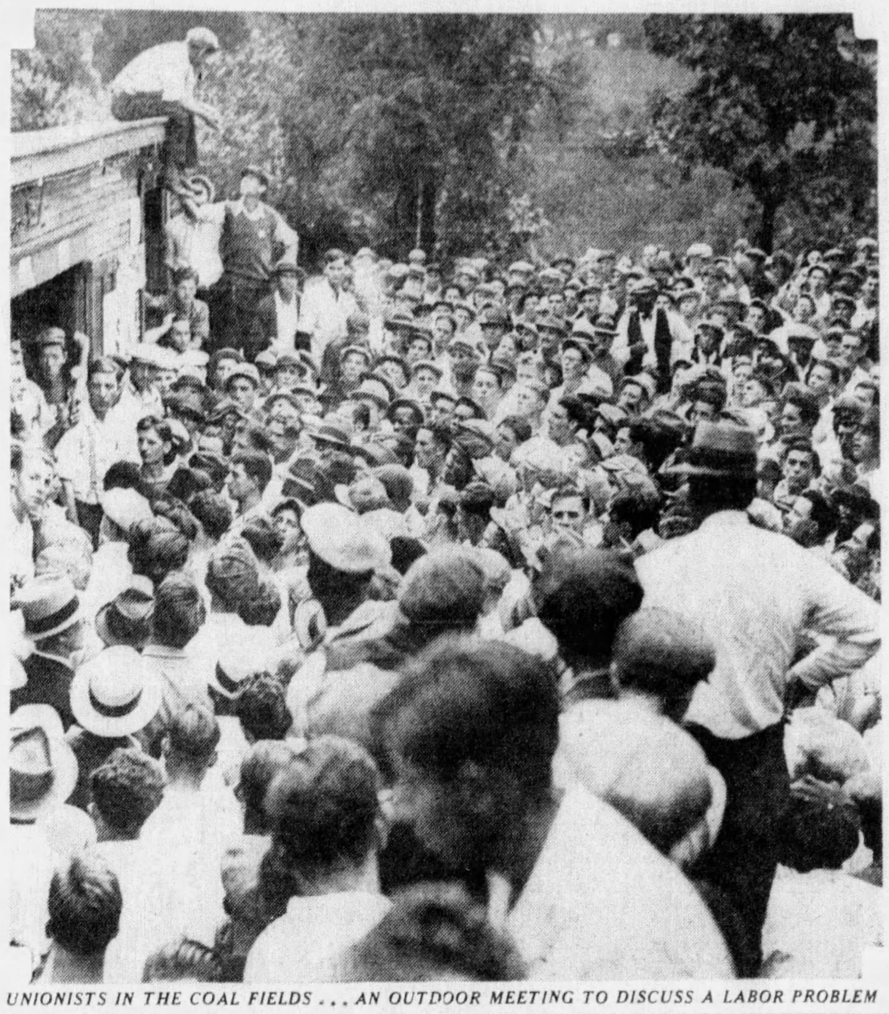
With the leveling of these wages, the Western Pennsylvania operator will find producing costs more nearly level with those down South.

As for the price cutting, another article in this series showed that the minimum prices for coal will give a profit to operators on every ton of coal they sell.

Price Differences

Here, again, Western Pennsylvania suffers an injustice which must, in time, be corrected. Because of lower costs—lower labor costs chiefly—southern prices are below northern prices.

The reason those prices pinch Western Pennsylvania so severely is that they perpetuate the injustice of rail rates which are too high for everyone and are too nearly the same over vastly different distances, tending to rob this district of its natural geographical advantages.



UNIONISTS IN THE COAL FIELDS . . . AN OUTDOOR MEETING TO DISCUSS A LABOR PROBLEM

Before a Senate committee investigating the coal industry, Charles O'Neill, chairman of the government relations committee of the National Coal Association, said last year:

"Coal is the most profitable traffic the carriers transport. It is easily handled, being loaded by the operator and unloaded by the customer. It moves in open-top equipment, largely in trainloads, with minimum loss and damage claims.

"Bituminous coal pays a higher freight rate in proportion to its value at destination than any other commodity except the two highly perishable commodities, fresh grapes and watermelons.

"On the basis of present mine prices, a freight rate reduction of 30 per cent, in my opinion, would place coal in competition with hydro-electricity, gas and oil and enable it to recover much of its lost business. It would leave the carriers a handsome profit.

"Freight rates are excessive to the extent of 50 cents to $1 a ton and we submit that the coal industry cannot continue to pay such tribute."

In 1930, railroads in this country hauled 614,772,520 tons of coal for $718,448,068. It cost—on an average—$1.17 to take each ton of coal from the mine to the consumer. On the longer hauls, the freight surpassed the actual sales price of the coal at the mines.

Only by reducing that extremely high cost of transporting coal can the industry be brought back to normal, experts assert.

But Western Pennsylvania's lot is especially hard; not only does this district suffer from high freight rates, it suffers from inequitable freight rates.

It costs $1.46 to ship a ton of coal to Lake Erie—where it will be trans-shipped to great industrial consuming centers to the North and West and East—from Western Pennsylvania; it costs only 35 cents more, or $1.81, to carry it 370 miles to Lake Erie from the Kanawha field of West Virginia.

That 8.8 cents per ton per mile for Pittsburgh, 3.5 for Harlan.

Harlan is many miles further from Detroit, Mich., than is Pittsburgh; the railroads' coal rate is the same.

Coal can be hauled 435 miles from West Virginia to Sandusky, O., for $1.96, but it costs $2.23 to carry it from Clearfield, Pa., 304 miles to Ashtabula, O.

While Pennsylvania's shipments of coal to the Great Lakes fell from 10,639,755 tons in 1914 to 7,774,443 tons in 1929, West Virginia's rose from 8,602,515 to 19,560,660, and Kentucky's from 858,827 to 6,814,482.

Consumption in Western Pennsylvania's nearest markets increased, but competitors farther away took all the increase and more besides. What good that Lake Erie, Northern Michigan, Canadian, New York and New England markets are nearer Western Pennsylvania than the South?

And remember that, if the Harlan operators sell coal at their mine mouths for 50 cents a ton less than Western Pennsylvania producers, and transport it to Cleveland for only 35 cents more than Western Pennsylvanians can, the market is Harlan's at 15 cents less than this district can quote.

That situation will probably be found to prevail even under the NRA prices when the smoke clears away from the present confusion.

Canal Remedy

And that's why many engineers and businessmen advocate digging a canal from the Youngstown (O.) district to Lake Erie, whereby the Great Lakes and the Ohio River would be connected for water transportation.

Economic surveys have shown that coal to Pittsburgh's natural markets on the Great Lakes and to the East and North and West of them could be transported for far less than rail haul costs, according to George M. Lehman, engineer of the Lake Erie-Ohio River Canal Board.

Since water transportation, at least, doesn't set up artificial differentials for favored districts, as railroads have in favor of the South, the canal would probably solve many of Western Pennsylvania's transportation ills.

But coal operators, for some reason—possibly traditional shortsightedness—have never united behind the plan, and even today, with the federal government offering public works funds for practicable projects there is no concerted drive for the canal, which may prove to be the only salvation for the Pittsburgh district.

But when transportation's settled, who's going to produce the coal?

What's to stop every Tom, Dick and Harry from opening a coal mine and flooding the market?

Since efficient mines can produce coal below the cost of inefficient mines and since the minimum prive level is set to assure the inefficient mines a profit, the efficient pits will have more money to spend on sales promotion, finding new uses for coal, and giving services to spur sales.

That, in itself, will eliminate many of the smaller, less efficient mines.

But even then, something must be done to prevent the haphazard opening of new mines, the development of new fields.

Many think that a scientific attack on the problem would set all controllable factors on an even keel.

Western Pa. Victim Of Differences in Hauling Costs

Coal Conservation

They say wages, North and South, should be the same; minimum prices would be the same; rail rates should be computed strictly on the scale of distances, with slight shadings per ton-mile for longer hauls.

Then steps should be taken by the government to conserve the output of coal which is, they point out, a natural resource vital to the well-being and progress of the nation.

Some would have the government buy up all undeveloped coal lands or forbid their development.

Others would have the government encourage the creation of huge monopolies, whereby a few highly efficient trusts would control all coal acreage and production, with the government sitting in the game when competition became destructive.

But whatever means are taken to improve the coal industry and limit over-production, those mine and land owners prevented or forbidden from doing business must suffer.

One expert has estimated that there is in the United States sufficient coal for 30 centuries—3,000 years—to come. Most of it is privately owned.

If owners of undeveloped coal lands or uneconomical mines must look forward to from 1 to 3,000 years of taxpaying before developing their properties, those properties are valueless to them.

And who, or what, will repay the owner who sees legislation to restrict development and production cause a drop of nearly 100 per cent in the value of his land?

The southern operator would find the juiciest plums of scientific adjustment of the industry going to the Western Pennsylvania and other northern mines. And that will hit several big railroad systems—notably the Norfolk and Western and the Virginian lines—a staggering blow; more than 95 per cent of the business of each of the two roads cited is from coal.

Whatever is done, if it is done with any impartiality and justice, it seems probable that Western Pennsylvania stands to benefit. For Western Pennsylvania has had a raw deal ever since the war.

But it is just as evident that the work has not been done yet. It is early to rejoice.

When it is done, riches and boom times will probably return to this district. When it is done, every store, every landlord, every railroad, theater, municipality, doctor and lawyer in Western Pennsylvania will be better off.

But until rail rates and overproduction are regulated, there's little hope of King Coal coming out of the woods.

He made a long step in the right direction when the NRA was foisted on him, but the old boy isn't noted for ingenuity, cleverness or luck, and someone will have to guide him the rest of the way.

PITT ECONOMIST FIGHTS STATE PAYMENT

Flying Foes Protest County Airport Ban By Commissioners

National American Legion Commander Edward A. Hayes today stepped into the hotbed of the controversy over the $50,000,000 bonus to Pennsylvania veterans just as the National Economy League lodged a protest with the County Commissioners for their refusal to permit the league's anti-bonus autogyro armada to land at the county airport yesterday.

Hayes sared the platform at the luncheon meeting of American Legion Post 59 in the Nixon Restaurant with Prof. Marion McKay, University of Pittsburgh economist, who attacked Amendment No. 4, which would enable the Assembly to provide the $50,000,000 veterans' bonus, favored by the legion. Marion had been invited to speak on the 12 constitutional amendments which will be voted on next Tuesday.

OPPOSES BONUS

After hearing the national commander blame the metropolitan Legion posts, "just such as in this city" for the black eye we received last spring, "because of lack of enthusiastic support of the Legion program, Prof. McKay said:

"I am opposed to Amendment 4, because at this time there is such crying need for general relief. If it had been jut up 10 years ago, I would have voted for it. Now there is a greater need for help from other directions."

As this verbal attack was made on the bond issue, the National Economy League gave out its letter of protest to the Commissioners, which reads in part:

"It is humiliating to our citicitizens to know that the Commissioners forced a group of distinguished war veterans, who came here as the guests of an organization including more than 2,000 Allegheny County veterans in its membership, to use a private landing field. Certainly the 25,000 active members of this branch of the National Economy League resent it.

"Why should any responsible group of citizens be denied the right to present their case openly and fairly?"

FLEET LEAVES CITY

As the autogiro fleet, which flew over the city yesterday with banners decrying the bonus, sped eastward today to carry the campaign to Philadelphia, Commander Hayes attempted to keep "hands off" the bonus question in Pennsylvania. At first he parried reporters' questions with:

"I am not familiar with local conditions."

However, after studying the vigorous attack against the bonus amendment, made last night in the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Club by the National Economy League, he broke his silence by asking this question:

"Who could properly be opposed to having the electorate pass upon this bond issue? In my home state of Illinois we passed identically the same

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 1.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

News today says, "U. S. and England agree on gold control." But it didn't say nothing about France, who has all the gold. It's always good to take it up with the teacher before a couple of students decide when school will be out.

Will Rogers

King Bor-us of Bulgaria and King Carol of Rumania met to decide ways to improve relations between the two countries.

It was suggested Carol take Bor-us' sister to wife. Nations got a funny sense of humor, aint they? English royalty waited till they had all married Germans, then they went to war with 'em.

Germans all married Russians, then fought. Bor-us, you better pan that sister off on some local guy. Yours, WILL.

Are you alert? Do you wish to make your alertness pay? The Sun-Telegraph is presenting the opportunity. Every week it is offering a total of $50 in prizes for NEWS TIPS telephoned to the News Tip Editor, Grant 6500.

If you know of an accident, of a business merger, of a big building project—that is NEWS. Watch especially for unusual stories about children and animals and for stories that lend themselves to interesting pictures.

For the best exclusive news tip of the week $15.00 will be given for the second best, $10.00, and for the next 25 best, $1.00 each.

County Chiefs Consent To Closing of Manse

It's all right with the County Commissioners if the Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs decide to abandon the maintenance of the old stone manse in South Park as an historical exhibit, Commissioner C. C. McGovern told Mrs. John M. Phillips, a representative of the organization.

A week ago the Commissioners decided to dispense with the services of the caretaker and close the place during the winter. Mrs. Phillips appeared at the Commissioner's meeting yesterday to protest and said:

"If we take everything out now, the federation will not take up the work again in the spring."

McGovern then said:

"That will be all right."

Both McGovern and Commissioner C. M. Barr said they had been to the old manse and found the caretaker absent and the place locked. Mrs. Phillips said she could hardly believe that.

RAIL LEADERS HERE MUM ON PRINCE PLAN

Railroad executives in Pittsburgh today declined to comment on the Prince plan of railroad consolidations and the sweeping changes which it contemplates in railroad terminals here.

High officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Philadelphia declined to comment, although it was pointed out that President W. W. Atterbury, in an address last May before the United States Chamber of Commerce in Washington, advocated consolidation of all railroads into a limited number of systems.

The Prince plan is being studied at Washington by Co-ordinator Joseph B. Eastman and also by officials of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, who are attempting to get the carriers in improved financial condition before making new loans.

As yet, the railroads involved have not given consent to the consolidations, and there is nothing to indicate they will be carried through without full consent of the owners.

Details of the Prince plan in Pittsburgh include a union station at the Pennsylvania terminal, abandonment of the Baltimore and Ohio passenger and freight stations at Water and Smithfield streets, closing the Junction Hollow line, including the Shadyside tunnel and the Thirty-third street bridge, and the possible abandonment of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie station for through train service.

Chicago Fair Opens 12-Day Hold-Over

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—(INS.)—A Century of Progress Exposition originally scheduled to close its gates last night began a 12-day "encore" engagement today with daily lectures on science planned for the extension period. An Armistice Day celebration will be the highlight of the 12-day program.

Brewers have agreed to furnish 2,000 barrels of beer for free distribution at the fair on Personal Liberty Day, November 8.

Divorces were granted to Margaret L. Kennedy from Henry P. Kennedy, Carl John Becker from Catherine Becker, Elsie May Pyles from Robert Lee Pyles, Alice M. Falvy from James M. Falvy, Albert F. Smith from Mary C. Smith, Thomas Hamlin from Bessie Hamlin, Florence Marty from Otto Marty and to Virginia L. Klein from Edward J. Klein.

Live Wire Kills 2 Trying to Save Dog

LAKE WAWASEE, Ind., Nov. 1.—(INS.)—A Coroner's report today held that Christian Payne, 40, and his wife, Elizabeth, 38, were electrocuted by a high voltage wire in a futile attempt to save their police dog from death.

While chasing an opossum the dog struck the high voltage wire. Payne and his wife went to the rescue and when they touched the animal they, too, were electrocuted.

Evicted Farmer Accused in Killings

PARADISE, Tex., Nov. 1.—(AP.)—An elected tenant farmer, Tim Harlan, 40, was in jail at Decatur today for questioning after the killing here last night of Gib Womack, 23, and Coleman Miller, 24, young farmer cousins and grandsons of J. F. Womack, on whose land Harlan had been living.

HOSPITAL FETES CHILDREN

Children in Passavant Hospital shared in the Halloween fun yesterday. Good cheer and good eats were on hand to brighten the holiday for the ailing children.

Mrs. Herman C. Koch, of Northumberland street, secretary of the hospital board, arranged the party. She was assisted by little Tommy Schreckengost II, who was "unfortunate" enough to be entirely recovered from an appendix operation, and taken home just before the ice cream was served.

Jack Maskowitz, 5, and Mary Pattinson, 14, saw to it that Tommy's dish was not wasted.

CHURCH FLAYS REPEAL FOES

Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, today declared opposition to repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment is "false in religion, false in morals, false in patriotism."

Pointing out President Roosevelt's election was a mandate from the nation for immediate repeal, he said:

"Prohibition has been fairly tried and has failed in shame and disgrace. It has increased drunkeness, promoted crime and destroyed the honesty of our public service. In Pittsburgh the arrests for drunkeness in the last saloon year were 14,000; last year, under prohibition, these arrests had jumped to 32,000. And so it goes all over the country.

"In accomplishing this act of repeal we propose, through an unremitting prayer to the social conscience of our people, to exchange national drunkeness, hypocrisy, and crime, for national sobriety, honesty and public order."

STAR MARRIES BRUCE CABOT

CARLSBAD, N. M., Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Bruce Cabot and Adrienne Ames, Hollywood film stars, were married at the home of Cabot's mother near here yesterday. Only members of the family were present at the ceremony which was performed by a justice of the peace.

Those present included Miss Linda March, of Beverly Hills, Cal., sister of the bride; Mrs. E. P. Bujac, Cabot's mother; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Keer, uncle and aunt of the actor, and John E. Joyce, of Carlsbad.

Miss Ames and Cabot motored here from Albuquerque.

Miss Ames was granted a divorce Monday from Stephen Ames, New York broker.

Man Who Gambled On Dewey Battle Dies

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Charles Fox May Guild, 67, veteran journalist who wrote one of the first published accounts of Admiral Dewey's victory at Manila Bay, died at his home here last night.

During the Spanish-American War a cable was cut, and all news of the war shut off. Because of his personal acquaintance with Admiral Dewey, he had sufficient confidence to print a victory for Dewey without knowing it to be a fact. Over the repaired cable the next day came verification.

HAYES HEARS BONUS FIGHT

TAKES SHOT AT LEAGUE

Only one verbal shot fired at the National Economy League's meeting last night aroused the legion chief to a direct answer. It was the assertion by the Rev. Richard M. Gurley, commander of the Anthony Wayne Post that the fight against the bonus is really a fight against government by mercenaries. To this Hayes said:

"I certainly do not think that the men who went into the trenches in 1917 and 1918 were mercenary."

State Commander Otto Messner, of Lancaster, who greeted Hayes upon his arrival, declared:

"This bonus question has been up for 10 years. It is coming to the veterans. Already 21 states have passed such bonuses."

'LOCAL PROBLEM'

Messner and Hayes agreed that Amendment No. 4 is a local problem and must be carried out by Pennsylvanians.

Hayes said he was primarily working for two objectives:

"1—Take care of the maimed and needy veterans. That the reason we were organized, because history told us that in past wars the deserving had trouble in getting recognition.

"2—Lay the proper foundation for future generations of American citizens."

However, he said, his immediate purpose is to obtain restoration of the benefits to disabled World War veterans.

Hayes visited the Marine Hospital, the United States Veterans' Hospital at Aspinwall, and during the afternoon he was to give three radio talks speaking from station KDKA at 3:15; WCAE at 5:15, and also on WWSW. His visit here will climax tonight with a meeting of veterans in the North Side Carnegie Music Hall.

Police Revive Man Overcome by Gas

Overcome by gas in his room, George Lunn, 29, of 7717 St. Lawrence street, Swissvale, was resuscitated by police and firemen under the directions of Gus McClelland, first-aid expert, yesterday, according to police report.

Fire in a small gas stove in his room had been blown out, police said. Four tanks of oxygen were administered with an inhalator before the man was revived.

GAINS PLEASING TO ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt was said in highest quarters today to be feeling that the recovery program is getting along well, after a study of charts he has just received showing increases in employment and the total wages being paid.

Secretary Perkins reported to him that the average hourly wages have risen from 42 cents to 51, while the average hourly work week has declined from 42 hours to 36.

A special report by government economists asserts that the reaction in production in some of the major industries is a result of over-production between March and July and is not due to a lack of demand.

In other words, the report says this recession from the July peak was to be expected.

PRIZE RECIPES NOT LIMITED BY HOLIDAY

An interested follower of the Sun-Telegraph-Prudence Penny favorite recipe contest telephoned yesterday and asked if only Thanksgiving recipes are to be printed during the pre-holiday season.

Prudence Penny announces that the prize recipe column will continue to present practical suggestions for the preparation and cooking of good things to eat, but some of the prizes will be awarded to Thanksgiving "specials," many of which are just as adaptable for every-day use as they are to holiday service. So, housewives, if you have a favorite of any kind, send it to Prudence Penny. Send as many as you like.

The Sun-Telegraph is awarding $15 in cash every day for the best recipes submitted to Prudence Penny by the housewives of Pittsburgh and vicinity. There is a daily prize of $5 and 10 daily prizes of $1 each. Address your favorites to Prudence Penny, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

FIVE-DOLLAR PRIZE WINNER FOR WEDNESDAY

MRS. C. R. MARQUIS,
2749 Merwyn avenue.

UNKNEADED LEATHER ROLLS

One pint milk.
Six tablespoons melted shortening.
Two tablespoons sugar.
One yeast cake.
One-fourth cupful lukewarm water.
Six cupfuls flour.
One teaspoon salt.

Scald the milk, add sugar and melted shortening, set aside to cool. When lukewarm add flour, salt and yeast softened with water. Beat this vigorously several minutes, cover and let rise where it is free from draft. After two hours stir the mixture down, let rise again, stir down and drop by generous tablespoonfuls into well-greased muffin tins. Let rise to double their bulk, bake in a moderate over (375 degrees F.) 25 minutes. Though not as fine in texture as kneaded rolls these are just as tender and delicious.

TEN ONE-DOLLAR PRIZE WINNERS.

MRS. AUGUST BONOMO,
3000 Perrysville avenue.

APRICOT JAM

Wash one pound dried apricots and chop. Add six cups water and soak several hours. Boil 10 minutes, add one and one-half pounds sugar and continue boiling for 30 minutes. Pour into hot glasses and seal with parafin. This is a delicious jam and you can make it any time of the year.

MRS. E. O. WITHERS,
165 Pennsylvania avenue, Wilson.

HAM TIMBALES

One and one-half cups boiled ham.
One-fourth cup bread crumbs.
One egg, well beaten.
Paprika.
One cup milk.
One tablespoon shortening, melted.
One-fourth teaspoon baking powder.

Add ingredients in order given, except paprika, which is added last, and mix well. Pour into well-greased muffin pans. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until mixture is firm in center. Serve with a tomato sauce.

MRS. MABEL ELLINGER,
106 E. Church street, Masontown.

SWEET POTATOES IN ORANGE CUPS

Two and one-fourth cups cooked, mashed sweet potatoes.
One-fourth cup evaporated milk.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Three oranges.
Three marshmallows, halved.

Mix together the sweet potatoes, milk and salt. Cut the oranges in halves and remove pulp, discarding white membrane. Cut in small pieces, then drain. Add to the sweet potato mixture. Pile lightly in orange skins and put the marshmallows on top. Bake in a moderate oven 20 minutes, or until browned. Serves six.

MRS. M'KAIGE,
7932 Maderia street.

HALLOWEEN SALAD

Four seedless oranges.
Two pounds large prunes.
One-fourth pound cream cheese.
One cup walnut meats.
One-fourth cup cream.
One-half teaspoon salt.

Soak prunes and bring to a boil. Cool, drain and remove stones. Combine cheese, cream, salt and nuts, and stuff the prunes with the mixture. Arrange three prunes and three orange sections on lettuce leaf, add a teaspoon French dressing. Serves 12.

MISS HELEN CIANFARANO,
1610 Pennsylvania avenue,
Monaco.

GREEN TOMATO RELISH
(ITALIAN STYLE.)

Ten onions (large).
Seven green tomatoes (large).
Three ounzes salt.
One pint water.
One pint vinegar.
One oz. ground pickling spices.
One cup sugar.

Slice onions in round slices about one-fourth inch thick. Slice tomatoes the same thickness in round slices also. Place tomatoes and onions in basket, add salt and mix. Place a large weight on them and let remain overnight. This will permit all the water to thoroughly drain. In a large kettle put in vinegar, water, sugar and the spices (spices should be placed in a cloth and securely tied). Allow to boil for 10 minutes. Add the tomatoes and onions and boil for five minutes. Remove spices. Quickly fill clean, hot jars, allowing the kettle to remain on the fire until finished canning. Seal jars tightly.

CHARLEY GOODWIN,
Hazel-Atlas Glass Company,
Clarksburg, W. Va.

OPEN SANDWICH SUPREME

Six slices pressed ham.
Six teaspoons horseradish.
Six slices tomato.
Six slices sandwich bread.

Toast one side of the bread. On the untoasted side, place tomatoes. Spread horseradish on pressed ham, fold up like jelly role, put on top of tomato and run a toothpick through to hold together. Grill for a few minutes until ham sizzles and eat at once.

MRS. HAROLD H. LAMPMAN,
223 Castle Shannon road,
Mt. Lebanon.

BROWN BETTY

Two cups bread crumbs.
Two cups sliced apples.
One-third cup butter, melted.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One-half cup sugar.
Two tablespoons lemon juice.
One-half cup water.

Mix ingredients. Pour into buttered baking dish. Cover and bake 50 minutes in moderate oven. Serves four.

MRS. H. W. RYAN,
1404 Jefferson street, Latrobe.

HASSEN PFEFFER
(SOUR RABBIT)

Two rabbits.
Prepare a liquid of diluted vinegar.
One teaspoon mixed spices.
Two bay leaves.
One medium-sized onion.

Let rabbit stand in the liquid for from two to five days. Drain rabbit, fry a nice brown. Remove rabbit. Brown two tablespoons flour in the butter in which rabbit was fried, add one cup of the liquid including some of the spices. Return rabbit to skillet and simmer. About 20 minutes before it is done add a few small onions and some potatoes either cubed or cut in small round balls.

MRS. ROSINA BARBER,
9 Vincent street, Mt. Oliver.

DEVILED STEAK

Two tablespoons butter.
One tablespoon onion.
One and one-half pounds flank steak.
Two tablespoons flour.
One teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon pepper.
One-eighth teaspoon paprika.
One teaspoon mustard.
One tablespoon vinegar.
One tablespoon flour.
Two cups water.

Melt the butter in a frying pan, slice the onion in it and saute gently until golden brown. Remove the onion from the butter. Cut the flank steak into pieces, two by three inches. Dredge these lightly in one tablespoon flour and saute in the butter until well browned. Remove meat from frying pan; add salt, pepper, paprika, mustard, vinegar and flour. Mix all together and add water slowly. Replace the steak in the pan, cover closely and simmer one hour. Serve on a warm platter and pour gravy over it.

MRS. ELLA ROBERTS,
Allison Park.

CHIPPED BEEF AND POTATOES IN CASSEROLE.

One-fourth pound chipped beef.
Six medium sized potatoes.
One small onion.
One-half green or red pepper.
One tablespoon flour.
One tablespoon butter.
Two and one-half cups milk.

Cut beef in small pieces and brown to a crisp in butter or drippings. Slice potatoes thinly—also the onion. Heat milk and butter together, thicken with the flour—add to this a dash of pepper, but no salt. Place potatoes, beef, onion and pepper, sliced thinly, layer by layer, in buttered casserole, pouring a little of (white sauce) thickened milk over each layer until casserole is full, having the meat as last layer with a little of sliced pepper. Pour the remainder of milk over top; also a little grated cheese to decorate. The above served with one-sixth head of lettuce with French dressing, provides an easily prepared dish for the busy housewife. It serves six persons. Bake 60 minutes in moderate oven.

GUILLOTINE SET FOR BLUEBEARD

International News Service.

AIX-EN-PROVENCE, France, Nov. 1.—The bloody career of a French Bluebeard, whose crimes were compared to those of the notorious Landru, came to an end today when Georges Sarret, who posed for years as a reputable insurance attorney, was condemned to die on the guillotine for murder.

Two co-defendants, Philomela and Catherine Schmid, sisters, who aided Sarrett while under his alleged "hypnotic spell," were sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment each.

The three were charged with being the leaders of a Marseilles murder ring responsible for at least half a dozen deaths, and with collecting insurance after each slaying.

Sarret and the two sisters were charged specifically with the murder of Louis Chambron, described as an unfrocked clergyman, and his companion, Mme. Blanche Ballandraux.

'Human Radio' Cuts His 'Ground' Wire

ENUMCLAW, Wash., Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Martin Bodker, Enumclaw dairyman and "human radio," no longer has to "ground" himself against the annoyance of aerial waves by holding a wire-wrapped cane in a pail of water.

The middle-aged Bodker disclosed today that he has invented a belt, which effectively insulates himself against ether disturbances.

TAMMANY FOES HIT BANK LOANS

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—A financing plan adopted by New York City and its bankers was under fire from two of the leading candidates for Mayor today, but both agreed the agreement was necessary to save the city from bankruptcy.

Speaking at a rally at Carnegie Hall last night, both Fiorello H. LaGuardia, Fusion, and Joseph V. McKee, Recovery party, deplored conditions which necessitated the banking plan.

McKee called the agreement a "straightjacket" and a "humiliating confession of financial incompetence."

LaGuardia assailed Tammany Hall and its candidate, Mayor John P. O'Brien, asserting the philosophy of government they represented was responsible for the city's financial plight. Both pledged economy.

The rally, a non-partisan meeting, saw LaGuardia and McKee speak from the same stage. Robert Minor, Communist candidate, and Charles Soloman, Socialist nominee, also spoke.

Bullet Fired at Rally Wounds N. Y. Child

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—A (AP.)—A 10-year-old girl, Reba Garson, dropped to the street at her mother's side tonight while attending a Brooklyn political rally in the street. Physicians found the child was suffering from a bullet wound in the abdomen.

Police began an investigation, but none of the crowd heard a shot fired. Reba is in a Brooklyn hospital in a serious condition.

Two U. S. Prisoners Flee Patrol Wagon

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Two federal prisoners, Richard Adams, 35, alias Adamski, and John Stadig, 25, were at liberty today after a sensational escape from a patrol wagon while being transported from the United States Courthouse to the County Jail.

The escape occurred last night when the two in some manner became released from their handcuffs and overpowered Deputy Marshal Henry Glaubke after two other deputies had leaped to the ground to go to the aid of a small boy struck by the truck in heavy loop traffic.

HITLER GRANTS AID TO JEWISH DESTITUTE

International News Service.

BERLIN, Nov. 1.—Germany's nation-wide campaign for relief of jobless and destitute persons during the winter was launched today with distribution of food by thousands of local boards of the Nazi pary.

Realizing the coming winter will be a severe test on the party's dominance, 50 pounds of potatoes and 15 cents worth of fats will be handed out to each applicant for relief.

It was announced that the racial question would not figure in the campaign and that non-Aryans would be included in the relief measure at the explicit desire of Chancellor Hitler.

Jews make up nearly 50 per cent of the claimants in Western Berlin, where members of the Jewish welfare committees supervise distribution.

World Jewish Conference Considers Relief

LONDON, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—The problem of how to raise $10,000,000 for Jewish refugees from Germany confronted a general session of the World Jewish Conference today.

That is the amount it has been estimated will be needed properly to administer relief to the approximately 65,000 refugees.

The program, when adopted, will be submitted to James G. MacDonald, of New York, high commissioner for German refugees, for his approval.

At the same time, the conference is expected to present the names of an American, a Briton and a Pole who are to be nominated as members of the high commissioner's governing body.

While no definite decisions had been reached, it was reported the conference might consider a proposal to settle some of the refugees on the Island of Cyprus.

NAZIS CONSIDER FATE OF BRITON

BERLIN, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—The fate of Noel Panter, a British newspaperman who was imprisoned in Munich on a reported charge of suspicion of espionage, rested today with Leipzig legal authorities now hearing testimony regarding the arson of the Reichstag Building in Berlin.

Material regarding the case will be examined by the court during ...esses in the incendiary trial. ...man legal authorities must ...e whether there is material ...nt for an indictment. If ...anter will be released im...diately.

If an indictment is decided upon, the next question would involve the charge. If the accusation is espionage the panel now trying the five men for firing the Reichstag will consider Panter's case. If the charge is one of high treason a special court will be constituted.

In either event it was indicated the trial will be closed to the public. Panter was accused of misrepresenting a Nazi demonstration at which Chancellor Hitler spoke.

Nazis Corral Foes, Communists Seized

BERLIN, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Police, tracking down anti-Nazis in the Essen district, today reported the arrest of 125 persons and the discovery of illegal Communist organizations at various places in the Ruhr Basin.

An emergency court at Oels sentenced a Communist, Gerber, to death for the murder of a Nazi. Seventy Communists who had been in a concentration camp were released at Hamburg after being taken to a Nazi campaign meeting.

'Anti-Jewish Course Looming in Austria

VIENNA, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Persistent rumors that the government of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss is soon to steer a definitely anti-Semitic course took on a more concrete form today.

An editorial in the semi-official Reichspost sharply pointed out that the Nazis must not be credited with the invention of anti-Semitism. The word "shylock," applied to Jews, was indicative of the editorial's general tone.

Two Held for Court In 'Numbers' Case

Two Hill District men were held for court at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan, of Sewickley, yesterday on charges of operating lotteries. Constables raided the alleged establishments of the men, John Brown, a Negro, of 1400 Wylie avenue, and Ben Klein, 2043 Wylie avenue, and found number books, they testified.

The Official Ballot for Use at the Polls in Pittsburgh at Tuesday's Election

Interested Voters Will Clip This Ballot Reproduction Today Because There Will Be Only a Limited Number of "Sample Ballots" Available

THE VOTER IS CAUTIONED AGAINST MAKING ERASURES ON THE BALLOT. IF A MISTAKE IS MADE IN MARKING FOR A CANDIDATE NOT OF YOUR CHOICE OR IN MARKING FOR MORE CANDIDATES THAN THE NUMBER TO BE ELECTED, "ASK FOR A NEW BALLOT."

To vote a straight party ticket, mark a cross (X), not a check mark (√) or any other mark, in the square, in the first column, opposite the name of the party of your choice.

A cross (X) in the square opposite the name of any candidate indicates a vote for that candidate.

To vote for a person whose name is not on the ballot, write or paste his or her name in the blank space provided for that purpose. This shall count as a vote either with or without the cross mark.

To vote for an individual candidate of another party after making a mark in the party square, mark a cross (X) opposite his or her name.

For an office where more than one candidate is to be elected, the voter, after marking in the party square, may divide his or her vote by marking a cross (X) to the right of each candidate for whom he or she desires to vote. For such office votes shall not be counted for candidates not individually marked, if voter has split ticket.

R A E APPOINTED TO TAX BOARD

James Rae, former president of the Chamber of Commerce, and at present a member of the county's committee on federal aid projects, has been appointed a member of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes. He fills the vacancy caused by the death of John Francies.

Rae was appointed on recommendation of Chairman C. C. McGovern.

Commissioner C. M. Barr voted with McGovern for Rae's appointment. The position pays $4,250.

N. Y. Woman Weds Egyptian Prince

LONDON, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Mrs. Kate Stevens Hofer, of New York, and Prince Ibrahim Fazil, the only surviving son of the late Baroness Marthe de Carnap, of Villa Carnap, Posillipo, Naples, were married here today in a quiet ceremony.

The bride, who also maintains a home in Belgrave Square, London, announced the engagement last week, describing her fiance as the son of Prince Ali Fazil, of Egypt, a cousin of the King of Egypt and a lieutenant in the British Royal Artillery.

Escapes Gallows, Fights Life Term

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Joseph Doyle, 31-year-old farm hand who was convicted of attacking a 5-year-old girl and was sentenced to death, escaped the gallows today, but was doomed to a life in prison.

Judge John Ritz, overruled a motion for a new trial and imposed the life sentence. Doyle, weeping, was taken to jail where he will spend the next 90 days while his attorneys prepare an appeal to the Circuit Court.

Trolley Jacked Up To Free Injured Girl, 8

Mary Bloom, 8, of 230 Isabella street, North Side, was in Allegheny General Hospital today with a possible skull fracture and a broken right shoulder, arm and jaw, suffered when struck by a street car at Anderson and Isabella streets, late yesterday.

Police and the railways company emergency crew extracted the child after hoisting the car with jacks. She was struck as she ran across the street, police reported.

Holdup Was a Bargain, Storekeeper Declares

Samuel Iskowitz thinks he got a bargain when a holdup man visited his clothing store at 703 Walnut street, Versailles.

The bandit has a pair of Iskowitz' shoes today but Iskowitz has the bandit's gun, Iskowitz said.

"A man came in my store and anted to buy a pair of shoes. I ld him the shoes and he put em on. I then asked him if I ould sell him some other merchandise. I sold him some hirts, underwear, ties and ther merchandise. It was almost $20 worth, so I sold him some more to make it an even $20.

"When he reached in his pocket to pull out the money he pulled out a gun.

"I grabbed the gun from him and chased him from the store.

"In the street I fired at him. He had another gun and fired back at me. A woman got in the way and almost got shot.

"All he got was the shoes. He left his old shoes and I got his gun.

"I guess it's a bargain anytime."

C.C.C. Forester Held In Bedford Stabbing

BEDFORD, Pa., Nov. 1.—Samuel Rochele, Beaver Falls, a member of the C. C. C. camp located near Chaneysville, this county, walked into the home of Victor Ault, near the camp, and, without warning, stabbed Cal Johnson, 22, of Chaneysville, over the heart, police reported today.

Rochele was held in Bedford County Jail. Johnson was in Sipes Hospital at Everett, Pa., in a critical condition.

Ward Abuse Charge Fails, Youth Freed

Robert Herring, 20, of Overbrook, was cleared of a charge of mistreating a 14-year old girl, a Juvenile Court ward in his parents' home, in a verdict returned before Visiting Judge Ivan J. McKenrick in Criminal Court.

The girl was placed in another home, after the charge was preferred against the youth, testimony showed. On cross examination the girl testified she was not mistreated.

MRS. COOLIDGE VISITS BABY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, widow of the President, paid her first visit late yesterday to her first grandchild, Cynthia Coolidge.

Mrs. Coolidge slipped quietly into the New Haven Hospital and spent about an hour with the three-day-old baby and its mother, Florence Trumbull Coolidge.

She drove to New Haven from her home in Northampton, Mass., and went first to the offices of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, where her son John—the new father—is employed. He accompanied her to the hospital.

Steel Merger Foes Must Pay Suit Cost

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Stockholders and attorneys who fought the billion-dollar merger of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company a few years ago lost a decision in the State Supreme Court today to have the Youngstown company pay the expenses of the court proceedings and attorney fees, which totaled more than $1,250,000.

A master commissioner, appointed by the Mahoning County Court of Appeals, recommended the costs and fees not be paid by the company. The Appelate Court upheld the master's recommendation and today the Supreme Court refused to review the case.

PARK LAKE FUND REQUESTED

The formal application for a loan of $620,000 from the Federal Public Works Administration for construction of a lake and swimming pool in North Park was to be sent to the state committee at Harrisburg today, the County Commissioners having approved the project yesterday. The application will ask an outright grant of 30 per cent.

The lake, covering 48 acres, would be formed through construction of a dam across the north and west branches of Pine Creek. The relocated Babcock boulevard would be built atop the dam.

Owner Pays $10 So Kidnapers Free Cat

RICHMOND HILL, Ontario, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Mrs. Libby Devine revealed yesterday that she had paid $10 for the return of her kidnaped cat, Mitzi.

It was a lot of money for a cat, she admitted, but Mitzi, Mrs. Devine smilingly explained, is a lucky omen.

She related that the kidnapers left a note reading:

"We have got your cat, Mitzi. Leave $10 under shack at corner of Hunt's lane or we shall shoot the cat."

She left the 10.

CITY APPROVAL ON AID BONDS PREDICTED

Approval by Pittsburgh voters of the $25,000,000 state relief bond issue, providing for restoration of the one-third cut from the fund allotments of 163 state-aided hospitals, is assured.

This prediction was made yesterday by Mayor John S. Herron before 300 civic and welfare leaders in the Fort Pitt Hotel upon the launching of a campaign to put the bond issue across.

The Mayor responded to Dr. Maitland Alexander's declaration that if the bond issue fails, "it won't be worthwhile to keep the state-aided hospitals open," with this assertion:

"The Republican City Committee will give you 100 per cent support and the Independents and Regulars will march to the polls together and there'll be one "X" on the ballot for the Eighth Amendment."

Denying Gov. Pinchot was responsible for the cut in the hospital allotment, which makes necessary the passage of the bond issue to give them aid, Mrs. Alice F. Liveright, secretary of welfare, said:

"Taxes are unpopular and so are bond issues, but when a committee representing members of the Assembly and the State Emergency Relief Board went to Washington, it was obvious that no further funds for relief would be issued from Washington without a guarantee of continued state funds."

A resolution was adopted by the meeting urging passage of the bond issue and adding that:

"Since even this amount does no more than restore to the hospitals what they have lost, and does not take into account the huge surplus of free care they have given, it is clear that more money must be allotted to hospitals and that they should, therefore, be included, as a matter of right and emergency, in Gov. Pinchot's call for a special session of the Assembly."

Other speakers included Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, John L. Stewart, of Washington, Pa., and John F. Casey.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 1.—With Governors of four states en route to Washington today to place their farm relief program demands before President Roosevelt, National Farmers' Holiday Association leaders declared a virtual "truce" in the farm strike.

The strike in Wisconsin, focal point of the holiday movement, was called off pending action by the federal government.

Immediate "pegging" of prices for all major agricultural products and currency inflation were the principal demands made in the relief program to be submitted to the President.

Practically the entire program of the Farmers' Holiday Association won the approval of Governors at the nine-state agricultural conference which closed here last night. Four Governor members of the conference were dispatched to Washington to push for its adoption there. They are to confer with the President Thursday.

JOKER CHARGED IN STEEL CODE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Demand for removal of a "joker" in the steel code, allegedly framed to aid railroads in their battle for business against the $1,500,000,000 motor truck industry, were before Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator today.

The demand was made by the American Trucking Association, composed of the leading motor freight lines of the nation.

The so-called "joker" is a provision under which steel companies must include in their price the railroad freight rate to point of destination.

The effect of this, officials of the trucking association contend, is to remove the advantage they may have over railroads in charging lower rates. Similar provisions were proposed in the cement, structural steel and bolt and nut industries.

CAR FUMES KILL SOCIETY WOMAN

MERION, Pa., Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Carbon monoxide fumes killed Mrs. Bettina Crozier, socially prominent opera patroness, whose body was found in the garage at the rear of her home.

Her husband, Richard J. Crozier, sportsman and president of a Philadelphia steel company, found her slumped on the car seat last night after he had searched their home, alarmed at her failure to meet him at the railroad station. Police listed the death as accidental.

A patroness of the little opera movement in Philadelphia about five years ago, Mrs. Crozier was the former Bettina Leighton, of Helena, Mont., and a sister-in-law of former Gov. Spriggs of that state. She was about 40 years old.

FIRST MAN: "What's he so tickled about?"
INTERPRETER: "He says the 25c tube of Colgate's is now 19c!"

NO WONDER people are so pleased. For Colgate's Dental Cream removes ALL the 7 kinds of stains that discolor teeth!

Colgate's has TWO cleansing actions. Most toothpastes have one. And all stains will not yield to one cleansing action.

Colgate's has an emulsive action—dissolves and washes away some of the stains. And a gentle polishing action safely removes all others. That's why Colgate's gives beauty of teeth, after other toothpastes fail.

Special. For a limited time only you can get the large 25c tube for 19c. Go to your dealer's today—take advantage of this offer.

CLAM NIPS BEAK OF SEA GULL

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—There's one sea gull flying around Sheepshead Bay that has learned a bitter lesson—never poke your beak at a clam.

This gull spied the clam, a big fellow, lying just under the water yesterday with its mouth open. The bird stuck its nose into the clam, and the latter snapped its jaws shut.

Then began a battle and much churning of water as the bird tried to free itself. The clam held on and pulled the gull beneath the surface.

A crowd collected. Policeman James Kelly ran up, pulled off his shoes and waded out to where the struggle was going on. He reached into the water and brought out a clam as big as his two fists with the sea gull still hanging on. The policeman tried to pry open the steel jawed clam with a pocket knife, but was unsuccessful.

Then he drew his club and whacked. That did the business. The clam's shell broke and the gull was freed. It was left with just pep enough left to fly away.

W. C. T. U. GETS NEW HEAD

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ella A. Boole, for eight years militant president of the W. C. T. U., will retire today in favor of Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, of Des Moines, Ia.

At her Brooklyn home Mrs. Boole said:

"It looks as if repeal were coming, although we won't concede defeat until the thirty-sixth state votes to end prohibition."

The dry leader said she intended to devote herself henceforth to her work as president of the World's W. C. T. U. She said:

"The W. C. T. U. intends to devote its time chiefly to education for the next few years. We will urge people to become total abstainers and teach them the effects of alcohol. Our ultimate goal, however, will be to bring back prohibition."

Illinois Disapproves Canadian Liquor Plan

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 1.—(INS.)—Sale of liquor "by the package only" system was definitely ruled out by the Illinois Liquor Control Study Commission, in session here, today.

The decision, the first to be voted for recommendation to the General Assembly, opposed the liquor sale system of Canadian provinces and opened the way for the sale of spirits by the drink in the places of purchase.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Last night was Halloween, fellows.

Did you have a good time? We surely hope that you did—not only Junior Patrol members, but everybody.

People who were out on the streets in costume had a lot of fun—throwing confetti and making a big noise! Winter is coming along, and pretty soon we will be playing in the snow and ice skating. Halloween, you know, is really a harvest festival—celebrating the storage of the crops ready for the winter.

Capt. Jean Kirk, of 3725 Atkins street, North Side, sends this letter today:

"We had a party on August 28. We had a potato, corn, weiner and marshmallow roast on September 16. We have $1.68 in the treasury. We have our meetings every week at d'ferent homes, and they last from 7 o'clock until 9 o'clock. We sew, embroider and make carpets."

You must have a swell patrol, Jean. And we are very glad that you are finding so much to do; keep in touch with us. We're glad, too, that you are doing useful things. Perhaps you are making Christmas presents.

Now here's a letter from Donald Puleio, of 23 Shingess street, McKees Rocks. He says:

"I would like to join your Junior Patrol club. I am also sending 10 names besides my own. We have a clubhouse and I will name it Rox Mystics."

We're sorry you did not send pledges for yourself and friends or we could send you badges right away, Donald. Send them in right away and we will send them to you. Then you can have all the fun of belonging to the Junior Patrol.

Today we received 10 pledges from Anson Boothe, of 513 Emerson street. But all his pledges are for himself. To get an armband, Anson, you have to have 10 members at least in your Junior Patrol, and then those 10 members must elect you their captain. An armband is for the captain of a real Patrol with 10 members—regular fellows. How about getting 10 fellows to join your patrol?

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

BILL M'KECHNIE (LEFT) AND LLOYD WANER SIZE UP GUNS

Two big names in baseball joined the ranks of the hunters in the fields and woods of Pennsylvania when the season got under way today. Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures above show them ready to bag what is in store for them. McKechnie, of course, is the manager of the Boston Braves. He resides in Wilkinsburg. Waner is the Pirates' outfield star. Honus Wagner, Pirate coach, was another baseball notable who shouldered his gun and went out on the hunting trail for those thrills today.

Pitt Hits Between Tackles.

Absurdity of 'All' Teams.

JOCK EXCELS RIVALS AT LINE CENTER

Did you notice that a very high proportion of Pitt's gains against Notre Dame, including the two touchdown plays by Mike Sebastian and Heinie Weisenbaugh, were made between the tackles? Dr. Sutherland has a more varied and effective system of attack against the center of the line than most coaches, and this game in particular showed that it is possible to make long gains there as well as out in the open. Not all of Jock's assaults between the tackles are power plays, many of them relying on deception and having a fast halfback carrying the ball.

George Shotwell

The Panthers' own line is showing up in great style again after a lapse against Minnesota. In this connection it is noteworthy that a forward who had been figured as one of the least durable, George Shotwell at center, was the only man to play through the entire Notre Dame game for Pitt. Considering that Shotwell, weighing only 168, was the lightest player in either line, his success in going the 60-minute route was remarkable. And, in addition, George came through beautifully in quality of play. He looks to be again in his excellent form of 1932. Incidentally, there is no smarter man on the Panther squad.

HARTWIG PROVING STANDOUT AT GUARD

Charley Hartwig is a really notable guard, comparable to Bunny Burzio, of Carnegie. The latter is flashier and more mobile, but Hartwig is at least as hard to get through and better at running interference. Tar Onder, at the other guard, is a better player than he was last year. Tiger Walton, one of the best tackles in the East in 1932, has not attained that standard again this season so far, but he is said to be in better shape at present than earlier, and is likely to tear 'em up from now on.

Many Pitt followers also continue to insist that Bob Hogan, one of Pitt's best bets, has his greatest value at quarterback, where he appears to have the knack of making the Panthers click. It is pointed out that both touchdowns against Notre Dame were made while Hogan was in charge, and that the missing of two other big scoring opportunities happened while Bob was not in there.

HACKETT HOLDS ALL-AMERICA TEAMS ABSURD

Like most other thinking football men, Col. H. B. Hackett, Army star of 30 years ago, who refereed the Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame game here recently, considers all America teams absurd, holding that it is impossible for any man or set of men to pick the best 11 players out of the legion engaged in college play throughout the country each year.

And the way some players get on the teams that are selected is even more of a joke, in the opinion of Hackett. He says that all a player has to do to get on the all-America is dye his hair red and play without a helmet. Everyone in the crowd will say, "Gee, look at that red-headed guy going," when as a matter of fact the man won't be doing a bit more than any other player. But the player will get a lot of publicity and at the end of the season he will finish on the all-America.

ECKERSALL RATED WITH GREATEST EVER

Hackett refused to pick an all-time all-America team, remarking that football officials know less about players than anyone in the stands; that players are just numbers and not names to them, and that officials are too busy watching for infractions of the rules to note the excellence or lack of excellence in individual play.

However, from what he has observed in an officiating career that dates back to 1904, Hackett names offhand, as the greatest players he has seen, Willie Heston and Benny Oosterbaan, of Michigan; George Gipp and Frank Carideo, of Notre Dame; Jerry Dalrymple, of Tulane; Bronco Nagurski, of Minnesota, and Ernie Nevers, of Stanford. But he adds that none of them was any better than Walter Eckersall, of Chicago, and he insists that that player must be rated with the greatest.

HUNTERS OPEN SMALL GAME SEASON

The Big Push was on in the fields and forests of Pennsylvania today as approximately a half-million men and a few women inaugurated the small game hunting season in the Keystone state. Heavy fog failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the hunters.

Thousands of Pittsburghers were in the army of nimrods that set out at dawn in quest of rabbits, squirrels and birds. Many will return tonight with heavy game bags, for rabbits, to be hunted each week day this month, are reported to be unusually plentiful. Others will return only with heavy feet and slightly used shotguns.

Lloyd Waner and Honus Wagner, of the Pirates, and Manager Bill McKechnic, of the Boston Braves, are among those who are out testing their fortune and their marksmanship.

In addition to rabbits, squirrels, wild turkeys, ring-neck pheasants, bob white quail and ruffled grouse are legal targets today. While rabbits and squirrels will hear the "cease firing" order only on Sundays, the other natives of the wilds can be hunted only on November 1, 2, 6, 7, 10, 11, 16, 17, 18, 20, 21, 22, 27, 28, 29 and 30.

All game must be carried openly or in the hunting coat of the nimrod, and must be accompanied by its owner.

The Pennsylvania bear and deer hunting seasons, which are expected to swell the sale of hunting licenses in Allegheny County to 35,000, do not open until November 10 and December 1, respectively. The bear season continues without interruption until the end of the month, but a staggered season will permit only 13 days of deer hunting.

Approximately $4,000,000 is expended annually for the sport in this, the greatest of hunting states.

MACK DENIES SALE OF STARS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, emphatically has denied that he has sold any ball players.

Visitors and telephone calls crowded into his circular office in the tower of the ball park yesterday with revived reports that he had sold or traded Robert Mose Grove, pitching ace; Gordon S. Cochrane, catching star, Max Bishop, who holds down second base, and sundry other players. He said:

"I haven't made any deals. I haven't completed any negotiations and, therefore, there isn't anything to announce. I don't know what the future holds; there may be deals, but right now there is nothing to announce."

REPORTS PERSIST

All of which Mack has said before. In the face of his denials, the reports persist from here and there. Men wise in the ways of baseball deals seem to think that before Connie Mack celebrates his seventy-first birthday on December 23, he will have announced the disposal of one or more of his stars.

The most persistent reports concern Mickey Cochrane. He was seen in Detroit some weeks ago and rumor has him ready to sign up with the Tigers as their next manager. The only hitch, according to report, is that Mack and Frank J. Navin, president of the Detroit club, have not agreed on price.

Chillysauce

By Chilly Doyle

Fifteen years ago this morning almost 10,000 young lads of the Greater Pittsburgh neighborhood awaited a cold, gray dawn that was to send them charging with guns not meant for rabbits and quail. The scene was the Argonne Woods and the bleak morning was the feast of All Saints. It was the last phase of the war of democracy, a democracy destined to throw many of the same boys into the streets without a job 15 years later.

The war was tough, indeed, but the Doughboys could generally fall upon a fair meal, oftimes a bottle of vin blanc coupled with a spirit of comradeship that is hard to match in civilian life. And job or no job, there'll be a lot of them out for the big Armistice Day parade.

The first Armistice Day and the events incident to it are pleasant. There was Maj. Bozeman Bulger, for instance, who has since departed this life. The New York sportsman and sports writer with the Alabama drawl was in charge of the correspondents. Southern hospitality was the Colonel's middle name. He always saw to it that the scribes had a warm meal and warm refreshments if they were desired.

Boze had quite a collection of writers and he had to have the diplomacy of a baseball manager to handle the various temperaments. Damon Runyon, of Universal Service, one of Bulger's cleanup men, was easy to handle, but little Edwin L. (Jimmy) James, of the New York Times, often made a fuss about this or that. Jack O'Donnell, of the Cincinnati Enquirer, was a real character and William Slavens McNutt, of Colliers, matched O'Donnell.

The fleet of cars that carried the journalists to the front each day was manned by tough chauffeurs. When the Armistice was signed the correspondents were warned not to go into Germany in advance of the retreating army, but Freddie Smith, a Chicago writer, and three others, persuaded a driver to catch up with the Germans. Eventually a German flier offered to take one of the writers to Berlin. Smith accepted, made the trip in a cracked up plane, was stripped of his credits by the War Department, but got off his scoop to his paper.

Ol' Boze and the other censorship officers were in an uproar when they learned what Smith had done, but secretly Bulger held admiration for the stunt. Boze's first assistant was Lieut. Topsy Hartzell, a Wash-Jeff man, who carried Floyd Gibbons off the field of battle when Gibbons was struck.

Boze had to crack down on any of the boys who violated the censorship, but he ruled over a happy family of two score writers at his Bar le Duc headquarters, and the fact that he came home a colonel shows what Uncle Sam thought of him. He is sadly missed in the press boxes of the major leagues.

Unbeaten Cue Stars to Clash

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—The list of undefeated players in the national pocket billiard tournament will be reduced at least one today when William Mosconi, of Philadelphia, clashes with Charles Summerell, Little Rock, Ark.

The remaining three undefeated contestants also will see action today. George Kelly, of Philadelphia, who scored an impressive victory yesterday, meets Harry Wood, of Duluth. Charles Seaback, Astoria, N. Y., engages Sylvester Schliesman, of Minneapolis, and Eddie Sauers, of Oakland, Cal., encounters Arthur Church, of New York.

PIRATES DROP DUDLEY AND PICINICH

Pitcher E. Clise Dudley and Catcher Val Picinich today were released unconditionally by the Pittsburgh Pirates, according to an announcement by William E. Benswanger, president of the club. Picinich is a 10-year man, while Dudley was on trial with the Pirates.

Picinich was signed as a free agent by Sam Watters, vice-president and secretary of the Pirates during the club's second eastern invasion when Grace became ill and was unable to play. He formerly played for Brooklyn and started the 1933 season with Jersey City in the International League.

Dudley, who pitched in the majors for the Dodgers and Phillies, was released last summer by the Chattanooga Club, of the Southern Association, and asked for a tryout with the Pirates.

LOCAL GOLFER VICTOR

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Nov. 1.—Ernest O. Dorbritz, of Pittsburgh, yesterday scored a net 70 to win the golf tournament held here in connection with the annual convention of the Investment Bankers' Association of America. Dorbritz had a gross score of 82 and a handicap of 12 strokes.

Phils Must Sell Stars, Nugent Says

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—The much-discussed and oft-reported deal which would send Chuck Klein to the Chicago Cubs is revived by a statement from the president of the Phillies that the club must part with "some" players to aid its financial situation, although he insisted he has made no deals with other clubs yet. Gerald Nugent said:

"We are forced to part with some of our players in order to get the necessary financial assistance to carry us through next year."

The reports say Klein is slated to go to the Cubs in return for Mark Koenig, infielder, a pitcher and a sizable amount of cash.

Other reports have Catcher Spud Davis bound for the St. Louis Cardinals with Jimmy Wilson, Cards' backstop, and another block of money coming here. Still another forecast being heard is that Dick Bartell would wear a Boston Braves uniform in 1934, and that an outfielder, a hurler and some more cash would be sent to the Phils from there.

W. P. I. A. L. Soccer Tourney Draw Made

Bethel will meet South Fayette, the winners will take on Munhall in the second round and Brentwood will engage Bridgeville in the preliminary battling in the W. P. I. A. L. soccer tournament, according to the draw made yesterday.

Fight Results

At Los Angeles, John Henry Lewis defeated Frank Bresse, 10 rounds. Ed Prant knocked out Harold Anderson, 2 rounds. Tarzan Jackson knocked out Jack Hope, 8 rounds.

At Seattle, Bill Townsend and Al Lewis drew, 8 rounds.

At Portland, Ore., Stan Frisco defeated Jo Tei Ken, 10 rounds. Max Maxwell knocked out Red O'Neil, 2 rounds.

At Paris, Henri Poutrain defeated Simon Chaivez, 10 rounds.

At Pottsville, Danny Devlin defeated Jimmy Gallagher, 6 rounds. Gene Lazzari and Andy Palaka drew, 4 rounds. Paul Davis defeated Charley Homer, 4 rounds. Joe Knipes knocked out Young Schwab, 1 round.

Grahame and Aultman Lauded by Harpster

By Howard Harpster

Carnegie Tech Football Coach; All-America Quarterback, 1928.

Ever since the beginning of human habitation of this earth there have been certain people and things which have lost their individuality and are thought of only in connection with other persons or things. For example, one can not speak of Adam without thinking of Eve any more than the name of Jonah could be mentioned without bringing to mind a whale. In the present day, Amos means nothing without mentioning or thinking of Andy, and when anyone mentions the Irish you immediately think of Notre Dame.

Three years ago, when I started my duties as coach of Geneva College at Beaver Falls, I was instrumental in getting two Akron boys to enter Geneva. These young men had been friends throughout high school days and were the greatest of pals. Shortly after their first football year at Geneva, the folks of the Beaver Valley and surrounding territory learned to know these boys as great athletes, and as the most popular and best publicized combination that district ever has known. I refer to Cliff Aultman and Art Grahame. One never hears of either of these boys without thinking of the other.

Howard Harpster

BOTH AT QUARTERBACK

In college the two remained the best of friends and the thought of jealousy between them never entered their minds. They roomed together, went places together, worked together, and played together, and they were and are two of the finest fellows I know. Last Friday night, in the heat of a terrific struggle to keep intact a record of three and one-half years without being defeated on the home field, this great athletic combination was suddenly terminated when Cliff's right leg was broken in two places during the second quarter of the St. Vincent's College game.

When Cliff and Art entered Geneva, both were quarterbacks, and both were exceptional quarterbacks. Each could pass a football around a gridiron like a magician, and each could punt better than 60 yards. Both were good drop and placement kickers, and excellent defensive men. Only one of them could play as quarterback, but both had to be on the team, so it was a question what to do. Aultman had been a quarterback for three years on a high school team, for a year at Kiski, and as captain of the Ohio State freshman team. He had had plenty of quarterbacking experience, more so even than Grahame, but it was decided that the best combination would be to shift Cliff to an end position and let Art stay at quarter.

And what a forward passing combination these two made. Grahame-to-Aultman. I have no proof of the following statement nor any way in which to check it, but my guess is that during the past three seasons passes from Grahame to Aultman have covered more ground, scored more touchdowns and won more games for Geneva College, than those of any other passing combination in the country during recent years.

GREATEST FORWARD-PASSER

I have heard officials, coaches, newspaper experts and countless other persons acclaim Grahame's ability as a forward-passer, and I agree with them all, for I honestly believe that he is the best college forward-passer in the country today.

I also believe that Aultman, who is one of the finest all-round athletes this district ever boasted, would be passing a football around today just as well as Grahame if I had decided to keep him at quarterback. In 1931, Grahame was injured the week before Geneva's game with Waynesburg, and in the emergency Aultman was shifted to quarterback. He completed three difficult passes for touchdowns to win by three touchdowns. Not bad on a week's notice.

These two boys are not likely to receive any national football recognition because they play on a small college team, but, as Dr. Sutherland, of Pitt, recently stated, either could have made any football team in the country.

ARENA SEEKS VAN KLAVEREN

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Tommy Corbett vs. Babe Daniels and Johnny Stanton vs. Henry Falegano, 6 rounds each, Minneapolis.

Frankie Wolfram vs. Ernie Maurer, 10 rounds, Detroit.

Kid Chocolate vs. Joe Ghnouly, 10 rounds, Montreal.

Plans are being shaped to present one or more nationally famous boxers on the reopening boxing card at the Arena, on the North Side, Friday night of next week, it was announced today by Lew Raymond, the matchmaker, working in conjunction with Jules Beck.

Acceptance of terms is awaited from Bep Van Klaveren, the Dutch welterweight, who recently boxed Billy Petrolle twice and is hailed as the European champion. Harry Dublinsky, of Chicago, already has been signed to meet him.

The club had intended to bring Young Terry, of Trenton, N. J., here for its opening show, but Terry is very much in demand in the East since he was awarded a decision over Ted Yarosz in Newark last week.

The Moose Temple is seeking an opponent for Mose Butch for its windup next Monday night. Petey Sarron, who was to box Butch, is out because of a bad hand. An attempt was made to keep Reds Barry, Washington heavyweight, over, following his four-round knockout victory over Sunny Jim McVey last Monday, to meet Eddie Simms, of Cleveland, at the Moose next Monday, but his manager said he will be fighting in Holyoke, Mass., that night.

Tener to Speak For Sunday Sports

John K. Tener, former Governor of Pennsylvania and former president of the National League, will speak over WCAE at 6:40 tonight in behalf of the amendment to allow Sunday sports. This is the second of a series of such talks. On Friday night, at 6:20, William S. Haddock, president of the Allegheny Mountain Association, of the A. A. U., will be heard over the same station.

N. Y. Y. C. to Accept Cup Bid Tomorrow

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—The challenge of T. O. M. Sopwith, British sportsman who has picked up Sir Thomas Lipton's fruitless lifelong quest for the America's cup, will be accepted formally by the New York Yacht Club tomorrow night when plans for the defense of the historic old mug will be laid down.

INJURED STARS READY FOR COMBAT

By JESS CARVER

For the first time this fall, Wash-Jeff's Presidents will be in tip-top physical condition for a football game when they tie into the unbeaten and untied Duquesne Dukes at Washington Sat'day afternoon. Making their third start against a Pittsburgh varsity, the Prexies, who have held Pitt to a 9-0 count and tied Tech, won't be better than six or seven to 10 shots against the Duquesners, but they'll be ready, and when a Wash-Jeff team is ready, it's man the boats, women and children first!

The Dukes, of course, will not take any chances in there against the Prexies Saturday, and are taking none this week as they complete preparations for the contest. There will be no starting of the reserves by Coach Elmer Layden, for it will not be safe to let a defensive eleven such as W. and J. get any of the edge. At best, a varsity held out for the first quarter or so of a game goes in cold, and cold elevens have been decidedly on the spot against the Red and Black this fall.

HAS BOYS GUESSING

Coach Hank Day, President mentor, has the boys guessing as to just the sort of a game he is preparing for the Duke. Hank isn't letting it be known whether he intends to employ defensive tactics or shoot the works. His team has demonstrated his defensive ability against both Pitt and Tech, but so far hasn't flashed much attacking strength, so it is safe to gamble on the Red and Black showing up on Saturday prepared to dig in against the offensive raids of the Dukes.

Only one change in the lineup that started against Tech here in the Pitt Stadium last week is expected in the W. and J. lineup. That shift will place John Fife back in the line at guard in the place of Budenheim. Fife was a member of the backfield contingent a week ago.

The reason Fife has been returned to the line is that both Wilson and King, star backfield men, who have been on the hospital list for almost all the campaign, have recovered from their injuries and are ready for action again.

PANTHERS READY

The Pitt Panthers, satisfied with their defensive play, are busy these days polishing up their attack for the Centre game here this week.

Coach Sutherland appears to have changed his mind again as to his starting lineup. He had planned to send his reserves into the contest at the outset, but when the scouts returned from the Centre-Xavier affair of last Saturday with such complimentary reports as to Centre's powers, the doctor decided he'd better employ the regulars from the outset.

Now, however, he is working on a mixture of regulars and reserves. Hube Randour and Leon Shedlosky have been drilling at left and right halfback, respectively, this week, and Ken Ormiston is seeing much service at left guard. It's a good bet, however, that Howdy O'Dell and Mike Sebastian will be in the Pitt backfield for the opening kickoff.

Sebastian, who emerged from the partial obscurity of the bench to stage a brilliant comeback against Notre Dame, is about due to have one of his big afternoons, and when Mike has a big afternoon, the other Pitt backfield men need only be the eighth, ninth and tenth names in the lineup.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: CZARISM'S EVIL SPIRIT—Konstantin Petrovich Pobiednoscew (1827-1907) was a Russian law teacher and statesman who for 25 years occupied the important position of chief procurator of the Holy Synod. In this position the arch-reactionary is said to have wielded a most sinister influence with the last two Czars, counseling the policies which proved most disastrous to the country. A curious play on his name is very popular in Russia. STRANGE CRAFT—The circular boats of the Tigris are made of close willow work coated with bitumen and tarred skins. They are called koufas by the natives. They have not changed at all since the times of Babylonia and Assyria, when they were represented in the stone carvings of monuments. They were a familiar sight to Haroun al Rashid, of the Arabian Nights, who ruled the city nearby. THE KAZAN CUTIE—The marriageable young women of Kazan, in the Russian Federated Republic of Tartary, exhibit their dowries in cash on a sort of breast plate permanently fastened with two shoulder straps. This outfit is said to promote romance and wooing to a considerable degree.

E. HUNTINGDON, RAMSEY BOWL OVER RIVALS

By JULIUS LEVIN

A defeat by Jeannette, a contender for the class AA championship of the W. P. I. A. L., the only blemish on an otherwise perfect record, East Huntingdon High School, of Alverton, Pa., is making a determined [illegible] class B laurels of the same organization.

The eleven, coached by J. Owen Huntsman, apparently does not confine its football activities to class B alone, judging from the record compiled by the team so far this season. Besides six games with class B elevens, one more than required by league rules, East Huntingdon plays one contest with a double A school and four with class A opponents, rounding out an 11-game schedule that compares favorable with the best in Western Pennsylvania.

GOOD ON DEFENSE

In the four games played so far with class B opponents, only two have scored on the Huntsman machine, Glassport, last year's co-champion in this division, and Sewickley Township, usually among the leaders in the class B race, turning the trick.

Two powerful class A elevens have fallen before the drive of East Huntingdon, Derry Township losing, 7 to 0, while Burgettstown Union was vanquished, 19 to 13. Derry Township, following that defeat by East Huntingdon, scored four successive victories before it was stopped by Hurst, of Mt. Pleasant Township. Hurst and East Huntingdon were the only schools to cross the Derry Township goal line.

MEET WEST NEWTON

East Huntingdon will be out to score its fifth class B victory of the season on Saturday when West Newton will be met. The most important game on the East Huntingdon slate, however, is that with Ramsey High, of Mt. Pleasant, a team that is bowling over all opposition. The two teams, contenders for the class B championship along with East Pittsburgh and Evans City, meet in the final battle of the season.

The record of the Ramsey eleven also is an impressive one, the Mt. Pleasant gridders winning six games and tying Greensburg, a class AA school, 6 to 6. Three of the Ramsey victories are over class B schools, two over class A opponents and the other over a non-league team.

LEECHBURG BEATEN

Hurst, of Mt. Pleasant Township; Canonsburg, Derry Borough and East Huntingdon are yet to be met by Ramsey High School. One of the most impressive victories scored by Ramsey this season was the 12-0 triumph over Leechburg which eliminated that team for the class B championship. Leechburg, prior to the game with Ramsey, had scored five straight victories without permitting the opposition to score.

School Notes

One of the outstanding fullbacks in the W. P. I. A. L. class A race this season is Vin Stapulis, line-crushing back of the California High School eleven. He has stood out prominently in all victories scored by the Monongahela Valley eleven.

Another back that is commanding recognition in the scholastic race is Johnny Michelosen, brilliant quarterback of the Ambridge High School eleven. Michelosen, an all-round athlete at Ambridge, is playing a major role in the championship drive of the Bridgers.

Jeannette High School, co-champion in class AA last season and a strong contender for the title in this circuit this season, has one of the best tackles in the W. P. I. A. L. in Dante Dalletezze, who is winding up a brilliant career with the Barnes' eleven. His play this season has amazed the Jeannette scholastic fans.

Fifth Avenue High has not scored a point in almost five years, but this fact has not affected the play of Breverman, star tackle of the uptown eleven. Breverman compares favorably with the best in the city loop.

New Castle is not an overwhelming favorite by any means in its battle with New Kensington for the class AA lead at New Kensington Saturday despite the defeat of Ken High by Tarentum. Those who have seen New Kensington in action this season rate the valley eleven an even choice against the Bridenbaugh machine.

World War Vets Get Special Rate For Pitt Game

World War veterans in Pittsburgh for the Armistice Day celebration, November 11, have been offered a special rate to the Pitt-Duquesne football game at the Pitt Stadium that afternoon, it was announced yesterday by Pitt and Duquesne athletic officials.

Ten thousand seats have been set aside for the veterans, to be sold at a special reduced price of 50 cents, plus 10 cents federal tax. Each veteran will be able to buy two seats at the Pitt Stadium or at special agencies on the day of the game by presenting himself in uniform, or with his veteran's card. The tickets will go on sale at 9 o'clock the day of the game and will be on sale as long as they last, up until game time.

LENORE KIGHT POLLS VOTE FOR MEDAL

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—The nominating straws which show which way the voting winds are blowing today indicated that either Glenn Cunningham or Will R. (Bill) Bonthron will be acclaimed the outstanding American amateur athlete for 1933 and awarded the James E. Sullivan memorial medal.

The two great middle distance runners, who did not meet each other last year as they swept through all other opposition with only one setback each, are far out in the lead among the 20 or so athletes nominated by 600 sports authorities with Cunningham holding a slight edge at the moment. The nominations close tonight.

Where the nominating race has been close the result has not been always sure, but Bonthron and Cunningham are so far in the lead that it appears certain one of them will win.

In third place among the nominees is Ralph Metcalfe, Negro sprint star from Marquette University, making the medal competition this year a strictly collegiate matter.

Helen Jacobs and Helen Wills Moody both are on the list as are Helen Hicks, former national golf champion, and Lenore Kight, the little Homestead, Pa., girl who succeeded Helene Madison as America's leading mermaid.

C. C. N. Y. Favors Friedman as Coach

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(INS.)—Benny Friedman, all-America quarterback at Michigan several years ago and now a member of the Brooklyn Dodgers professional team, loomed today as the next football coach at City College of New York.

A poll of the student body, taken by The Ticker, undergraduate publication, revealed 75 per cent of the enrollment favored Friedman for the job. A campaign is on among the students to oust Dr. Harold J. Parker, present grid mentor.

W.-J. TO BE AT PEAK

Saturday with Purdue's Boilermakers. The Tartans will spend Friday in Logansport, Ind., moving to the scene of the contest Saturday morning.

For the third time this fall, the Skibos will be up against the Notre Dame style of play, having faced it before against the Irish and Xavier.

Lib Lewis, star end, injured in the Notre Dame game two weeks ago, is able to work out with the team again and will be fit for duty against Purdue on Saturday.

Goal Lines

Coach Elmer Layden, of the Dukes, took time out from his duties of preparing his footballers for their match with Washington & Jefferson yesterday to deny that he'd been approached on the matter of replacing Hunk Anderson as head football coach at Notre Dame, where Layden made fame and the start of what he hopes some day will amount to a tidy fortune as the fullbacking member of the famous Four Horsemen backfield.

The rumor connecting Layden's name with the Notre Dame job did not emanate from South Bend, but popped up from an Eastern source. It was embarrassing to Layden (as most of the rumors concerning the position have been in the case of other coaches) as Layden and Anderson are close personal friends. The chances are that Hunk never realized before how many close friends he has among rival coaches. Clipper Smith, Noble Kizer and Slip Madigan, all mentioned as possible successors to the unfortunate Anderson, and now Layden, have come out with the statement that they are for Hunk, always have been and always will be.

Layden's five-year contract, which he signed back in 1928, expires this year. Like most contracts during the past couple of years, it failed to stand up in the face of a salary cut, but the chances are that Duquesne will offer the former horseman a new one very soon—possibly not a five-year paper, but for two or three years, at least.

Although overshadowed by the Fordham-St. Mary's duel at the Polo Grounds, Colgate's clash with Tulane at the Yankee Stadium will be watched with plenty of interest by the East this week. That intersectional test should provide the answer to Colgate's rating this year.

Last season, after the Pitt Panthers had been invited to the Rose Bowl, Andy Kerr, Colgate's head coach, pulled a nifty when he described the Red Raiders as "unbeaten, untied, unscored on and uninvited."

Now, with the 1933 campaign barely half over, the Red Raiders have been scored on by Rutgers and tied by Lafayette and stand small chance of being invited to Pasadena. They're still unbeaten, but Tulane, Syracuse and Brown lie ahead.

Centenary can't compete with the national football leaders in winning games or in scoring this year, but even if the Gentlemen don't bring home the victories they don't let their opponents get them. Centenary's last three games, against Louisiana State, Texas and Texas Christian, have ended in scoreless ties.

Morris Harvey isn't boasting about it, but while other colleges have been running up big scoring records Morris Harvey has just about reached the limit in the other direction. The count now stands at six straight defeats, no score at all and 158 points for the opposition.

Minus the services of stellar Cuff Aultman, veteran end, who suffered a broken leg in the game with St. Vincent last week, the Geneva College football team will enter the game with Cam Henderson's Scarlet Hurricane of Davis-Elkins at Reeves Stadium, Beaver Falls, on the short end. The Covenanters are unbeaten and untied, while a single deadlock, a 7-7 draw with West Virginia last week, mars the otherwise perfect record for the Hurricane.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The easiest thing to do in the sports world is to second-guess . . . And that's why a lot of folks were saying, after Vince Dundee took the middleweight title from Lou Brouillard in Boston, Monday night, with Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, who had beaten Dundee twice, looking on: . . "Yarosz should have taken that match . . . Look where he'd be today . . . If he had accepted the bout with Brouillard in Boston he wouldn't have run into that trick reverse decision boxing Young Terry in Newark, and he'd be the champion of the world."

Ah, how simple it is to look back and tell a boxer and his manager what they SHOULD have done! . . . But the chances are that, if he had it to do all over again, Manager Ray Foutts would proceed in just the manner he did . . . In view of the fact that Brouillard was officially recognized as the middleweight champion in only New York, Massachusetts and Illinois, he didn't see why Teddy should box him for a challenger's purse when the winner wouldn't be generally accepted as the champion . . . Dundee, with his prestige to restore, jumped at the chance to take the match Yarosz spurned, and now is back in the driver's seat, where it is doubtful if he ever will risk meeting Yarosz again after the shellackings Teddy gave him here and in Newark.

Dundee may be the champion in three or more states, and Yarosz may be just another also-ran for the moment, but Teddy has the same consolation that befell Young Corbett after the latter had knocked out Terrible Terry McGovern in an over-the-weight match many years ago . . . A friend said it was tough that Corbett couldn't make the featherweight limit and be the champion, to which the jaunty Corbett replied: . . . "He can have the title; when I walk down the street, people will point at me and say, 'There goes the guy who LICKED THE CHAMPION.'" . . . This is doubly true of Yarosz . . . He's the fellow who twice beat the new champion.

If anyone who sat in on the Dundee-Yarosz fight at Forbes Field a few months ago had tried to tell you that by the end of October Dundee would be the middleweight champion and Yarosz would be sidetracked, you'd have thought him guilty of having stood out in the sun too long . . . However, that's the way the tide turns in the upper crust of the fight game . . . There are indications now that the cards may have been stacked against Yarosz over in New Jersey to get him out of the way, via the Terry match . . . And Dundee's experience and nonchalance took care of his part of the program.

Dundee is the ideal money type of fighter . . . He never gets unduly excited about any battle . . . Each start is just another fight and each foe just another opponent . . . Names never have meant much to him . . . In Yarosz he was puzzled by Teddy's fast moving and shifting style of attack . . . After both of their bouts, he dismissed the defeats lightly, refusing to permit them to worry him . . . He knew that sooner or later he would get another chance, his manager would dig up another "spot" for him . . . It came in the Brouillard match, and now Vince is the second member of his family to win a world title, Brother Joe having been the welterweight king.—HARRY KECK.

Dogs in Close Race In Chase Futurity

MT. STERLING, Ky., Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Only 10 points separated the two leading dogs today as the final cast in the Chase Futurity, opening event on the program of the National Fox Hunters' Association meeting here, was made.

With a total of 390, Kate Street, owned by Ben S. Street, of Elkton, Ky., took the lead at the end of the second cast yesterday, replacing Gene Parrish, owned by Alex Parrish, of Berea, Ky. Gene Parrish, which led at the end of Monday's cast, had 380. In third place was Bumpus, owned by Dr. N. Casper, of Louisville, with 270 points.

Mrs. Arthur Shafer, of Cincinnati, won the National Fox Hunters' Challenge Cup with her entry in the horse show yesterday afternoon.

BEARS SIGN END

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Paul Franklin has been signed to play end for the Chicago Bears of the National Football League for the rest of the season in place of Luke Johnson, who was injured last Sunday. Franklin, formerly of Franklin College, played two seasons with the Bears but has been out of the game due to injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

PIRATES FAIL TO BUY GYP

The Pittsburgh Pirates, of the National Professional Football League, made the Boston Redskins an offer of $3,000 for Gyp Battles, star halfback, former West Virginia Wesleyan ace, according to word received from New York, where the Pirates are awaiting their league game with the Brooklyn Dodgers Sunday.

The offer was refused, the Boston management demanding $5,000 and two Pittsburgh players.

GRID INJURY FATAL

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 1.—(AP.)—William Devault, 17-year-old junior high school student, died last night from injuries received in a football game. Devault received a severe blow in the stomach Sunday while playing halfback on a sandlot football team. Physicians said peritonitis developed, causing the youth's death.

ELI FEARS GREEN

INDIANS HAVE YET TO WIN OVER YALE

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Dartmouth has been trying for 48 years to beat Yale at football but Reg Root, youthful head coach of the Eli, declines to count solely on the operations of this famous jinx to keep the Indians from their first victory over the Blue this Saturday.

Instead he has subjected the Eli crew, so soundly trounced by Army, to a thorough shaking-up and most of the changes may stick. The most important shifts involved the backfield, where Tommy Curtin, hitherto used exclusively as first-string substitute for Bob Lassiter, captain and left halfback, was sent to quarterback.

OFFENSE IMPROVED

This scheme will put the Elis' two best ground gainers in the same backfield. Andy Callan retains the fullback post but Jim Whitehead has replaced Stan Fuller at right half.

Root tried two new tackles, Stein and Tarleton, and two new guards, Grosscup and Davis, yesterday in an effort to improve a line badly outplayed by the light Cadet forwards last week. Whether all four, or any one of them, will start against Dartmouth remains to be seen.

Dartmouth, somewhat lucky to tie Harvard last week, hopes for a better offense now that two injured backfield aces, Jack Hill and Sammy Fishman, are recovering.

Football Briefs

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(AP.)—Coach Hunk Anderson went into the line as a guard yesterday and showed his players that he still can play the position. Aiming to give a first-hand demonstration on charging and blocking, Hunk knocked his Beavier pupils about like cheesmen and got results. Some of the best charging of the season resulted.

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—(AP.)—Purdue's football regulars continued their layoff from work yesterday, listening to a final talk on defensive formations to be used against Carnegie Tech Saturday. Coach Noble Kizer also mapped out a few new [illegible] he believes will be especially effective against the Skibos.

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(AP.)—Science threw the Michigan football team for a loss yesterday. It was discovered when Carl Savage, a veteran guard, turned up for practice with his arm in a sling and explained that he had been severely burned in a chemistry laboratory. Although he will be out of this week's practices, physicians believe he will be sufficiently recovered to play against Illinois at Champaign Saturday.

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—(AP.)—Coach Rip Miller repeated his prediction that a revived set of fighting Irish from Notre Dame would sink the Navy at Baltimore Saturday. Even if the Ramblers have won only one game this year, they have never lost to Navy, he reminded his team. Nor are they likely to this year, he added.

PRINCETON, N. J.—(AP.)—Fritz Crisler shook up his Princeton varsity, sending Kopf and Blue in at the end posts, Pauk to right halfback and Ruppert Miller to fullback, as the Tigers worked out for the Brown game. The Nassau first-string was unimpressive in a stationary offense scrimmage against scrub defense in which passing and kicking were particularly stressed.

COLUMBUS.—(AP.)—The Warner double wing-back system of offense will be continued, but with variations, by the Ohio State University football team, Head Coach Sam Willaman said today. He branded reports it would be abandoned as "ridiculous."

GEORGIA TEAM SOUTH'S BEST

By W. A. (BILL) ALEXANDER
Member All-America Board of Football.
(Registered U. S. Patent Office.)

The South looked much better this past week in its intersectional games. The University of Georgia upheld the prestige of the South in its smashing 25-to-0 win over the New York University team. This present Georgia team is the sensation of the South this year. With virtually the same lineup that a year ago could win only a couple of games, it has to date won five straight games from North Carolina State, Tulane, North Carolina, Mercer and New York University.

Bill Alexander

Hardly able to score last year, these same men have developed a terrific running attack this season that no team seems able to check. As they have games only with Florida, Auburn and Georgia Tech remaining on their Southern schedule, it is difficult to see how they will fail to come through this year. They also have a chance to defeat Yale in New Haven, and can expect to do well with Southern California in Los Angeles in December.

ALABAMA STRONG

Alabama gave a good account of itself against the great Fordham team in New York losing 2 to 0. It is a pity that Alabama and Georgia do not meet in a game this year for the Southeastern Conference championship.

Alabama will prove too strong for the Kentucky team this week, although Kentucky played an excellent game against the strong Duke team in losing, 14 to 7.

Washington and Lee surprised everyone by playing Princeton a 6-to-0 game. Washington and Lee has come far this year after several bad seasons. On the strength of its record to date, I am picking Washington and Lee to defeat Virginia Poly Institute Saturday. South Carolina's defeat of Virginia Poly Institute indicates that Poly is not as strong as a year ago.

Two teams, Tennessee and Georgia Tech, still are trembling over the narrow escapes both had Saturday. It was the general opinion that Tennessee would run through and over Florida and that each was three touchdowns better than North Carolina.

SPORT COMMENT

He is the 155-pounder who became the famed watch-charm guard on the great Notre Dame team of 1930. Despite his small stature he played hob with all opposing giant linemen, and starred consistently on one of history's best teams. Now he has done the unusual again by accepting a berth with a minor professional eleven to one in the National League.

Bert Metzger

Not many former Notre Dame players have gone in for the pro game. The only old Irish gridders in the National League are Tim Moynihan, Tommy Yarr and Mike Koken, with the Chicago Cardinals, and Jack Rogers, with the Cincinnati Reds. Metzger could have had a job in the same circuit, as when he moved from Chicago to Bensonhurst both the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers tendered him big offers. But the famous watch-charm turned down both propositions and signed instead to play for Harry Meyers on the Kings team in a set classified as only semi pro company.

CONTENDS GIBSON RETARDED BUCCANEERS

W. J. Snyder writes to criticize the manner in which George Gibson handled the Pirates last season:

"In finishing second with a first-place club, Gibson showed inability to inspire his men; a lack of knowledge as to when to change pitchers and other players.

"Gibson kept Lindstrom in center when every fan knew it was wrong. He kept Lloyd Waner in the game day after day when that player was not physically fit to do his best. He lost game after game by not making a change at short or second. He kept Piet batting in seventh place and kept Suhr in fifth place to pop up day after day, and the way he handled his poor pitching staff must have been a delight to Bill Terry. If Benswanger buys or trades to strengthen the team we may win in spite of Gibson."

FLOOR STAR PASSES UP DUKES FOR PITT

Youthful athletic stars just out of high school sometimes have several changes of mind before deciding finally on the college they are going to enter. Bill Jesko, who concluded a sensational South High career as a basketball luminary last spring, was among those to figure in a change of intentions. It was understood that everything was set for Jesko to enter Duquesne University and continue his floor activities under Chick Davies, but it develops that Bill changed his mind and decided to go to the University of Pittsburgh instead to play under Dr. H. C. Carlson.

Bill Jesko

The matriculation of Jesko at the Panther school assures Dr. Carlson of the services of another great forward for three seasons, starting a year hence. Jesko, of course, will not be eligible for the varsity team the coming winter, but a year later he probably will be burning up the college courts. He was easily the outstanding high school player of this district last season.

CASEY EXPECTS IRISH WIN

By EDDIE CASEY
Member All-America Board of Football.

"How the mighty have fallen" is the slogan in college football every week after the results of Saturday's games are tabulated.

Eddie Casey

Notre Dame again has bitten the dust, this time at the hands of Pittsburgh, and for the South Benders it is a pretty drab season. This week the Ramblers meet Navy, a team that showed early season promise, but has not continued on high. And yet last Saturday the Navy boys downed a good Penn team rather handily.

Notre Dame and Navy should be a great tussle because both teams are at a critical point. Victory for either will renew its courage and help the morale. I still think that on some of these Saturdays the South Benders will hit on all eight cylinders and startle many of their critics. They will beat Navy.

There are some interesting intersectional matches in the East this week. The clash between Fordham and St. Mary's of California, should be a classic. Fordham, still unbeaten, but lucky to get away last Saturday, is one of the best in the East, and they are meeting one of the best from the Far West, coached by a great strategist, Slip Madigan. I think Fordham has the stuff to win and the long trip across the country won't help the visitors. Fordham to win in a close game.

COLGATE FACES TEST

Colgate takes on Tulane, always one of the leaders in the South. And this year Andy Kerr's boys are not quite up to their usual caliber. However, Colgate under Kerr has been noted for its versatility. Year in and year out their defense causes one to marvel. On the offensive they are, perhaps, the outstanding mystifiers in hiding the ball in the country. Colgate will realize the importance of this game and that a win will be far reaching in their standing in the country as a whole as a good football team. I think Andy will point for this game and that he will take it.

Two of the Big Three have been humbled this year, Harvard by Holy Cross and now Yale by Army. Princeton just squeezed by with a win on Saturday, and from all accounts, was lucky to get away with it. Perhaps the Tigers took the last one rather lightly, and it may be a good thing for them that they had such a close one. I will bet that Fritz Crisler will bear down in all the remaining games. This week Princeton meets Brown, and should win by a couple of touchdowns. Brown is never easy, however, because the Brunonians have one of the best defensive coaches in the game. They will make it hard for any team to score, and Princeton will have to work for its victory.

Yale tackles Dartmouth, undefeated to the present, but tied by Harvard. The Elis will be smarting under their defeat of last week, and I fear that the Indians of the North will catch all of their fury. But Dartmouth will be no cinch for anybody.

WINOOKA RUNS AT PIMLICO

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1.—(AP.)—Still seeking his first victory on the Eastern turf, Winooka, the Australian race horse, today will make his third start within a week, when he matches strides with nine other sprinters in the $2,500 Baltimore handicap feature of the opening of Pimlico's 12-day meeting.

Four of the horses named to oppose Winooka in the six-furlong dash whipped the five-year-old son of Windbag in his two previous starts at Laurel. S. W. Labrot's Springsteel and N. T. Grayson's Hope To Do were one, two in the race in which the foreigner finished third while Sheldon H. Fairbanks' Gold Step and A. L. Aste's Character finished second and fourth, respectively, on the day Winooka crossed the line last in a field of five.

STOCK MARKET TRADING DULL AND NARROW

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Stocks had an inert market with which to begin the new month today. Trading lapsed into extreme dullness and fluctuations for the most part were narrow.

Wheat sagged after early firmness, but stocks did not seem disposed to follow it. Bonds improved slightly though they also were too dull to give much indication of a trend. News developments of the day contributed little that might influence sentiment one way or the other and Wall Street was apparently satisfied to hold its sidelines position.

In shares, tobaccos again reacted a bit, leading issues losing around a point. Metals, however, maintained their upward trend, particularly the silver mining classification. International Silver rose 4 points or so. United States Smelting, American Smelting and Cerro de Pasco improved a couple of points and Homestake pushed up more aggressively. Such industrials as United States Steel, Case, Allied Chemical, General Electric and General Motors confined their changes to fractions, tending toward slight improvement. American Telephone, which has a dividend meeting soon, eased; Wall Street expects no change in the rate of payment. United States Steel preferred, whose directors yesterday voted another 50 cent dividend, dipped. Accumulations on the stock now total $5 a share. Standard Oil of Indiana firmed, helped by declaration of the 50 cent semi-annual disbursement. Rails were quiet.

WHEAT PRICES SHOW GAINS

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Upturns in grain price early today followed Washington reports of Treasury plans to buy gold from Federal Reserve Banks, and then cut dollar's gold content. Notice was also taken of a fresh rise in the Washington quotation on domestic gold. Opening unchanged to ¾c higher, wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started ¼ to ⅞c up, and subsequently held near the initial limits.

A sudden setback of more than 2 cents a bushel from early top figures was given wheat but rallies later lifted the market to above yesterday's finish.

Corn and oats price changes closely paralleled the action of wheat. Provisions lacked support.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

SCANT PRICE AID IN GOLD MOVE FORECAST

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—We are now trying the experiment of endeavoring to reduce the purchasing power of the dollar by raising the price of gold.

The administration wants to raise commodity prices in this country. There is little demand for commodities and the supplies are large, so prices tend to fall.

But the authorities figure that if they can do something to the dollar which will reduce its value they may get prices up without any change in demand or supply.

BUSHEL PARALLEL

It is like figuring that if we reduce the size of the bushel basket and then measure the number of bushels of wheat in similar baskets, there will be more bushels.

But to be really effective, we would have to get people to use the smaller bushel baskets and to think in terms of small bushels.

Just so, in order to make the reduced dollars really effective it will be necessary to get them into circulation and to make buyers and sellers believe they are not worth as much as formerly.

To this end the government has bought a little gold here and offers more dollars per ounce than formerly. It says:

"See! We are showing you that the dollar is worth less. You take our word for it, and go out and pay more for all commodities. That will put prices up."

But this is a mere "psychological treatment," and exaggerates the importance of gold in determining prices.

Prices are determined by demand and supply. The wants and purchasing power of buyers and the costs and holding power of sellers are the important things.

The quantity of money affects prices only as it works through buying and selling. It must actually be used and circulate more rapidly if it is to put prices up. The quantity of money in evidence is only one of several factors which enter into the determination of prices.

NO STANDARD DOLLAR

Furthermore gold does not have the importance that it did formerly. There is now no standard gold dollar as a basis for our money. Gold has been made like any other commodity.

Only if we figure that some day we are to return to the gold standard and revalue the dollar in gold, does the gold buying move seem significant.

Looked at in this way, we may reason that it shows us the government is determined to revalue the dollar on the basis of a smaller gold content. It suggests the administration wants something like a 50-cent dollar rather than the present 65-70-cent dollar.

WOULD SWELL HOARD

Now the government is apparently going to sell dollars in foreign exchange to buy foreign gold. If we actually import gold, it will merely swell our already huge hoard. There is no way provided thereby to increase the circulation of money or credit.

We can depress the exchange rate of the dollar and this would under normal conditions stimulate exports and tend to raise prices gradually.

But there is little chance of that now. High prices here, tariffs, and foreign trade restrictions would prevent much exports.

GREAT EFFECT UNLIKELY

My conclusion is that the government's gold operations will not affect prices much except as they may be effective in convincing people that the dollar will be further depreciated by government fiat.

That would mean a general acceptance of the conclusion that we are to have either "currency inflation," or a revaluation of the dollar to something like 50 cents, or both.

There seems but one way to boost the price level, which is to inflate so drastically that speculation and "fear buying" will again become effective.

N. Y. Central, P. R. R. Loadings Increase

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—New York Central Lines handled 97,653 cars of freight last week an increase of 5.4 per cent over a year ago. For the previous week loadings amounted to 99,349 cars, or an increase of 2.6 per cent from 1932.

Pennsylvania Railroad's freight traffic last week totaled 92,457 cars against 91,545 the previous week and 92,743 a year ago.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 1.—The market was due 1¼ to 1⅜d lower. Opened unchanged to ⅛c off, and at 12:15 p. m. was down ⅛ to ¼c.

The close was ⅜ to ½ pence lower, based on sterling at 4.78½.

Investment BankersFear Business Doom: Will Seek Law Changes

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Nov. 1.—The Investment Bankers' Association of America plans to devote more attention to uniting for new legislation in the coming year than ever before in its history.

This is becoming more apparent as each committee makes its report to the convention. Nearly every group has expressed the opinion that changes in laws are essential and those desired changes are not confined solely to the Federal Securities Act.

Many delegates privately express the opinion that unless some of these legal changes are obtained, the convention, which draws to a close tonight, may be the last roundup.

* * *

Business Confined To Few Small Fields

THAT THE penalties on underwriters of stocks and bonds may put an end to the profession of investment banking is not altogether idle talk. The liabilities placed upon underwriters and directors of corporations being financed are so uncertain that responsible individuals cannot afford to engage in the business except in a few limited fields.

The point frequently has been made at the convention that investment bankers consider it perfectly proper for them to be held liable for deliberate misstatements made in selling securities. But the law goes further. It makes them also liable for the omission of any relevant fact in circulars describing new offerings.

On its face, this also appears to be reasonable, but in any practice the investment bankers claim that it places an impossible burden on them.

* * *

Can't Give Every Detail of Business

IN DESCRIBING a new issue, every detail of the business cannot be given. A large book would be required to serve as circular in most cases. There must be some selection of the information which did not appear to be relevant at the time of the offering might turn out to be of great importance in the light of changed events in future years.

Even though the banker might have been honest and sincere in his selection of the information given to customers, the omission of a fact which did not appear to be of importance at the time would make him liable for his customers' losses in the future.

The delegates here are not opposed to federal regulation. They are not opposed to accepting liability for mistakes which could have been prevented by reasonable care and intelligence. But they do find it impossible to do business when they may be called to account financially, as well as on criminal grounds, for errors of omission which could not have been prevented no matter how much care was exercised.

URGE MODERATE LIQUOR TAX

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Nov. 1.—Excessive state and local taxes being imposed on beer and which may be imposed on liquor threaten to perpetuate racketeering and bootlegging.

This declaration was made by the state and local taxation committee of the Investment Bankers' Association in its report to the annual convention of the organization which comes to a close today.

The report declared:

"There is a very real danger that state and local imposts may negative the results sought by making bootlegging still profitable. Therefore, this committee joins in urging that all beer and liquor taxes be enacted with the idea of eradicating racketeering first."

In speaking of taxes in general the report declared that efforts must be made toward the development of a scientific taxing system which will include the coordination of nation, state and local entities.

Copper Producers Meeting Tomorrow

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—A meeting of the copper producers and the custom smelters in Washington, has been called for tomorrow morning to discuss the suggested code with members of the NRA.

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XX.

"You poor, persecuted kid! It's the funniest story that I ever heard! And the most rotten!"

They were in Suite 809 of the Hotel Luxor—Nollie, and the speaker, Mrs. Jinny Judson.

The latter added, as an afterthought: "I ought to have warned you before I sent you there. I ought to have let you know that Madeleine Galbraith is jealous as they make 'em!"

"I shouldn't have told you so much—"stammered Nollie.

But Mrs. Judson was interested in this girl, and soon had wormed out of her the happenings at the office that had led to her exit.

"So Jack Brilling picked on you to take the place of his secretary while the girl was on her vacation?. He was caught by your pretty face, of course. He's as impressionable as they come."

"Truly, I don't encourage him, it was all a surprise—" Nollie broke off, afraid she had said too much.

"So—he did try to make love to you?"

Well, what was the use of hiding anything from the kind, inquisitive eyes of this woman?

Sooner or later she'd hear a distorted version, anyhow. And, after all, it was she who had given Nollie the letter of introduction to the firm.

"I did my very best and worked late, and everything."

"And Jack Brilling was on your track? But of course he was. He's not a bad sort of a fellow, but he's weak and vacillating."

"He seemed quite nice, until—"

MRS. JUDSON SURPRISED

Under Mrs. Judson's questioning, out came the tale of the suggested apartment on Riverside.

"By golly!" breathed the hearer. "Can you imagine such nerve?"

"I can't. It took me by surprise. I should have left the office anyway."

"Even without the untimely arrival of the fiancee?"

"Certainly."

Mrs. Judson lit a cigaret. She leaned back in the armchair in her suite. She said: "You're a valorous little soul, Miss Day, and I like you. But you've got the sort of looks that DO attract men. And, without any money of your own, or people back of you, or anything, that's going to make it hard for you in a sense."

Before Nollie could comment on this, she continued: "Hard with the women, that is. If I'd known that you were going to work with Jack Brilling, I could have told you the Galbraith woman would be madly jealous. That engagement's been dragging on for a long time. He got his promotion in the firm because of it. He knows on which side his bread is buttered, right enough. I don't think he'll break with Madeleine Galbraith, because in his own way he's ambitious. You're a nice child. You could have made a lot of trouble between them, if you'd happened to be vindictive."

"You mean he doesn't love her, then?" asked Nollie.

"Love? What's love? A lot of moonshine!" commented the widow, cynically.

LETTER FROM TONY

Then suddenly she sat up in her chair. "Great guns! I'd almost forgotten THE LETTER!"

She made a swift move over to an open trunk. She rummaged among her papers.

"I've been so busy listening to you that I overlooked the reason I wanted to see you!"

She found what she was seeking. She went back to her armchair by the open window. She beckoned Nollie to come over nearer.

"You bad girl, you! Leading a young man on!"

"Who do you mean?"

"The young man at the theater!"

Nollie's heart missed a beat. Her breath caught. At this late date, COULD it be word from none other than—Tony O'Brien?

It was! He had really thought that she was Mrs. Jinny Judson, gone abroad! They had not told him the exact hour of her sailing, either on the telephone (when he had called her up) or at the Information desk of the Hotel Luxor.

"It's a scream. He's crazy about you. But why on earth didn't you let him get in touch with you after?"

Nollie had flushed scarlet. She felt a criminal. At best, she'd been an impostor.

But Jinny Judson took the whole thing as a joke. "I couldn't make head or tail of it at first, though I was tickled pink. I don't think I've ever received such a charming epistle. It's for you of course, although it was addressed to me. I didn't understand that right away until I got a note from my old friend, Mr. Hiram."

She kept Nollie in suspense, chattering like an amiable parrot.

"This is addressed to the Hotel Luxor, you see. It followed me on to Paris."

"Such an intriguing name!" Her eye turned to the final page. "Tony O'Brien! Irish of course! He's evidently kissed the Blarney Stone. But I like young men to be enthusiastic."

"I explained to him I wasn't you," said Nollie desperately. "I told him twice. I thought he heard. And it was only later in the evening—when we'd got sort of chummy—that I realized he still thought that I was you—and—and—it was awfully wrong of me, of course—but for once in my life, I wanted to live up to my clothes—to be—somebody—"

WIDOW AMUSED

She felt ashamed. But tremendously keyed up, none the less, about Tony's letter.

"I understand, Cinderella transformed. I don't in the least blame you for having a bit of fun," smiled Jinny Judson tolerantly. "What was he like? Young, naturally? Good-looking?"

"Oh yes, awfully," breathed Nollie, her eyes like twin stars, and unconscious that she gave her secret. "Mrs. Judson, believe me, he was the best-looking young man! And most charming!"

"Ha! So? Then read this letter and you'll see the thought is mutual, my dear. If I'm not mistaken, your Adonis fell for you as hard as you for him."

Nollie read the letter through. Her hands were shaking.

It was written in a bold, decisive hand. It was just the sort of letter one would expect from a Prince Charming.

And Irish, too, in its contradictory, comical phrases that yet held real feeling.

Hurt at her departure but longing to see her again! Reproaches mingled with his admiration . . .

"Did you answer this?" ventured Nollie of Mrs. Judson.

"I? Of course not! I would have sent it on to you but I didn't know your whereabouts . . . and anyhow I was returning soon But we'll set this matter straight!" And smiling gaily, Mrs. Judson headed for the telephone.

Despite Nollie's protestations she called up the number on the corner of her letter . . . Then she turned, hanging up the receiver as she did so, her face falling.

"Can you beat that?" she said disappointedly, "just as I want to play fairy godmother to you both, he's OFF ON HIS VACATION!"

Synopsis

Nollie Day, stenographer at an exclusive hotel, is befriended by wealthy Mrs. Judson, a widow. Nollie goes to a theater in place of Mrs. Judson, where she meets handsome Tony O'Brien. She reveals her own identity but Tony does not hear her. Next day, Tony telephones and learns Mrs. Judson has gone abroad. Nollie wants to clear her identity, but is unable to get in touch with Tony. Nollie secures a new position as secretary to Jack Brilling, of Galbraith & Co. Miss Galbraith, Brilling's fiancee, is jealous and warns Nollie. Brilling tells Nollie he loves her. Miss Galbraith enters the office just as Nollie frees herself from Brilling's embrace. Nollie quits her job.

Now Go On

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Pulling the wool over one's eyes is something that isn't being done any more; smart coiffures retain that neat, sleeked back effect revealing the forward hairline. Smooth crowns continue to be popular with two or three wave lines at side and back. Curly cues are gradually edging upward and must be soft, silky, natural looking. Much attention is given to providing luster from tresses. The old brilliantine bottle is back again among its cosmetic comrades on the dressing table.

More and more is the feminine figure going V-shaped. Shoulders are wide, waists trim, hips carry draperies. There's no such thing as ditching morning exercise now unless one is as slender as a sapling. Ten minutes of muscle activity; stretching, kicking, twisting and bending, work wonders, as many a woman has found to her happiness, and the relief of her dressmaker. The lazy girl can stretch in bed night and morning. But expansions of legs, arms and torso must be done with a hard pull on fibres, if exercise is to be effective.

WASHINGTON TAKES CHARGE OF ARMY, JULY 2, 1775

The Second Continental Congress elected the Army. Lacking ammunition and supplies, George Washington as Commander-in-Chief of handicapped by short enlistment periods which forced him often to discharge some soldiers and recruit others in front of the enemy. Washington had to remain inactive, except for enclosing the British around Boston, during the rest of 1775. (U. S. History)

AUTOMOBILE FRONT AXLE (Transportation)

This axle carries the front wheels, which revolve on knuckles, hinged to the axle by knuckle bolts (kingpins). The knuckles—connected with steering arms and tie rod—are deflected together with the front wheels by operating the steering mechanism, hitched to the steering lever (a part of one knuckle), in order to regulate the direction of the car. Both front and rear wheels have a brake mechanism enclosed in drums. All parts must be of good steel for safety.

MARS, THE FOURTH PLANET FROM THE SUN (Gen. Science)

Mars shows decided markings: White polar caps (snow) and network of straight lines, believed by some to be canals made by intelligent beings. Since many of these lines shift, they may be strips of vegetation. Mars has a thin atmosphere. Above: 1, 3, 4, 6, photos; 2, drawing of Mars; 5, photo of drawing 2 by telescopic camera. STERILIZATION OF WATER DECREASES SPREAD OF INFECTIOUS DISEASES

Bacteria in drinking water may cause typhoid, cholera, etc.; hence sterilization is mandatory.

Chlorination of filtered water by liquid Cl (2,5:1,000,000 solution.) kills bacteria. Cl with water gives hydrochlorous acid (HOCl) which then liberates oxygen, both strong germicides. CAESAR CROSSING THE RUBICON (49 B. C.)

Victories and popularity of Caesar aroused the jealousy of Pompey, supported by Senate. (Crassus, 3-d triumvir had been killed previously in battle in Mesopotamia.) Asked by the Senate to dismiss his army, Caesar refused unless Pompey also should comply. Ignored, he marched against his Roman adversaries. Before crossing the little river Rubicon Caesar exclaimed: "Alea jacta est" (the die is cast), since then the classic expression for grave decisions. (Tappan: Old World Hero Stories)

BOULDER DAM AND ITS CONSTRUCTION

Boulder Dam (25 miles from Las Vegas, Nev.) will utilize the Colorado River in a gigantic reservoir and power plant (cost not to exceed $165,000,000) to furnish 1,200,000 h. p. electric energy and water for irrigation. The dam will be 730 feet high, 1,180 feet long; the power plant equipped with 15 turbine-generators. It is a striking example of what government can do for the people.

Bugs Baer

It Was a Brisk Summer

Even though 1888 was the year of the big wind they had something left on the shelf for 1933.

The most important bag of breeze was the one that touched up the Atlantic coast a bit. It started somewhere in the ocean, rushed across New Jersey, galloped back into the Gulf Stream, whammed over New York again until the old town suffered from colic of the skyline. That salty tornado never could make up its mind.

It traveled northwest at the rate of 60 miles to the dollar watch, skidded to the southeast just as fast and whistled over the crossroads without missing a beat. It blew for 10 days in July at excursion rates.

Just to prove there is no favoritism in weather control the sovereign state of Texas weighed in with a September hurricane that shellacked bungalow roofs on the fly. All the southwest was full of Mexican hats and tar paper. The sun-caressed state of California reported another gentle zephyr that whizzed through the brakes and dells until the mocking birds telephoned their morning songs in from Arizona.

Florida also had a schedule of soft summer breezes that turned derbies into fedoras and blew boats so far up on the land that the sailors got jobs as track walkers. Maryland, Virginia and Kansas were flattened temporarily by high winds that made grasshoppers hang on to wire fences by their front and back legs.

It was a loose climatic summer and no fun at all. But it made the old established liars of 1888 pull in their chinstraps and close up tighter than a spendthrift's credit.

There was one of those 1888 liars in our neighborhood who claims he is still trying to get his coattails down. But the summer of 1933 was too much for him and the last we saw of that 1888 liar was when he was hugging a Long Island chimney that wasn't hugging anything. One of his lies had finally proved it.

We are glad that summer is over and we are in for a cool, calm winter. It may get cold, but there won't be any 1888 fibbers around with statistics which were never written in ink or verified by a certified accountant. If we are fortunate this winter we will get a snowstorm that will blanket the blizzard rememberers of 1893 under a soft, downy covering of ice embroidered with sleet and edged with slush.

Then we can get rid of all the oldtime liars and think up some for ourselves.

Education Week

The School Crisis Demands Heroic Efforts to Avert a Demoralizing Disaster.

On Monday next—November sixth—nation-wide observance of the thirteenth American Education Week is to begin, continuing until November twelfth.

"The occasion," comments an official announcement, "will find many school doors shut. Thousands of young people who have been denied the birthright of free education will be idle, or roving about the country with the vagrant horde of neglected boys and girls that is already more than three times the size of our standing army."

It is, in fact, impossible to exaggerate either the gravity of the school crisis that has arisen in America, or the social and economic importance of the heroic efforts educators are making to avert a demoralizing and long-lasting disaster.

In an article published last Sunday in the "March of Events" section of the Hearst Sunday papers, Miss Jessie Gray, president of the National Education Association, has this to report:

"I am told that this year two million children of school age either will have no schooling at all or will attend terms shorter than those which prevailed in rural districts in the days of our grandfathers.

"Many reports come also of classes held in storerooms, basements or other emergency quarters wholly unsatisfactory, damaging to the health, the eyesight and the nervous stability of pupils."

For a very large part of the injury that has been done and is being done Miss Gray indicts politics. In her language:

"When politicians, having squandered millions and reduced their cities to bankruptcy, endeavor to balance their books, meet interest charges on unwarranted debt burdens and restore apparent solvency at the expense of the school system, I have charged them with 'stealing pennies from children.'

"Some of them have thought that is an unfair charge. But I think it is an accurate appraisal of the situation, and even a mild one."

In some states, it is true, less havoc has been caused than in others. But it is also true that in every state education has suffered seriously, and the citizens of no state can dare or afford to ignore the national problem as a whole.

In the bygone years, National Education Week has been sponsored by the American Legion, the United States Office of Education and the National Education Association. This year these organizations have joined with them a fourth group—the Joint Commission on the Emergency in Education, which has been formed as a "board of strategy in the present crisis."

These sponsors have prepared for next week's program, and for the school year also, a seven-point platform, presenting for consideration and for co-ordinated action some of the outstanding school problems and questions, and all communities have been asked to adapt and to utilize this platform locally.

With respect to this procedure, Miss Gray's words are apropos.

"Never," she writes, "was there greater need for wide popular understanding of the problem facing schools.

"In our common school system lies the hope of a better tomorrow, and a guaranty of the duration of our republic.

"I would, therefore, urge that all parents get acquainted with the schools of their children during American Education Week."

Liquor and the Courts

The Brooks Law Forced Some Candidates for the Judiciary to Run as Wets or Drys.

President Judge Samuel E. Shull, of the Monroe and Pike County Courts, indignantly denies Gov. Pinchot's assertion that "the iniquitous Brooks high license law . . . dragged our courts into liquor politics."

We do not know precisely what Gov. Pinchot had in mind, but we think it is pertinent in connection with the controversy to call attention to a condition that existed in some of the counties in the latter years of the pre-Volstead era.

In counties where prohibition sentiment was strong—Crawford, for example—it was not unusual for candidates for the judiciary to let it be known that if elected they would grant no liquor licenses. They ran as drys and were opposed by candidates who ran as wets. The liquor interests naturally supported the wet candidates for the bench. Sometimes it happened that the liquor issue overshadowed every other consideration in judiciary elections.

The sale of liquor was prohibited in a number of Pennsylvania counties before the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment, through the election of dry judges, who arbitrarily refused to license any saloons.

The Legislature is to be asked to meet in special session on November 13 to consider liquor legislation. That the mistakes of the pre-Volstead era may not be repeated it would be well for the legislators to refresh their memories as to conditions under the Brooks law.

The Forest Primeval

It Is Gratifying to Learn That a Relic of the Original Penn's Woods May Be Saved.

A message pleasing to nature-lovers and those interested in the preservation of historic monuments comes from Washington.

The National Forest Reservation Commission, at a meeting last Monday, considered the purchase of the largest remaining tract of virgin forest in Pennsylvania. It lies near Tionesta, on the upper Allegheny, and is primeval forest of the type of which Longfellow sang in "Evangeline"—a forest of murmuring pines and hemlocks, one of the few in Pennsylvania to escape the lumbermen.

The commission, composed of the Secretaries of War, Interior and Agriculture, Senators Keyes and George and Repre[illegible] Doxey and Clarke, was impressed by the "unusual [illegible]ities for scientific research, education and inspiration" [illegible]e forest offers, and requested the Forest Service to [illegible] examinations and report.

It is to be hoped that this relic of the original Penn's Woods will be preserved, that Pennsylvanians may appreciate what their state was like when the first settlers arrived.

Idle money makes idle men—both make an idle nation.

When business is active—when money is doing its work and men have jobs—everybody benefits. We have prosperity.

But when money is hoarded or dormant business is constricted and there are not jobs enough to go around. Then we have depression.

Putting lazy money into action is one of the things that must be done to restore our national well-being.

Government and employers are doing their part. Bankers must also do theirs—and so must YOU.

Every person who has income of any kind can speed the return of prosperity by buying NOW the articles he needs and will have to buy SOMETIME.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Depression, or what you will, New York has no more of those sartorial types over whom Sunday feature writers may sigh as: "The last of the dandies!" Jimmy Walker was perhaps the nearest to the species before joining expatriates along the Cote d'Azure.

Michael Arlen during his brief strut was reminiscent of the Ward McAllister and E. Berry Wall days. But his flash had a skyrocket swish and he was seen no more. Thorley, the avenue florist, wore his lapel carnation daily but that was mostly to advertise his shop.

Grover Whalen, with his gardenia and spats, lacks the mellow flaneur qualities that makes a boulevardier. He has the go-getting spirit that accomplishes things. The true dandy accomplishes nothing, save an aura of indolence and the feeling that life was largely a poem.

Arthur Bagley, who caters morning musicales to the dwindling "400," has many gallantries that characterize the dandy, but he gets up too early. Tony Biddle and Anthony Drexel are of the mould, but lack that leisurely finesse that makes gallants click. The dandy is extinct.

Picking up the phone just then, a crossed connection revealed a feminine voice trembling on broken words, mumbling to someone: "I have just lost my job." It's a terrorizing experience to be discharged any time, but at no period so pronounced as now. Just to overhear such news resulted in 20 minutes staring out the window.

* * *

Yet somehow I think of the doorman at a neighboring apartment house, a pale, melancholy Sinclair Lewis sort of a fellow who can rightfully wear a medal. His eyes are bright but sunken. His smile the only live thing about him save a racking cough. Gas! This morning I inquired: "How are you today?" He replied, trying not to cough: "Not so bad. There's millions worse." So with our lady who lost her job.

Out of mass distractions flowers a great urge for parlor games like the days of parchesi, authors and crokinole. The appeal is not only in their low price but in mental relief from worries by concentration. Every new game of any merit is snapped up. Novelty houses offer a bonus aside from royalties for the unusual. Department stores have game departments and Madison and Lexington avenues have shops that sell nothing else. Among the game enthusiasts are Billy Seeman, Alexander Woollcott, Dorothy Parker, Frank Case and Montague Glass.

* * *

One diversion attaining popularity was called "Snap Judgment," a photo recognizing game. It offered photographs of celebrities, real and near, along with columnists and the like. Players were supposed to gather around the parlor lamp and at a given signal identify the likenesses. Surprising how many faces you think you know but really don't.

I'm alway entranced by those present tense talkers with Jack-o'lantern smiles along Broadway curbs. This morning one was expatiating: "I'm standin' in front of a speak when a jane ups at me out of a taxi. And I says . . ."

* * *

Then the new hot dog seller who varies routine in the Roaring 40s when dives are erupting after midnight gushes. He has a Shetland pony attached to a two-wheel wicker cart and wears a Tuxedo. He knows the psychology of Broadway in its cups. They kid him—and, of course, because he is good natured about it, buy!

About eight months ago Verne Porter, well-known in magazine and motion picture circles, adopted a baby orphaned on the estate joining his Maryland country home. As a gentleman of bachelor habits, his friends tittered. A boulevardier with a squalling baby! But they see him no more. Indeed, the only sight of him was through the iron fence in Gramercy Park one sundown, pushing a perambulator.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Letter to a Modern Husband

Dear Al—

. So it has happened. Here you are yelling all over the lot because the Missis hasn't turned out to be a Sweet, Meek Little Worm like Mamma was.

But what did you expect? Did you pick her because she was a Worm? Indeed you didn't. You picked her because she was a Snappy Number. She was a great scout—a Regular Fellow, like any man. She could outswim you, often outsmart you.

She knew how to wear her clothes. Also—and don't pretend, Big Boy, that this wasn't important data—SHE KNEW HOW TO EARN THEM. She had a good job, which she'd won in the face of plenty of competition.

For all these things you admired her. Yes, there were plenty of other girls you might have admired—nice, timid, gentle girls who conformed exactly to that Meek - mousey pattern which seems to have such an appeal for you now. But you said you wanted a "live one." So you picked Estelle, who certainly was.

And now you're beefing. Why? Simply because Estelle still insists on being a "live one." But you no longer admire Snappy Numbers as you once did—not, at any rate, in a wife. Wives "they oughta be different."

What do you mean, "different?" Well, of course, you don't mind if she goes on holding a job carrying her share of the household expenses. In fact, it would raise heck with your payments on the new car and radio if she didn't go on holding that job. But why can't she be content to make a regular home for you after office hours, the way your mother did for your father?

Why, your father could settle down with his paper after supper and have a nice, long, restful evening. Ma wasn't always nagging at him to do something around the house. Ma didn't fly into a tantrum if he didn't help her with the housework. Housework—that's not a man's work anyway. Why should a man be expected to do a woman's work?

Ma wasn't always putting up an argument to Pa, either. She thought everything he did was jake. His word was law. Just like that lovely old song,

"OH, DO YOU REMEMBER SWEET ALICE, BEN BOLT;
"SWEET ALICE, WITH EYES SO BROWN?
"SHE WEPT WITH DELIGHT IF YOU GAVE HER A SMILE,
"AND TREMBLED WITH TEARS AT YOUR FROWN!"

Yes, Ma was like that. And she couldn't do enough for Pa. Look at the Wonderful Sunday Dinners Ma used to get up! Fricassee chicken, hot biscuits, three kinds of pie, couple of cakes—worked most of Saturday and nearly all Sunday morning so everything would be swell.

But can you get one of these Modern Wives to do anything like that? Try and do it!

So you're "fed up with marriage." And "if you'd known it was going to be like this, you'd sure never have gone into it." And what do I think?

I THINK YOU HAVE PLENTY OF NERVE—YOU AND SEVERAL MILLION MORE MODERN YOUNG MEN.

Why should a man be expected to do a woman's work? Why SHOULDN'T he be expected to do a woman's work, if he lets a woman do a man's work?

Why can't you have all these little attentions which Ma gave Pa? Because you're getting a lot of little attentions—and important cash service—which Pa never dreamed of getting from Ma.

And the woman who gives you those services is a Real Two-Fisted Person. She has to be, or she could never hold her own in this modern world. She's a hard hitter, a quick thinker—and she needs a healthy amount of fun and freedom to keep her fit.

Evenings over the darning basket. Sundays over the kitchen stove? Did you mention that alluring prospect when you married her, Al? I'll say you didn't! You made your sale by representing yourself as a Regular Gypsy Lover.

THEN ACT LIKE ONE NOW!

No modern girl is going to do a Sweet Alice for you, Al. Why should she? A working life has wised her up to the precise value of the smiles and frowns of all males. And yet, she can love her own man as greatly as any woman ever loved.

You have, taking her by and large, the finest creature for a mate which the human race has yet developed. You may know together man-and-wife comradeship, a community in work and adventure, which the race has never experienced before. Follow her clicking heels, profit by her cool little head, and she'll make a man of you, my son.

BUT HAVE YOU WHAT IT TAKES?

THEN PROVE IT.

Yours—but waiting to be shown—

ELSIE.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

How to Size HIM Up

A lot of matrimonial wreckage could be avoided if a girl and a man on the brink of love would take the time to size each other up before ordering the ring, the trousseau and the gardenias. And the best place to get a line on a man is in a restaurant.

According to an article by Richard Le Gallienne, you should never marry a man until you see how he pays the dinner check. If he scrutinizes the bill with the frown of an expert accountant and then grudgingly doles out the money like a victim of a hold-up, he's a tightwad and will probably make his wife feel like a charity ward all her life.

* * *

But, on the other hand, if he barely glances at the addition, carelessly flings a big bank note at the waiter and says "Keep the change," he may be a waster and a spendthrift, and the girl who marries him may have to take in boarders and pay up his back debts.

* * *

Don't marry a man until you observe how he treats the waiter. To some men, an argument with the waiter is just part of the evenings' entertainment. If a man will bully a waiter who is practically at his mercy—don't place yourself at his mercy. The man who makes a scene in a restaurant will keep his wife's face red, from the wedding day to the divorce.

* * *

Don't marry a man until you see what a cocktail will do to him. Some men become affectionate and boresome after the second or third cocktail; some are loud and argumentative; some want to fight—and some, who can "hold their liquor," just become mellow and genial and more interesting.

* * *

Never marry a man until you've got a line on his appetite. If he sniffs disapprovingly at his food or just picks at it and pushes back his plate, beware! His wife will have a case of crankiness or chronic dyspepsia to cope with. But if he stuffs and stuffs until he has swallowed everything on the menu, he is probably the kind who will grow fat and go to sleep after dinner, and the honeymoon will be over before the train reaches Niagara Falls.

* * *

Never be foolish enough to marry a man who criticises you—whether he's right or wrong. A few years with a critic-on-the-hearth will take all the heart, all the color, all the pep and all the personality out of the most brilliant woman, and fill her with an eternal inferiority complex.

Never marry a man until you have found out whether he believes in working for a living or just in "putting over a big deal" and looking for four-leaf clovers. And never marry a man who BORES you, no matter how good or rich or worthy he is!

* * *

But, alas, if you follow ALL of these rules, I'm afraid you'll never marry at all!

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

Tomorrow

Man ever loves to ponder
The future's mystery.
He seeks always to pierce the veil
Through which he cannot see.

He feels the search is futile,
That nothing can reveal
Those far events which he would know.
But fixed decrees conceal.

Yet he could surely master
The answer to his quest
If he would read the secret things
That lie within his breast.

Tomorrow shows the pattern
He works upon today.
And if he spins the threads of joy
Tomorrow will be gay.

He weaves today for rapture,
For triumph or defeat.
And if good dwells within his heart,
Tomorrow will be sweet!

How the Japanese Grow Pearls—A Whistling Pearl—Huge Diamond Found in Brazil

By Edwin C. Hill

THE PRIVATE life of the oyster has never sufficiently engaged the attention of scholars and philosophers. Yet the oyster is an interesting creature, well worth the study of the discerning. As prohibition disappears, oysters grow more popular, for they are the natural food that goes with beer and ale. From Japan comes the news that the curious industry called pearl-planting is the largest in years.

For many centuries men have industriously combed the oyster beds of the Persian Gulf, of Ceylon and of the South Seas for pearl-bearing oysters. Long before the seductive Cleopatra playfully tossed a magnificent pearl into a cup of vinegar, pearls wove their spell about mankind, and especially his womankind.

Then came the ingenious and industrious Japanese with their tweezers, knives and other instruments, to produce in the living oyster pearls which cannot be distinguished from the purely natural pearl without cutting the gem in half. They are genuine pearls, as truly as any pearl can be genuine, except that they are artificially stimulated.

* * *

How the Pearls Are Cultivated

THIS SEASON the Japanese pearl experts placed 3,000,000 pearl producing oysters on the operating table. Inserting a clamp between the shells of each oyster to keep them open, a tiny seed pearl or bead of mother of pearl was inserted into the live body of the oyster. Every oyster thus treated was placed in a wire cage and suspended, by means of rafts, in the waters of the bays, where they feed and grow and cover the tiny seed pearls with live oyster membrane and build them up into big pearls.

Twice a year the cages, which protect the living pearl factories from octopuses and other natural enemies, are taken up and cleaned of parasitic growths. Seven years from now the oysters will be opened and the pearls will be removed. Twenty-five per cent will have practically perfect pearls of varying sizes.

Every year in Japan priests conduct services for the souls of departed oysters—oysters that have given up their lives to produce these beautiful and valuable gems.

The most famous oyster that ever lived was the Famous Whistling Oyster of London. Back in the thirties of the nineteenth century the keeper of a tavern in Drury Lane discovered that an oyster, reclining in a bowl of brine, produced a whistling sound by inhaling and exhaling water through a hole in its shell.

The Whistling Oyster became a London celebrity. All the other notabilities of the town, including Dickens and Thackeray, went to the tavern to hear his performances and to tuck away in their insides multitudes of his less gifted brethren.

In this first month of the revival of oysters we might recall what Lowell made his Cambridge oysterman say: "When eyesters are good they air good, and when they ain't, they isn't!"

Enormous Diamond Found in Brazil

NEWS FROM Brazil reports the finding of a huge diamond weighing 2,000 carats, or almost a pound, one of the largest stones ever found. If of perfectly pure quality, it would be worth something like $10,000,000.

The largest diamond ever found was the great Cullinan. It weighed more than 3,000 carats, or a pound and a third, when it was taken from the yellow clay of the Premier Mine in the Transvaal. The man who found it, Frederick Wells, received a gift of $10,000 from his company, and the government of the Union of South Africa presented it to King Edward VII. Cut into smaller diamonds, the largest fragments now sparkle among the British crown jewels in the Tower of London.

There are many famous diamonds which have figured in history, though none so large as the great Cullinan. The Great Mogul is one of these. So is the Orloff, which was stolen by a French soldier from the eye of an idol in a Brahmin temple, bought by Prince Orloff for £90,000 and presented to the Empress Catherine II. It was among the Russian crown jewels seized by the Bolsheviki.

The Kohinoor, now weighing 106 carats and set in the crown of King George, was once owned by Nadir Shah, the Persian conqueror, then passed into the hands of the East India Company, which gave it to Queen Victoria.

The Regent or Pitt Diamond is a magnificent stone found in India or Borneo. It was bought by the Duke of Orleans, Regent of France, was stolen during the Revolution, but was recovered and is still in France. The Nizam, weighing 277 carats, is owned by the Nizam of Hyderabad, the richest man in the world.

The Sancy was successively the property of Charles the Bold of Burgundy, of De Sancy, Queen Elizabeth, Henrietta Maria, Cardinal Mazarin and Louis the Fourteenth, and since then of the King of Spain, a Russian prince and an Indian Rajah.

The Hope Diamond, owned by Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean, of Washington, and about which so many traditions of bad luck are associated, is probably the most famous of all colored diamonds. It is a beautiful blue and weighs more than 44 carats.

Federal Regulation of Trucks, Buses Urged

By James T. Williams, Jr.

THOUSANDS of Americans will continue to pay with their lives every year until the strong arm of the federal government regulates motor truck and motor bus transportation on the highways North, East, South and West.

The latest attempt at state regulation by uniform laws has just failed at Harrisburg, Pa. Sixteen states were represented at a conference held there under the auspices of the American Legislators Association. It was attended by Governors of some of the states, officers of State Legislatures, highway and motor vehicle commissioners and by a representative from the United States Bureau of Public Roads.

Another regional conference of State officials is scheduled for Salt Lake City. Eleven Western states will send representatives to that meeting.

The trouble is that just as this country has 49 different banking systems—one for each state of the Union and one for national banks—so it has 49 different systems for regulating transportation—the federal system, which applies to railroads and 48 different state systems which apply to motor trucks and buses.

The railroads opposed federal regulation and for years prevented it by advocating state regulation. Their owners preferred state regulation because they found it easier to defeat effective regulation at the 48 capitals than to defeat effective regulation in the federal city by the Congress.

* * *

Have Opposed Federal Regulation

FOR THE same reason the owners of motor buses and motor trucks have opposed federal regulation because experience convinced them that they could more easily defeat such regulation by the states. This is what has happened at Harrisburg. This is what will happen at Salt Lake City. This is what will happen throughout the country, and men, women and children will pay the cost of this perilous chaos on the highways until Congress faces the facts and follows where they lead.

Instead of leading the way for federal regulation of motor bus and motor truck transportation, the United States Chamber of Commerce is opposing this solution of the problem. Its policy is influenced by the owners of motor buses and motor trucks.

But the Interstate Commerce Commission, which has made an exhaustive study of the matter, has urged for more than a year the enactment of federal legislation to regulate all motor vehicles operating on public highways and engaged in interstate commerce.

This recommendation was reinforced by the National Transportation Committee of which the late President Coolidge was chairman. It recommended that:

"Automotive transportation should be under such regulation as is necessary for public protection. It should bear its fair burden of tax, but only on a basis of compensation for public expenditure on its behalf plus its share of the general tax load. Neither tax nor regulation should be applied for any purpose of handicapping the march of progress for the benefit of the railroads."

There is pending before the Congress a bill introduced in the House last March by Congressman Rayburn, of Texas, chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to regulate the transportation of passengers and property in interstate and foreign commerce by motor carriers operating on the public highway.

* * *

I. C. C. Would Be Given Authority

UNDER THE Rayburn bill, the Interstate Commerce Commission would be the regulatory body. It would be given power to supervise and regulate common carriers of passengers by motor vehicles, and to establish reasonable requirements with respect to service, transportation of baggage, records and reports. It would limit to 8 hours at any one time the hours of service of any operator of any motor vehicle.

Certificates of public convenience and necessity would be required before an operator could engage in interstate commerce. It would not be issued until a carrier complies with rules and regulations covering the filing and approval of surety bonds or policies of insurance for the protection of the public.

The Rayburn Bill is opposed by the forces of special privilege because it is designed to protect the public interest by making travel on the highways safe for the average American. And travel for the average American on the highways will continue to be a costly hazard until the Rayburn bill or some similar measure is written into the federal statutes and enforced by the federal government with the support of state authorities.

Isn't It So?

A good executive is one who can get others to work efficiently.
